Curtsy Bows Out

* * *

Roland Michener, less than an hour before he was installed as Governor-General Monday, said he hoped during his term of office "no one will feel it necessary or ever desirable to curtsy to me or my wife."

Mr. Michener said in a statement the curtsy, often accorded by ladies to the Queen's representative in Canada, and to his wife, was not something to be ordered or forbidden.

"Personally, I shall be happier as a Canadian among Canadians with such customary Canadian salutations as the handshake or the bow.

* * *

"I hope that this viewpoint will find general acceptance although some may regret it," he said.

Noble Order of Canada

For Best and Bravest

By RON COLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The government Monday night established the Noble Order of Canada, to honor the best and the bravest among Canadians.

It will rank behind only the Victoria Cross and the George Cross, which are awarded by the Queen on the recommendation of her Canadian government.

* * *

In the case of the new order, the awards will not be referred to London, but will be made by the governor-general on the advice of a non-political advisory council.

The new order does not effect the present procedure for awarding other medals.

It gives Canada its first system of Canadian honors and awards.

In 1943, the Canada Medal was instituted to fill the gap, but it was never awarded and is now being replaced by the Order of Canada.

The Canada Medal has been an embarrassment to successive prime ministers. Between five and ten of the medals, bearing the head of the late King George VI, have been gathering dust in the office of the deputy registrar general.

* * *

New Democrat Harold Winch suggested that one, and only one, should be awarded posthumously to George Vanier, the late governor-general.

Prime Minister Pearson said he would consider the suggestion.

Diefenbaker Presses House

'ABOLISH RECORDS—NOW'

By FRASER KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Conservative leader John Diefenbaker pressed the government Monday to abolish criminal records following disclosures that an MP had been blackmailed about an armed robbery conviction 24 years ago.

He told the Commons that as a Centennial project the government should pass legislation abolishing a man's criminal record after five or 10 years of good behavior.

Sunday night, Frank Howard (NDP, Skeena) admitted on television in Prince Rupert he had served 16 months in jail for three charges of armed robberty in Vancouver in 1943.

BLACKMAIL THREAT

The 42-year-old MP said he decided to admit to his record after he had received a blackmail threat through the mail about two weeks ago.

Mr. Diefenbaker did not refer to Mr. Howard by name, but he prefaced his question by stating the words "in view of events in the last 24 hours . . ."

Solicitor General Pennell replied that officials in his departments are now preparing a memo for submission to the cabinet on the abolition of criminal records.

STUDYING BILL

He also pointed out that the Commons justice and legal committee is studying a bill from Donald Tolmie (L, Welland) which would abolish records after 12 years and would also abolish records incurred while a person was a juvenile.

"May I suggest to the minister that time is of the essence in this connection and procrastination is no excuse. Everybody knows, or almost everybody realizes, the injustice of the present position.

"In view of the events of the last two days this Parliament should act now."

ACTIVELY CONSIDERING

Mr. Pennell retorted there has been no procrastination and that he has supported the principle in public.

In a speech to the John Howard society some weeks ago Mr. Pennell said he would oppose erasing of criminal records but would support a greatly increased use of the pardon system.

He proposed that the federal government grant pardons which would in effect state that the former inmate had behaved well enough that the authorities considered him not to have a record.

The person's record would not be given out to prospective employers or anyone else and would only be used in the case of subsequent conviction.

MP Won't Resign

This Could End It All — Howard

* * *

"I don't know about my future," the 42-year-old member of Parliament said as he prepared to leave Terrace. "There's a possibility this could end it all." (See also Page 11.)

Mr. Howard said he was prompted to make his criminal record public because of a letter he received in Ottawa two weeks ago demanding $5,000 and threatening disclosure of his record.

CASE IN COURT

A charge was laid here a week ago in connection with the letter and the case now is before the courts.

Mr. Howard said he did not intend to resign and had no plans to make a statement in the Commons when he returns today.

OFFICIALS TOLD

He said that before he had ever run for public office—in the 1953 B.C. election in Skeena provincial riding which he lost by 308 votes—he had informed party officials of his record and a party lawyer had said there was no legal reason he would not hold office.

"I had also disclosed my record to friends and certain party officials a long time ago—and I was resolved to make a public statement at some convenient

Disclosure Leaves MPs Undisturbed

OTTAWA (CP) — Frank Howard's disclosure that he once served time for armed robbery has produced little alarm among his fellow members of Parliament, a snap poll indicates.

Four Conservatives and two Liberals were sampled on their attitude towards the NDP member for Skeena. The prevailing view was that his criminal record was a private matter.

* * *

Gordon Fairweather, Conservative MP for Royal, said the matter should be forgotten. "It's his own business and it happened 25 years ago," the former New Brunswick attorney-general said.

Of the six MPs polled, only Conservative Alfred Hales (Wellington South) suggested Mr. Howard should not be permitted to retain his seat. However, he said it is up to the NDP to decide that question, not Parliament.

"It's strange that one would be allowed to be an MP with such a record," Mr. Hales said.

* * *

Conservative Walter Dinsdale (Brandon-Souris), a former Salvation Army police court social worker, said no stigma should be attached to reformed criminals.

"A man must be judged on what he is, not what he was," said Mr. Dinsdale, a former cabinet minister.

British Belts Stay Cinched

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — The Labor government announced plans Monday to maintain control over pay and prices for at least another 18 months despite protests by the voters and outcries in Parliament.

In the wake of setbacks in local council elections last week, Economics Minister Michael Stewart gave notice that the government intends to take power to impose prolonged delays in pay awards and price increases in key industries.

The government says such power is necessary to restore Britain's economic health after chronic crisis.

IRKS SUPPORTERS

The new pay-control program would be slightly less sweeping than current powers to block pay and price increases by government order. After the current pay-freeze powers expire this summer, the new 12-month program would permit the government to delay proposed increases for up to seven months.

Spanish Air Ban Official

MONTREAL (CP) — The Spanish delegate to the International Civil Aviation Organization has filed an official notice stating his country has prohibited foreign aircraft from an area adjacent to Gibraltar, an ICAO spokesman said Monday.

"ICAO's function now is to notify all member countries that such a ban is in effect," the spokesman said. "There will be no debate."

The British government said last week it intends "to uphold to the full our rights to use the airfield at Gibraltar."

City Hideaway Hunted

Store Loses $400,000 In Montreal Grab-Raid

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said Monday they are searching for a hideaway in downtown Montreal where four armed men were believed to have fled after holding up two Brinks guards at Simpson's department store and escaping with $400,000 in cash and non-negotiable cheques.

A spokesman for Simpson's Montreal Ltd. said about one-third of the loot was cash. It represented Saturday's receipts.

Detectives said they believe the four bandits, who had machine-guns, "rushed to a hideaway in the central district to avoid being seen."

They abandoned their getaway car a few blocks north of the department store, near McGill University.

The stolen money and cheques were contained in three canvas bags.

The bags were being carried by the two Brink's guards from the store's basement. Store employees said the bandits apparently mingled with the employees and, at a given moment, hurriedly donned masks and produced their guns.

Police said the two Brinks guards chased the bandits out onto the street where the four men were seen getting into a green car. The rear license plate was covered by white paint or plastered with white paper to prevent identification.

Roy Etches, general manager of Simpson's in Montreal, said the loss was covered by insurance and by a contract with Brink's Express Co.

A few hours after the robbery, three men held up a credit union in suburban Jacques Cartier and escaped with an estimated $5,000.

One man stayed in a car while the others entered the building and told a teller to empty the contents of the cash drawers.

At least $350,000, not including Monday's holdup, has been taken in various robberies of Brink's employees in the Montreal area in recent months.

Police Officer Hurt in Crash

City police Sgt. Donald Bale, 1310 Burleith Crescent, and a passenger from another vehicle were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital after a police car and a private car collided at Broughton and Government, shortly after 1 a.m. today.

One Dead in Zig-Zag Wake

Twister Hits Ontario

HENSALL, Ont. (CP)—A devastating tornado slashed an ugly path Monday from this farming community to nearby Dublin, killing one man.

Joseph Donnelly, 80, of Dublin was working in a barn on his family farm when the building collapsed after being hit by the tornado.

Hensall is 25 miles north of London and Dublin is 15 miles east of here.

* * *

Volunteer firemen pulled both Mr. Donnelly and his son, Lou, 50, from the wreckage, but the elder Donnelly died several hours later in hospital.

Village residents saw the twister zig-zagging through the field towards them about 4 p.m.

Many thought it was going to slice through the village school where 200 children were about to leave for the day, but at the last moment it veered south of the town.

* * *

In less than a minute it destroyed a gas station; took the roof off a barn, smashed it to pieces and then spread it over fields up to half a mile away; snapped trees at the base; lifted hydro poles out of the ground; lifted a barn off the ground and then drove it against trees 50 yards away; and picked a small car and sent it cartwheeling into the side of a house.

"It was zig-zagging . . . It lifted for a moment and then it came down again.

"I started to run for the house from where I had been working in a barn.

* * *

"I just had time to get down in the basement with my wife. Then it was on us.

"Through the basement window I saw my Volkswagen lifted off the ground. Then it started to roll over and over. It came to rest against the house."

A dozen trees on the property were lifted out of the ground, Mr. Branderhorst said.

* * *

"I was standing here in my husband's service station when I saw it coming.

"I only had time to telephone my husband who was on a call to Exeter. Then it struck.

"I heard the wall crack at the back. Then the whole building fell down. It was just terrible."

MP's Political Future Unknown

time," Mr. Howard said in a telephone interview from Terrace.

"I had decided long ago that there had to be some sort of reason for making the statement and this (the letter) was it. It was as simple as that."

Mr. Howard purchased—"out of my own pocket, not party funds"—time on the Terrace television station late Sunday night and disclosed his record. It was one of his hardest decisions, said the father of one son, "and I'm still not quite sure how to reveal it."

THREE CHARGES

Mr. Howard told the television audience he was convicted on three charges of armed robbery in Vancouver in 1943 under his foster name and was sentenced to concurrent two-year terms in the British Columbia penitentiary in New Westminster on each count.

He said he served "about 19 or 20 months" because of time off for good behavior and came out of prison with $10 in the pockets of his prison-bought suit and got a job in the busy wartime shipyards here.

Court records show that Howard was convicted as Frank Thomas Wood, his foster name. Mr. Howard said in an interview he did not wish to reveal the foster name.

REFORM ADVOCATE

The court records show convictions for two jewelry store robberies and a hotel holdup.

Mr. Howard has represented Skeena since 1957 and has been a noted advocate of penal reforms, which he now admits resulted from his own jail experiences.

He was first elected to public office in 1953 as member of the provincial legislature.

T. C. Douglas, national NDP leader, said in an interview at his suburban Burnaby home that he had known about Mr. Howard's criminal record and the party has no plans to call for Mr. Howard's resignation.

Prior to making his statement Sunday night, Mr. Howard met with B.C. party executive members and told them he planned to make a public statement about his past. He met Saturday with members of his constituency association in Terrace and also advised them of the statement.

Mr. Howard said he did not feel he was forced into revealing his record—"I was going to do it at some convenient time anyway."

"But whatever happens it will happen to me and nobody else."

Members Calm

The other three MPs asked for their views did not wish to be quoted. But there was no suggestion from any of them that Mr. Howard's old crime was their direct concern, calling for action.

In any case, there is nothing to prevent a person with a record from sitting in Parliament. For his part, Mr. Howard says he does not intend to resign his seat. NDP Leader Douglas says the party does intend to request his resignation.

Mr. Howard has few peers in the Commons for persistence and pugnacity in debate.

A veteran of 10 years in the Commons, he has focussed national attention on the need for prison reform with unremitting attacks on government policy. He frequently visits prisons to make first-hand checks on conditions. Prisoners write him letters about life inside.

A champion of the underdog, he has made many enemies with his blunt attacks. But although rumors of his past circulated from time to time, nobody in the Commons ever used it against him.

Race Within NDP Hard to Handicap

BILL THOMAS' NOTEBOOK — Tuesday

WHO NEXT?: The NDP leadership race set for Burnaby in June has all the earmarks of a handicapper's nightmare.

Bob Strachan, the incumbent, already knows about Vancouver lawyer Tom Berger, but what about labor leader E. P. O'Neal.

Also rumored as ready to enter the fight is kilted Alex MacDonald, who sits for Vancouver East in the provincial house.

It promises political pundits a season of "pick-the-leader" fun, what with the federal Tories having their big fight in the fall.

BETTER IDEA: The Community Arts Council was going to have its annual meeting April 25 but has decided to have a wine-and-cheese party instead, at the School of Music on Pandora.

To add a little culture to the occasion, Professor Reg Terry has agreed to give a reading from Dylan Thomas' Return Journey, which was a sellout when it was offered at the University of Victoria.

ROOM TAX: Chamber of Commerce president Courtney Haddock is putting on a big push to get all rooms and motel accommodation in the Greater Victoria area tagged with a four-per-cent tax.

The idea is to raise funds so that the city can built its convention centre and also provide cash for promotional ventures boosting the area.

Mr. Haddock says he has Mayor Hugh Stephen sold on the idea, and hopes it will get past the intermunicipal committee.

All concerned are aware that the matter would need the approval of the legislature and are fearful that if Premier Bennett sees the possibility of another tax, the whole fund may slide down the drain into consolidated revenue.

BIG BITE: Photographer Irving Strickland had a great time when the Yates Street awning was officially opened. He shot his pictures and even lined up for a free toffee sample. Now he wishes he hadn't. One chewy bite and he slipped a gold filling. That toffee was truly worth its weight in gold.

TOUGH JOB: Does the provincial department of public works have a pornography consultant? At regular intervals a little man slithers forth to tour the fence paintings around the museum and archives building now under construction.

The man carries a pot of paint and odd bits of board. His job, it appears, is to paint out or cover, as discreetly and as artistically as possible, vulgar additions to the fence art.

One or two of the bits of vandalism struck me as definite improvements over the originals.

If the public works censor feels the crude additions are unworthy of painting over, he tacks a bit of board over the offending areas.

POOR TASTES: Renovations to the Duncan Building in Bastion Square have not all been for the better. There is the matter of the doorknob for example.

The door to this building has been refinished in good taste and the antique plate behind the doorknob left intact, but the handsome original knob itself has been replaced with a cheap-looking brass specimen.

Unification Bill Stalled, Too

Debate Limit Hung Up

The government is expected to get its chance today to take the second step in the process of forcing the debate to a close, possibly on April 25.

In the Commons, the legislation to transform the armed forces into a single service was making no progress in its 11th day.

"It is time to hear from a greater authority, from the prime minister," said Roger Regimbal (PC — Argenteuil-Deux-Montagnes).

NOW IN EFFECT

Under the so-called "guillotine rule" now in effect, representatives of all parties have until today to agree voluntarily to some restriction on further debate.

One Conservative, Gerald Baldwin (PC — Peace River), gave up hope of agreement by today's deadline.

Mr. Baldwin had hoped to offer a compromise solution but said in a statement that he could not get on the Conservative list of speakers before today. Instead, he issued a text of his speech proposing that the House pass the unification bill with an amendment that would permit some further debate later.

THREE SERVICES

When the government was ready to proclaim the bill and make the regulations under which the three services would be merged, debate would be allowed on the regulations.

But Mr. Baldwin said the Conservatives and Liberals "are on a collision course like two trains on a single track" and he had little hope of having his compromise accepted.

If, as expected, party representatives report today that they cannot agree, the government can move for a further limit of as little as three days on the debate.

THIS MOTION

This motion would be debated Thursday and, if passed, would force a windup next Tuesday, April 25.

Mr. Regimbal told the Commons Prime Minister Pearson should speak because most Canadians have lost confidence in Defence Minister Hellyer.

Mr. Pearson should approve the bill and give his reasons or admit reservations and postpone unification, he said.

A similar request by Conservatives last week did not produce an appearance by the prime minister.

George Chatterton (PC — Esquimalt-Saanich) said the Liberals have spread hunk and false propaganda that the debate is adversely affecting armed forces morale.

The exodus from the armed forces started long before the unification debate, he said.

Hellyer Ignores Taunt

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Terry Nugent said in the Commons Monday night that he had repeated outside the House "without any kind of privilege" the charges he made against Defence Minister Hellyer last Tuesday.

Mr. Hellyer had warned at the time that if he repeated the statement outside the House "I will have him prove it in a court of law. . . ."

Mr. Nugent had charged Mr. Hellyer with using the "tried true system developed by Adolf Hitler of the big lie."

NO PRIVILEGE

Monday night, he said he had repeated the statement in a speech near Winnipeg last Wednesday without parliamentary privilege, which protects against libel and slander actions.

"I made it plain I wasn't reading from Hansard," he said.

CONTINUING DEBATE

Mr. Hellyer remained silent while Mr. Nugent spoke but rose at 10 p.m. to suggest the House sit overtime to give MPs an extra chance to speak. Mr. Nugent rose immediately to block any move on this line, which requires unanimous consent of the Commons.

Pregnancy Won't Be Affected By Infectious Mononucleosis

Your Good Health

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter got over an attack of infectious mononucleosis in October and is now pregnant. Will the past illness affect her pregnancy in any way?

She was told in the hospital that her liver was enlarged but not "infectious." The doctor says she is all better now and she has gone back to work. Do you think too much walking or going up and down stairs will cause a recurrence? Does hepatitis have anything to do with enlarged liver?—Mrs. E. J.

I do not think the mononucleosis will affect the pregnancy at all.

It is not a dangerous disease when properly cared for, but it is important because it is so prevalent, and can put some patients thoroughly out of action for varying periods of time.

It is a disease primarily of older teen-agers and young adults. I recently saw a survey showing that mono alone represented almost 10 per cent of the admissions to a college infirmary and 20 per cent of the outpatient cases.

The disease, presumably virus borne, makes the patient abnormally listless, lymph glands swell and may be painful, and a variety of other symptoms develop, among them changes in the blood. This provides a useful test for the ailment.

Enlargement of the liver is another aspect, and is a sign that patients must be put to bed. A return to normal size indicates when the patient is on his way to full recovery. If care is taken to avoid complications, there are no after-effects.

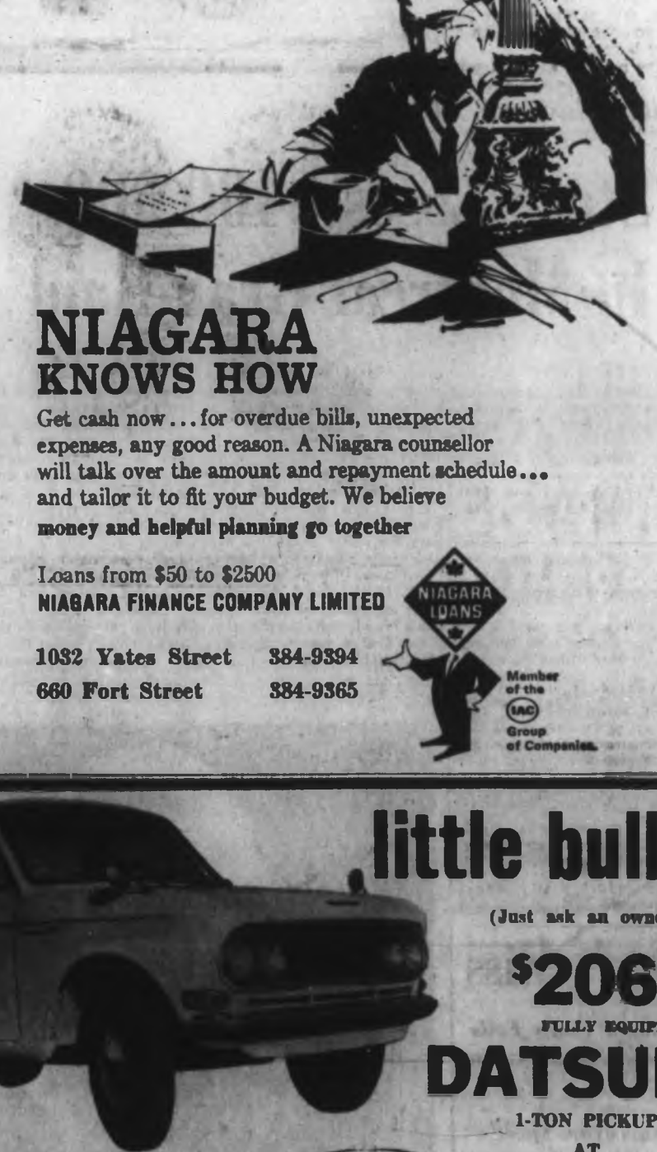

There can be relapses if a patient does not get enough rest while the disease is active, but there is no reason to worry about recurrence once the attack is at an end.

The question about hepatitis and the liver in this sort of situation is nothing to worry about, and I suspect that Mrs. E. J. may be confusing infectious hepatitis with infectious mononucleosis.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the purpose of dilation and curettage, and can be cancer be found? — MRS. J.W.

The process means dilation to permit curettage or gentle scraping of the uterus, which is done for various reasons. It may be to remove any remnants after a spontaneous abortion, to stop bleeding, to examine for infection or other disease conditions. Examination by microscope can show whether cancer cells are present, but that is only one of the purposes of this procedure.

In Ghana

Coup Fails, Leader Dies

But reliable sources said armed forces commander Lt.-Gen. E. K. Kotoka, who led the coup which ousted Kwame Nkrumah as president 14 months ago, was killed in a flurry of fighting.

The sources said there were heavy casualties in fighting at Christiansborg Castle, seat of the ruling National Liberation Council.

JUNTA BLAMED

It was not immediately clear who was behind the coup attempt. The lieutenant in charge of the army unit was reported to have admitted responsibility, but a three-man "military junta" headed by a paratroop officer was named in rebel broadcasts.

Ghana's military ruler, Gen. J. A. Ankrah, told a press conference he does not believe the coup attempt had anything to do with Nkrumah's banned Convention People's party.

For four hours—from 7 to 11 a.m. — the "military junta" claimed in repeated broadcasts over Ghana's national radio that it had taken over. Then the National Liberation Council suddenly announced over the same radio that the coup attempt had been foiled.

Ankrah

Ankrah said the three officers named in the broadcasts as the military junta were arrested but denied any part in the attempt.

Observers here said it is possible that their names were used without their permission.

Ankrah said Lieut. Sam B. Arthur, commander of the 120-man army squadron which tried to take over the government, was arrested along with all his men.

He admitted responsibility for the abortive coup attempt, the general said.

From CP, AP, UPI

Ormond Dier, new senior Canadian representative on the International Control Commission in Vietnam, will make his first visit to Hanoi later this week, External Affairs Minister Martin said Monday in Ottawa.

Mr. Martin said he expects Mr. Dier will discuss with North Vietnamese authorities the minister's four-point proposal for a ceasefire in Vietnam.

TEXT NOT DISCUSSED

Mr. Martin said that despite a Hanoi newspaper editorial rejecting his proposal, it is his impression that North Vietnam has not yet had an opportunity to discuss the full text of his statement, made to the Commons external affairs committee April 11.

In Washington, Admiral U. S. G. Sharp, commander of American forces in the Pacific, virtually challenged North Vietnam to attempt a big invasion across the so-called demilitarized zone into South Vietnam.

THREE DIVISIONS

Sharp told a press conference there are at least three Communist divisions in and just north of the zone capable of staging a major offensive.

"We look forward to the opportunity of using our firepower and mobility," the admiral said.

On the war front hundreds of crack 1st Air Cavalry Division troops have been rushed to the northern provinces to join other Americans facing an estimated 28,000 North Vietnamese regulars, the U.S. military command said.

The airlift was begun April 8 but not announced until Monday for security reasons.

U.S. Fleet Stirs Uproar

BEIRUT (LAT) — The Lebanese government Monday expressed its "alarm" over reports the U.S. 6th Fleet would intervene to protect Israel if war breaks out in the Middle East. But it apparently took no steps to ban future visits by the fleet.

Foreign Minister George Hakim called in U.S. ambassador Dwight Porter and asked for an explanation of remarks attributed to Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol by an American magazine. Eshkol was quoted by the magazine as saying: "We ask the U.S. for arms and we are told don't spend your money. We are here. The 6th fleet is here."

The remarks stirred a political uproar here and elsewhere in the Arab world, most of which is still technically at war with Israel.

Erasing Mistakes

THE SIGNS ARE that the federal government is moving toward a system of erasing the criminal records of those who have had their punishment and learned from the experience: who have over a period of time shown themselves rehabilitated.

The Commons committee on justice and legal affairs has before it a private member's bill providing for the destruction of the records of minors who upon reaching their majority have become respectable members of society, and for similar erasure in the case of adults who have gone 12 years without another conviction after a first offence.

But it is from the government that real legislative action is increasingly expected, according to Ottawa reports, to come. Solicitor-General Larry Pennell, for instance, has stated that "certainly relief ought to be given to the offender who has clearly demonstrated his rehabilitation." The obstacles to giving effect to this principle, he has indicated, lie chiefly in the mechanics of administration.

Impetus was undoubtedly given to the federal consideration of a change in the law by the example of a young man who, having won a municipal council seat, was forced to give it up last January under provincial regulations by the fact that as a boy of 17 he had been convicted of joy-riding.

But if it were needed, the country now has before it another instance, and of most dramatic nature: the disclosure by Mr. Frank Howard, the New Democratic MP for Skeena, that he has a criminal record. It came his way in 1943, when he was 18, for robbery. He has long since proved a most valuable citizen, as a union executive, an MLA and since 1957 a member of Parliament. But the mark against his name stands unexpunged.

Even had the official record been destroyed, of course, it might not have saved Mr. Howard from the blackmail attempt that prompted his admission that 25 years ago he had made a mistake, paid the penalty and learned the best lesson of his life. Someone must have remembered, or perhaps an old newspaper yielded the facts.

The unofficial record, in other words, can seldom be entirely wiped out. But to the extent that recognition can be given to rehabilitation, and that the impediments of a criminal record to a full and free citizenship can be removed, an alteration of the law on the lines currently contemplated would appear to be a worthwhile advance.

Why Be Bashful?

THAT TELEVISION personality, Mr. Laurier LaPierre of the controversial CBC "Seven Days" program, has proclaimed himself as a likely future prime minister. This may seem rather immodest on the part of a man who isn't yet an MP, but there is nothing like having a good conceit of oneself.

In the political realm, as in TV, diffidence is not an asset.

Mr. LaPierre's prophecies may startle the New Democrats, however, for it would be intimately affected if what he envisages came to pass.

As a starter, he is standing as NDP candidate in the riding of Outremont, Quebec, one of the five byelections to be contested next month. He has to win this Liberal-held seat yet, but obviously he has no doubts about this. And when the NDP leader, Mr. T. C. Douglas, retires, he will seek the leadership of the New Democratic Party, he says.

And thereafter if "I become leader I will become prime minister—maybe in 1980."

There seems to be one contradictory feature about his crystal-gazing, however. He predicts that Quebec could become independent within two years, incidentally blaming the rest of Canada for the current unrest in that province.

But if Quebec became independent two years hence he wouldn't continue as a federal MP for his constituency would disappear—assuming he is elected on May 29. He might of course become prime minister of the new nation of Quebec.

One supposes the NDP would have something to say about all this; some party stalwarts secretly hoping to succeed Mr. Douglas themselves are probably so taken aback by Mr. LaPierre's insouciance they won't be unhappy if he doesn't get a foot in their political door.

Suiting the Argument

IN THE COMMONS last week an NDP member said that a dozen servicemen from the West Coast had been instructed to wear civilian clothes when visiting Parliament because of the unification debate taking place. He asked for an explanation.

That Napoleonic expert of military affairs, the defence minister, confessed he didn't know, hadn't heard about it, but said he would make inquiries.

His executive assistant, however, who often comes to Mr. Hellyer's rescue, told reporters it has been a tradition since the days of Charles I that military uniforms are not worn in the Commons galleries.

Tradition, and a king? How refreshing. One had thought, and with mighty good reason, that tradition and royal affinities were decidedly not the vogue in the Liberal regime at Ottawa these days.

There seems to be some confusion in Liberal ranks nevertheless as to what tradition is about. Even that it is something one adopts as a cloak, or leaves off, just as it suits the argument.

Page the Liberal MP who in the same debate declared that under unification the customs and traditions of regiments would be maintained. Presumably that is why the unification bill abolishes the traditional separate structure and identities of the navy, army and air force!

Indeed this member said further that the most radical thing that would happen to servicemen was that in due course they would get a new suit.

If that is all, what a waste of time, talk and print and money are the 65 clauses of the unification bill.

One cannot escape the impression that as with tradition, the government is showing that in military matters it is groping with something beyond its understanding.

Ottawa Offbeat

Countering the Leftward Drift

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

THREE straws blowing in the federal government big-spending high-taxing wind:

Straw One: Some 250—could be 500, or actually who-knows-how-many by the time you read this—leading business, industrial and professional men across the land have incorporated the swiftly growing "Congress of Concerned Canadians."

Straw Two: The Canadian Economic Council—a federally-chartered group of eastern and western Canadian commercial leaders representing insurance, steel, finance, milling, lumbering, manufacturing and consumer service interests—has organized the rapidly expanding "Union of Taxpayers."

Straw Three: The editor of probably the most financially orthodox business pages in Canada's largest conservatively-leaning newspaper has written these rather startlingly unorthodox words in the Globe and Mail:

"What is needed (to brake government spending, slow the spiralling of already viciously high tax rates and halt inflation) is to have some tough-minded people who know how to pull a strike, legal or not, against the Parliament Hill Crowd."

* * *

First this "Congress of Concerned Canadians"...

According to its articles of federal incorporation as set out by its 15 founding fathers—all prominent private enterprisers—the congress is a non-partisan political organization aimed at pulling together "what's left of the Right."

With head offices in Ottawa it already has set up in a few weeks since its incorporation branches in 10 centres from Montreal to Calgary.

One of its 15 incorporators—it's a non-profit public service outfit—Ivan Sparks, leading Ottawa businessman and descendant of the family after whom the capital's main street mall is named, explains that the congress is rallying "all the C. D. Howe-type liberals and the Donald Fleming-style conservatives."

They're using the small "l" and small "c" because they view with alarm both the "Pearson type Liberals and the Diefenbaker-style Conservatives as headed, with equal ruinously reckless speed, headlong into socialism."

The congress will be taking a very active, and its incorporators hope "quite decisive hand" in the next federal election—not running any candidates itself, but giving strong working and financial support to those they like.

And those they like will be the candidates in Liberal and Conservative ranks who aren't the "swingers of socialism and the practitioners of big government."

"With our congress," says Ivan Sparks, "it's a straight issue of free enterprise against socialism, of government financial restraint and common economic sense versus bigger spending and higher taxes."

So who, for example, does the congress see as having the small "l" liberal qualities of C. D. "Trader" Howe and the small "c" conservative attributes of Donald Fleming?

Well, among the Grits, obviously Finance Minister Sharp and Trade Minister Winters—and far from as decidedly among the Tories, former health minister Monte Monteith and ex-New Brunswick premier and former federal forestry minister Hugh John Fleming.

But more important, who looks good to the congress as a leader of "what's left of the Right?"

Either Alberta Premier Manning or Premier Stanfield of Nova Scotia—the westerner so far unavailable, and the easterner up to now indifferent.

The congress believes that it's all quite worthwhile whatever the cost in effort and money. And for this reason:

"With the Liberals and the Conservatives in a wild cost-and-taxes-be-damned race to out-socialize the New Democrats," the incorporators are convinced, "there is enough left of the Right to give a coalition of small "c" conservatives and small "l" liberals a balance of political power."

Could it possibly be that winds of change are beginning to blow across the country blowing hard and cold enough to change the leftward drift of the two old parties?

If not, then how do you account for the business editor of the nation's most conservative newspaper suggesting a tax strike—for the industrialists, business and investment executives of the Canadian Economic Foundation organizing, of all things, a union, a taxpayers' union—and for prominent private enterprisers digging into their own pockets and personally going to work to change the political shape of things.

Washington Calling

Hippies—a Troubling Phenomenon

By MARQUIS CHILDS

IF a quick sampling of attitudes in the Midwest and in California has any meaning, most Americans today are preoccupied with holding their own in the face of rising prices. The war in Vietnam is a long way off and they wish it would go away.

The sensitive nerve is the threat of ever higher taxes. Not only governors but mayors and city councilmen face implacable hostility at even a hint that taxes, and in particular property taxes, must go up to meet expanding needs. Bond issues to build schools and fill other urban needs are repeatedly voted down.

* * *

But another phenomenon that obviously disturbs a great many people rarely fails to draw a response. That is the alienation of the younger generation or a segment of it. How large is this segment and how permanent is the alienation no one seems to now.

The casual visitors to Hippieland, the farthest out centre of alienation in the Haight-Ashbury district of San Francisco, look in vain for a common thread of meaning. Are these young people parading up and down the street in every kind of outlandish costume really advertising their total alienation from a society they constantly proclaim as corrupted? Or is it exhibitionism, these men with frowsy beards, masses of tasselled hair, dangling earrings from pierced ears, the women in long, stinging garments, sandals and dirty feet being universal?

Unkempt children trailing their unkempt parents are the saddest aspect of what at times looks like a human zoo. The Gray Line has now put on a daily two-hour "Hippie Hop" for tourists through Haight-Ashbury. The timid, who may fear contact with the natives in a restless mood, are assured that the bus will pause but not come to a full stop in the middle of Hippieland.

Both in downtown San Francisco and in Haight-Ashbury the activists were passing out leaflets calling for participation in the "Spring Mobilization" against the Vietnam war. San Francisco buzzes with rumors of a great hippie conclave in the late spring or early summer. You can hear almost any figure from 2,000 to 200,000 reported converging on the city for a great move-in.

The average citizen, if the taxi driver is any sample, boil with indignation at the hippies. Tossing them off the bridge into the bay is the mildest form of punishment proposed. Public Utilities Commissioner Thomas F. Stack denouncing Haigh Ashbury as a Sodom persuaded the utilities commission to reroute all buses around Hippieland on weekends and holidays.

This, said Stack, was essential to protect the city's children.

In the view of one who had to cope with the campus activists the sit-in and the demonstration will take their place with the coon-skin coat as the phenomenon of a generation passing into history. Dr. Clark Kerr who was fired as president of the University of California at Berkeley after Ronald Reagan became governor, believes that a succeeding generation of student leaders will be equally committed but they will have a more mature approach to the problems of the student and society.

* * *

Sensational reporting and scenes of violence on television in all probability exaggerate the extent of alienation of the young. In the sit-in demonstrations at the University of Wisconsin against recruiters for a company making napalm only a fraction of 1 per cent of a student body of 30,000 was involved. Similarly in the demonstration against Vice-President Hubert Humphrey at Leland Stanford an investigation showed that the number of enrolled students participating was a small fraction of the several hundred who charged on the vice-president.

So much is conjecture. One phase of the widely heralded revolt of youth is drug-taking. Here again no one seems to know how wide-spread this really is. Statistics recently released in California indicate an appalling statewide increase in the use of drugs, notably marijuana and LSD. The increase was apparently for the most part among the young, including high school and college students. Lectures on the serious brain damage that can follow long after the trip with LSD is ended seem to have had no effect.

It may be, as Dr. Kerr says, a passing phenomenon. Those out of the era of bathtub gin, the Charleston and the John Held flapper were widely consigned to perdition. But transitory though it may prove to be for a great many parents it seems to have gone on forever.

Today In History

By The Canadian Press

The Second World War came to Japan for the first time 25 years ago today — in 1942 — when Lt.-Col. James S. Doolittle led 16 Mitchell bombers from USS Hornet to bomb Tokyo. The aircraft took off at the limit of their range because the carrier had been detected by Japanese patrols. One landed in Russia and two in Japan but all but one man of the other 13 crews rejoined the Allies after reaching China. Doolittle was promoted to major-general and awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Unwashed But Reliable

(From The Oregonian)

A PHOENIX, Ariz., bank has a disquieting word for the parent generation: College kids are better risks than Mom and Dad.

That is the conclusion of Lester M. Goldberg, vice-president of the Valley National Bank, Phoenix, which has experimented with issuing credit cards to college students without parental guarantee of payment.

"A large majority of the long-haired, bearded, unwashed generation has proved quite reliable," he said. The bank found only 3 per cent of the young card-bearers delinquent past 30 days, 1.6 per cent past 60 days, and only one account out of hundreds owing after 90 days. The general public doesn't do nearly so well.

There's a catch, of course. Many students must apply to their parents to pay the charges built up for maintaining cars and buying textbooks and clothing. Maybe that's why Dad can't pay his bills on time.

U.S. Military Spending

Thailand's Golden River

By PHILIP DEANE

GIANT U.S. B52 bombers this month took off for the first time from bases in Thailand to strike at targets in Vietnam; this was bemoaned by President Johnson's critics as a step sure to make Thailand a target for Communist subversion. Considerable evidence indicates that Thailand's leaders favor both the presence of the B52 bombers and all the talk of a Communist threat.

There are thousands of U.S. servicemen in Thailand, an enormous new seaport to serve the U.S. war effort in Vietnam, massive airports, impressive new roads built for the American forces but also very helpful to Thailand's economy which has recently been growing at six per cent yearly thanks to the spending of the U.S. defence establishment. Factories of all sizes are 10 times as numerous as they were five years ago. Some of these belong to Thailand's ruling generals who also own, in their wives' names, many of the contracting firms that work for the U.S. armed forces.

The late Marshal Phibun, the army strongman who ran Thailand after the Seond World War, became a multimillionaire in this way. So did his successor, the late Field Marshal Sarit who left a fortune of $150 million, accumulated in a short five years and over which his 100 "widows" fought publicly. More junior officers also get their appropriate share; it is all suitably hierarchical.

To keep the golden river flowing of U.S. military spending, the generals say that if the U.S. loses in Vietnam, or even appears to be losing then Thailand will have to reconsider her foreign policy and make sure that she offends no powerful neighbor.

Are the generals not afraid that by so identifying themselves with the U.S. they are inviting Communist subversion? The answer, so far, seems to be that the generals call any bandit a "Communist terrorist" because they think the threat of Communist subversion an excellent, additional argument for getting money from Washington.

Indirectly, of course, the ordinary people do benefit a little—they too can use the better roads. However much the graft and extortion practised by every little tyrant in uniform, the peasant does keep a little more for himself now that rice production has tripled as it has in the last five years. But the average annual income per head is only $100 and in the depressed areas of north east Thailand where Communist subversion is feared, the average annual income is only $50 per person.

The exploitation of the country by a handful of generals is a potentially explosive issue in Thailand. Intellectuals would like to give the country some measure of democracy—the last elections were in 1957 and were admittedly rigged; the national assembly members are all appointed.

Many of the would-be reformist leaders are anti-communists but they may turn anti-American also because they resent U.S. support for the military mafia. As in other countries, the Americans are afraid to abandon a regime they know they can buy and encourage change into something they cannot predict.

South Africa and Rhodesia

Self-Determination

(Second of Three Parts)

HAVING publicly labelled White dominance in Rhodesia an untenable proposition and urged Rhodesians to seek an alternative solution, RSA World reviews what it considers to be the real considerations and the actual issues at stake:

The negotiations between London and Salisbury provide no pointers Mr. Wilson and Mr. Smith are not talking about the same thing. Mr. Wilson is concerned with a constitutional independence for its own sake. Mr. Smith with an independence that will safeguard the future of his country and people. Mr. Wilson is in search of a formula that will relieve him of responsibility for Rodeshia, while Mr. Smith seeks a settlement which will enable him to honor a continuing responsibility. It is these different objectives that have led to the frustration so far. There is, indeed, an unreality and futility about them that call to heaven for a clearing away or irrelevancies and a grappling with actual issues. Among such issues are these:

* * *

A system based on continuing White dominance is not a feasible proposition anywhere in Africa (or the world) today;

At the same time, government in Rhodesia has been in the hands of the White people there for 43 years, and they have proved themselves fully capable of exercising it. Law, order and justice have been maintained, and the country has prospered to the advantage of all members of the population;

The White people have brought to Rhodesia Western, Christian standards. They have established for themselves a life of their own—quite different from that of Black Rhodesians—and they are determined to maintain it;

Constitutional devices without power to enforce them are worthless as a safeguard for minority rights. In the event of independecne under majority rule, the power to enforce the consitution (and the constitution itself) would be at the mercy of a Black government. Here would be a case of Mr. Wilson, in London, proposing—and later, of a Black prime minister (or president or dictator), in Salisbury, disposing;

Common socio-political societies in Africa do not function. This the White Rhodesians know full well, since their own Central African Federation was the perfect example of their failure. It is true that minorities continue to live in certain of the emergent African countries—Whites and Indians in Kenya and Tanganyika, Whites in Zambia and the Congo. But these minorities have no way of ensuring a life of their own; and though they may go on living where they are, they will at best be tolerated people. The White Rhodesians, with their long and successful record of government, their sense of nationality and their relatively poweful resouces, have no intention of becoming a tolerated people. Come what may, they will insist on the right to a life of their own.

Such are the real considerations, and the negotiations between London and Salisbury have failed because they have not been taken into account. London and Salisbury share the blame. Mr. Wilson, like his predecessors, has been quite unable to place himself in the position of the White Rhodesian, and Mr. Smith has declared himself in favor of the principle of progress to majority rule while continually trying to evade its practical implications.

A long-term settlement requires radical re-thinking; and when the realities are reckoned with, what options remain? In our view there are two, and in each case the point of departure is self-determination. Self-determination concerns people and not countries, and the question to be asked is not so much how Rhodesia should be governed but how the Whites and Blacks in Rhodesia will be enabled, respectively, to determine a life of their own.

No Insult

Go Fly A Kite

In India, one very old master kite-maker and flyer has, according to a friend, "a great power in his eyes. From looking into the sky for so long, he can see the stars in the day."

A ninth-century Buddhist monk, tired and happy after a day of kite flying on Mount Fuji, penned a short poem: "My kite rises to the celestial regions. My soul enters the abode of bliss."

A Florida water sider, pulled aloft by a giant kite, claims that in trying to get safely back to the water — the tricky part — he heard mysterious voices telling him not to fly again. He hasn't.

The lure of the kite has reached Washington, the National Geographic Society says. The Smithsonian Institution held its first kite festival on the four Saturdays of March. The event was climaxed with a grand flying of kites over the Mall between the U.S. Capitol and the Washington Monument.

Paul Garber, assistant director of the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum and a long-time kite enthusiast, said that men first built kites in the Orient some 2,500 years ago. The ancients were probably inspired by birds, leaves, and winged seeds.

Oriental kites often are built in the shape of birds, fish, dragons, insects, even people. Some kites are fitted with bamboo whistles that wail plaintively over the countryside.

Some 1,300 years ago, a Korean general flew a kite to help win a battle. An ill omen — a shooting star — had panicked his troops. The commander secretly sent up a torch-bearing kite to suggest to his men that the errant star was returning to its place. Next day, the troops soundly defeated superior forces.

No one knows exactly when Asian kites first reached Europe. Sea captains in the tea trade may have brought kites back from China.

In the western world, kites have often been used by scientists. In 1749, two Scotsmen fastened thermometers to kites to record temperatures of clouds. And everyone knows that with a kite and key, Benjamin Franklin tested his theory that lightning was a form of electricity.

An English pioneer in kite propulsion, George Pocock, in 1825 designed a carriage, called a charvolant, towed by two large kites that could do 30 miles an hour. The contraption had one major flaw: the lines often snagged in trees.

A decade before the Wright Brothers flew, Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, began experimenting with kites in his efforts to develop a heavier-than-air flying machine. Dr. Bell assembled kites of tetrahedrons, skeleton building units with four equal triangular sides. In December, 1907, a huge tetrahedral kite lifted Army Lieutenant Thomas Selfridge to 168 feet.

MP to Ask Wilson Leading Question Today

Was Jagan's Downfall Financed by CIA?

From London Sunday Times

In the House of Commons today, Prime Minister Harold Wilson faces a more than usually leading question. Stan Newens, a Labor Party member of parliament, will ask:

"Will the Prime Minister make a statement on his policy towards efforts which are being made by the United States Central Intelligence Agency and other United States intelligence organizations to infiltrate and influence organizations which function in British administered territories for purposes of subversion of law and order?"

As a booby trap, the question lacks finesse, and "No ... Sir" is the most likely, albeit ambiguous answer. But there is more to it than that. Although Newens himself appears to know nothing of the details, he is in fact hinting at a substantial case.

This is the downfall of the left-wing Cheddi Jagan government in the colony of British Guiana (now independent Guyana) in 1964. Inquiries by the London Sunday Times last week made it clear that this was engineered largely by the CIA.

The only cause for a certain amount of parliamentary unease would seem to be that this government happened to be in a British colony. And the cover which the CIA used was a London-based international trade union secretariat, the Public Services International.

As coups go, it was not expensive: Over five years the CIA paid out something over $700,000. For the colony, British Guiana, the result was about 170 dead, untold hundreds wounded, roughly $28,000,000 worth of damage to the economy and a legacy of racial bitterness.

British Guiana, perched on the northeast corner of South America, was never one of Britain's happiest colonies. When, in 1953, the first government was elected — under an Indian dentist, Cheddi Jagan — he and his wife, Janet, did seem a trifle left-wing, but the colonial office reasoned — correctly — that he had won not because of his politics but because of his race.

Race has always split the country: 300,000 Indians scattered mainly through the rural areas, 200,000 Africans clustering mainly in the townships, and about 100,000 polygot.

Jagan Meant What He Said

To Britain's intense surprise, Jagan meant his left-wing words. He moved against the foreign sugar companies — he lasted three months. Then the British government moved in to quell the uproar, flung out Jagan and stayed until 1957. Jagan, saying exactly the same things, won the 1957 elections too.

It began to dawn on everybody — most forcebly upon the Americans looking somewhat apprehensively southward — that only an upheaval would ever unseat him.

The gulf between the British and American attitudes to politics becomes starkly apparent at this point. In London they were vaguely thinking in terms of opposition coalitions. In Washington they were thinking in terms of upheavals. And there was an ideal tool to hand — the Guyanese trade union movement.

With 40,000 members cutting across all races and parties, the local trade union congress was an admirable ready-made opposition. Fortunately, the two dominating unions were already somewhat anti-Jagan. The Sugar Workers' Union had been dealing with the plantation owners quite successfully without interference from Jagan — and, anyway, though racially mixed, the union supported Forbes Burnham's African party.

The other power base, the Civil Servants' Union, was anti-Jagan primarily because few of its members were Indians. All that was needed was organization.

The Public Services International had been in contact with the Guyana civil service union since the early 1950s. It was one of the weaker and less prestigious of the various international networks which exist to export the union know-how of advanced industrial countries to less developed societies.

By 1958 its finances were low, and its stocks were low with its own parent body, the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions. It needed a success of some kind.

The financial crisis was resolved, quite suddenly, by the PSI's main American affiliate union, the Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees. Its boss, Dr. Arnold Zander had, he told the PSI executive, "been shopping," and had found a donor.

For Latin America, Said Donor

The spoils were modest at first — only several thousand dollars in 1958. It was, the kind donor had said, for Latin America. The money went towards a PSI "recruiting drive" in the northern countries of Latin America by one William J. Doherty Jr., a man with some previous acquaintance of the CIA.

The donor was presumably pleased, because next year, 1959, Zander was able to tell the PSI that his union was opening a full-time Latin-American section on the PSI's behalf. The PSI's representative, said Zander, would be Howard McCabe. McCabe, a stocky, bullet-headed American, appeared to have no previous union history, but the PSI liked him.

When he came to its meetings, he distributed cigarette lighters and photographs of himself doling out food parcels to peasants. The lighters and the parcels were both inscribed, "With the Compliments of the PSI."

The full ludicrousness of this situation appears not to have dawned on the PSI. Zander's union had about 210,000 members at that time, and a monthly income of about $1,680 — barely enough to cover its own expenses. Yet everyone in the PSI knew that the Latin-American operation must be costing every penny of $84,000 a year.

"We did not ask where the money came from," said the secretary of the PSI, Paul Tofarhan last week, "because I think we all knew."

Jagan finally precipitated his own downfall — seemingly working on the principle that if he did not fix the unions they would fix him.

The catelyst was a labor relations bill, modelled largely on the U.S. Wagner Act. It would have forced Guyanese employers to recognize whatever union the workers chose in a secret ballot. The catch was that, since Jagan could organize the polling areas, the balloting was wide open to government gerrymandering.

The general strike began in April, 1963. Jagan seems to have thought that the unions could hold out a month. It was an expensive miscalculation, and by the 10th week it was Jagan, not the unions, who was desperate.

McCabe Provided Bulk of Money

What Jagan had forgotten was the presence of a stocky, bullet-headed man tirelessly bashing a typewriter in the downtown Georgetown hotel that was the strike headquarters — Howard McCabe, the American representative of the Public Services International of London.

McCabe was providing the bulk of the strike pay. McCabe found the money for distress funds, and for the strikers' daily 15 minutes on the radio, and their propaganda, and considerable travelling expenses. All over the world, it seemed brother unions were clubbing together.

It was a touching vision, marred only by the fact that the PSI London office sent less than $5,000 to the strikers. Zander's "kind donor" was putting up nearly all the rest. The best estimate is that the kind donor produced at least $420,000, which reached McCabe from Zander's office.

Jagan was crushed by the longest general strike in history — 79 days.

To Colonial Secretary Duncan Sandys, the strike furnished the required proof that Jagan could not run the country. He used it to justify a remarkable constitution which, by splitting up Jagan's voters, made it inevitable that Jagan lose the 1964 elections to Burnham.

At the time Jagan — and a few of the British labor party — complained of CIA influence. But nobody could prove who Zander's "kind donor" was. Some kind of hint emerged later in 1964 when after a particularly rugged election Jerry Wurf ousted Zander from the American union's presidency.

"I went into the offices in Washington," Wurf recalls, "and there was this whole floor crawling with clerks and translators and all manner of people. I said: 'What's all that?' and they said: 'That's your international department.' 'Oh, yeah?' I said." Wurf took a dim view. He had all the locks changed on the doors one night — and the "international department" simply disappeared, as did McCabe.

In February, 1967, Zander confessed that his little union had been heavily financed by the CIA from 1958 to 1964. The "kind donor" was in fact an outfit called the Gotham Foundation — run from a small law office in New York by "a man with a funny sounding name" which Zander does not now recall.

The Gotham Foundation, now wound up in the CIA clean-up is acknowledged to have been a CIA front.

Congress Party Outlook Grim

'Cultural Revolution' Bodes Ill for Indira

By JOSEPH KRAFT From New Delhi

The full impact of India's recent general election is only now beginning to come home. And for Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and her ruling Congress Party the outlook is much blacker than it was on the morrow of the poll two months ago.

To understand why, it is necessary to make a political distinction that goes beyond the usual division of right versus left or even of central government versus the provinces. It is necessary to distinguish between this country's modern or elite culture and its traditional or mass culture.

The elite culture is typified by the high-caste English-educated Indians of easy circumstance. The mass culture is represented by the village peasant mindful only of the most parochial matters of economic and social advantage.

The Congress Party, being stuffed with products of the elite culture, has always had a problem in maintaining a mass following. And for several reasons the problem has sharpened in recent years.

For one thing the passage of the national leadership from Nehru through Shastri on to Nehru's daughter, Mrs. Gandhi, meant a decline in the popular appeal of the chief party figure. Secondly, the Congress Party was increasingly challenged by a group of splinter parties which pitched their programs directly to the different interests in the mass culture.

Thus the Swatantra Party stressed the free enterprise outlook so dear to small peasant landholders; the Communists echoed the grievances of the landless workers; and Jan Sangh Party emphasized the Hindu creed and tongue dominant in the villages of northern India; and the Dravidian Party stressed the Tamil language dominant around Madras.

In these conditions, the and more to depend upon a Congress Party came more and more to depend upon a group of local party bosses for communications between its elite membership and the masses.

But in the election this year the big losers were precisely the Congress Party bosses. Kamaraj, the big daddy of Indian politics, went down in Madras; Patil lost in Bombay; and Atulya Ghosh collapsed in Calcutta.

The result was not merely that Congress had its majority in the central parliament severely reduced while also losing control over seven of the 16 Indian states. Worse still, the chief line of communication between the elite of the party and the underlying population was broken.

★ ★ ★

With the Congress leadership thus cut off, second-string politicos in the party have been increasingly tempted to strike out for themselves. The other day a big bloc of congressmen in India's largest state, Uttar Pradesh, crossed the aisle to team with the opposition in forming a new government. The same thing took place earlier in the state of Haryana.

These examples have warned everybody that the desertion of only about 30 congressmen at the centre could put Mrs. Gandhi in the minority. In that atmosphere of unease even formalities such as the naming of a parliamentary speaker or a figurehead president turn out to be difficult operations. And doing something about the food distribution problem is virtually impossible.

Against this decisive weakening of the Indian political centre there is one potential offset. There has been set in motion the end of a system which gave power to an elite wholly divorced from the rest of the country.

At long last the suffering masses of this country have found an entree to political life. The Congress Party will either have to strike new roots or disintegrate. For the country as a whole is in midpassage between a Brahmin past that could not endure and a future dominated by plain men.

New Heart Drug Promises Hope

By HARRY NELSON, from San Francisco

A new drug which reduces the amount of fats in the blood appears safe and causes changes which give promise of prolonging the life of heart attack-prone people, a University of Pennsylvania physician reports.

The drug, which will be released for general use on May 1, produced a rapid fall in cholesterol levels in the great majority of patients tested to date, Dr. Garfield G. Duncan told an American College of Physicians meeting here.

Dr. Duncan's study involved 26 patients who were closely followed for two years. Other tests done primarily in England have been under way for six years and also indicate the effectiveness of the drug, he said.

The greatest cholesterol level reduction among Dr. Duncan's patients was 367 units—from 579 to 212. A cholesterol level between 220 and 275 is generally considered to be normal. The average cholesterol drop among the 26 patients was 138 units.

Numerous studies have indicated that proneness toward heart disease is very closely associated with an above-normal cholesterol level.

The name of the drug is Ethyl Chlorophenoxyisobutyrate. It will be marketed under the trade name Clofibrate, or CPIB.

★ ★ ★

Within the past three or four years, two other cholesterol-lowering drugs have shown initial promise and later were withdrawn following the appearance of undesirable side-effects.

Dr. Duncan said the drug produced complete relief from attacks of angina pectoris in one woman whose cholesterol level was reduced after exceeding 1,000.

To test whether the drug was responsible, he took her off medication. Within one month, the cholesterol level rose strikingly and within three months the angina had returned, he said.

Nine of 10 of Dr. Duncan's patients with advanced heart disease said they felt better and were able to increase their exercise. Seven returned to normal activities.

Michener Melts Ice

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Governor-General Michener and his wife are unpacking and settling into Rideau Hall, the many-roomed mansion that is home for at least five years.

After their installation Monday as Canada's new vice-regal couple, they received a stream of visitors, political leaders and household help, who will populate their lives at Rideau Hall.

Among their visitors were Tory leader John Diefenbaker and Mrs. Diefenbaker.

This was seen by some as an ice-melting encounter, for there was supposed to be coldness between Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Michener since the governor-general's days as Speaker of the Commons.

The 20-minute meeting was cordial and private.

The couple also met 20 members of the household and wives, and have still to see the people who run the kitchens and the greenhouses and the rest of the staff.

A spokesman said the governor-general was taking it easy after the crowded day of ceremonies.

Mr. Michener, who is 67 Wednesday, was installed as Canada's 20th governor-general with the pomp and style of the ages.

It was a bitterly cold day, keeping the crowds indoors, but the vice-regal couple gave an Oscar-winning performance on their first outing.

In Open Landau

Sitting in an open landau, too brave to pull the bearskin rugs around them as the temperature dropped below 40 degrees, they managed comfortable smiles.

Speaking easily in English and French, Mr. Michener accepted his new office with a short speech emphasizing his feeling of respect for Quebec's achievements.

"We now see in French Canada a renaissance of that creative vigor and intellectual brilliance which have long been the mark of French civilization.

"All Canadians may well take pride in the achievements which are taking place in Quebec, for they will stimulate and strengthen Canada as a whole."

He said he and his wife Norah plan to spend part of each year in residence at The Citadel in Quebec City.

He also said they intend to follow in the footsteps of their two Canadian predecessors — the late Gen. Georges Vanier and Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey — and visit all parts of Canada.

A more immediate task is that of preparing for a series of state visitors due for Centennial celebrations.

The first will be Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, coming April 29 — two days after the governor-general officially opens Expo '67.

The state visits that will continue late into September may make a visit to The Citadel difficult this year.

Praising the Vaniers, the new governor-general said he and his wife are "greatly heartened by the thought that the governor-general has come to represent the Canadian people as a whole."

Loyalty Message

Prime Minister Pearson asked that his first official duty be to convey to the Queen "a message of loyalty and devotion from the Canadian people."

He hailed Mr. Michener as a man who "never sold the truth to serve the hour."

Mr. Pearson also made a light reference to the days when they played hockey together at Oxford University in 1919. They formed a doubles team in the Canadian open tennis championships in 1926 as well.

Mr. Michener is the third native Canadian to hold the office after a parade of 17 British noblemen.

He is a descendant of Loyalists who migrated west from Lincoln County, Ontario, to settle in what was part of the Northwest Territories. He was born in what now is Lacombe, Alta.

Already, the Michener era has meant changes — for example, his title will be "The Right Honorable" for life.

All former governors-general of Canada had the title only by virtue of being members of the British Privy Council.

Royal Greeting by RCMP

Swords Flash in Salute

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor-General Roland Michener received a royal salute from his personal escort of the RCMP Monday before stepping inside Government House and holding his first vice-regal reception.

Mr. and Mrs. Michener drove in their new official residence in the open state landau behind a mounted escort of the RCMP, with pennants flying from their lances and the Queen's guidon, the equivalent of a regimental color.

As the escort and landau moved up the winding roadway to the main entrance of Government House, a handful of gardeners stopped work and removed their hats.

The escort wheeled sharply to the right as the landau arrived under the porte - cochere. Outriders jumped quickly to open the doors and assist Governor-General and Mrs. Michener from the carriage.

Mr. Michener then went to the policeman on the lead mount, to thank the governor-general's troop for the drive from the installation ceremony on Parliament Hill.

"It is quite as experience — quite regally done," he said.

Mrs. Michener went inside, and as the governor-general returned to the main door, an RCMP officer gave the command, "royal salute — present arms."

The Mounties raised their lances, and officers saluted with their swords while a bugler played the salute. Mr. Michener took off his top hat, bowed slightly and went inside.

A few minutes later, Prime Minister Pearson and members of his cabinet arrived for a brief, private reception. Later the new governor-general and his ministers went to the Government House ballroom for pictures.

Premiers All Missing

OTTAWA (CP)—The lieutenant-governors of five provinces did not attend the installation of Governor - General Michener. Nor did any provincial premiers attend.

The vice-regal representatives of New Brunswick, Quebec, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia sent their regrets.

The lieutenant - governors of Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Ontario, Prince Edward Island and Manitoba were present.

Protocol requires that all persons on the official table of precedence — which includes lieutenant-governors and premiers—be invited but not that they all attend.

'We Remember Well'

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson paid tribute Monday to the non-partisan way in which Canada's new governor-general, Roland Michener, served as Speaker of the Commons from 1957 to 1962.

"We remember well your distinguished performance when you occupied the chair in that other place and 'never sold the truth to serve the hour,'" the prime minister said at the installation ceremony of the new governor-general in the Senate chamber.

* * *

"Although tradition will now bar you from attending there, your reputation is secure as one of the very best of our 'first commoners,'" Mr. Pearson added, using the term by which Commons Speakers are traditionally known.

Mr. Michener was Conservative MP for Toronto St. Paul's before becoming Speaker. Through most of his tenure as Speaker, Mr. Pearson, at the head of a small band of Liberals, was Opposition leader.

* * *

He said the governor-general's two years of service as Canadian high commissioner, ended this month by the vice-regal appointment, were distinguished ones.

"At the same time you were Canadian ambassador to Nepal and in the clear light of the far Himalayas you may have seen your country, its problems and its future in a new and different perspective.

"Tennyson's words fit well your career: 'Much has he seen of men, manners, climates, councils, governments himself not least, but honored them all.'" to suspicions that the government would award them for political purposes.

In the case of the Order of Canada, nominations will be made to the governor-general by an advisory council composed of:

★ ★ ★

The Chief Justice of Canada, the clerk of the privy council, the under secretary of state, the chairman of the Canada Council, the president of the Royal Society of Canada, the president of the Association of Universities and Colleges.

Every country, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons, has such a system of awards.

"Recognition of this kind can strenghthen national pride and the appreciation of national service," he said.

The government had decided that there was need in Canada for such awards, and the centennial year seemed the logical time to introduce them.

Any such system, he added, would be "distinctly Canadian, and include no titles nor confer any special privileges, hereditary or otherwise."

The motto of the order is Centennial year, but only 25 in Desiderantes Meliorem Patriam, which means They Desire a Better Country.

There will be three degrees in the award.

● The first is Companion of the Order, awarded on the basis of merit — "especially service to Canada or to humanity at large."

Fifty can be appointed in any other year. The maximum membership is 150, and the principal Companion, the Chancellor of the order, will be the governor-general.

In appearance, it is a maple leaf without a ring, superimposed on a white snowflake. It is made of gold. The ribbon is red and white.

● The second medal is for courage, for a person who "performs an act of conspicuous courage in circumstances of great danger."

There is no fixed number of awards in this category.

● The third medal is for service, not more than 50 to be awarded in any year.

Prime Minister Pearson said any person or organization is invited at any time to suggest people for the award.

The suggestions should be sent directly to the secretary to the governor-general, at Government House in Ottawa, who will act as secretary to the advisory council.

★ ★ ★

The three awards, Mr. Pearson said, would fill a need in Canada's national life.

The recipients will be entitled to initials after their names — CC for a Companion of the Order, CM for a medal of courage, and SM for a service medal.

The arrival of Canada's own system of honors was generally accepted by the opposition.

King, he said, "rushed over to the United Kingdom (in 1943), he saw the King, he asked for the establishment of the Canada Medal.

"There was a great rush. It had to be done at once. Five copies were struck. Today they have become numismatic curios. Where they are, we do not know."

Market Review

Motors in Top Gear

Prices rose from the start and motors took a leading part. This was a belated response to last week's news that in early April auto sales had turned upward.

Glamor stocks as well as many other bread-and-butter issues in the category of market wheelhorses moved up, as they had on Friday.

Chrysler was the most active stock, up 2 at 41⅞. Ford, up 1⅛, was third most active and General Motors, up 1⅝, was eighth in turnover.

Barlone Higher

VANCOUVER — Bralorne strengthened .20 to 1.85 and a similar gain took Brenda to 6.40. Coast Copper was strong at 9.65.

On the weak side were Western Mines at 4.15 and Pyramid at 3.70. Bata was off .04 at 2.23. Industrials were dull.

Denison Climbs

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was higher on all fronts.

Industrials moved steadily upward with Bank of Montreal gaining ¼ to 67¼, CSL ½ to 33, General Motors 2 to 86 and Interprovincial Pipe Line ½ to 101¼.

Denison rose ½ to a 1967 high of 62¼, Rio Algom ¼ to 29½ and Hudson Bay dropped ⅝ to 67 in base metal activity.

Papers Strengthen

MONTREAL (CP) — The market experienced an uncertain session and ended almost unchanged.

Moore Corp. led industrials higher with a late gain of ⅞ to 101⅝. Dominion Textile ended ½-point up at 25½ and Hudson Bay ⅝ to 18. Also up ⅝ were Labatt and Steinberg's A at 24⅝ and 20, respectively. Alcan gained ¼ to 33⅛ and Atlantic Sugar ⅛ to 10⅛, a new high.

Distillers-Seagrams was off ⅝ to 37⅛ and Molson A ⅛ to 24 among a group of lower industrials.

Algoma was ⅝ higher at 24⅝ and Dominion Foundries ⅛ at 22 among the senior steels. In the senior mines section, Hollinger at 23⅝ was up ⅝.

Pacific Pete advanced ½ to 13⅛ and B-A ¼ to 35 among the senior oils.

Shipping Firm Troubled

By HARRY YOUNG, Business Editor

Remedial Steps Taken

Victoria's third largest shipbuilding company, McKay-Cormack Ltd., has reported to shareholders of its parent company it is experiencing difficulties.

George Veres, president of the Kingston Street firm, says energetic steps are being taken to dispose of unproductive assets and all expense items are being vigorously scrutinized.

Some of McKay Cormack's larger contracts have not been profitable, due in some measure to labor difficulties with which the company says it has been plagued.

"Your directors are taking steps to ensure that henceforth no work, large or small, is undertaken unless there is a definite assurance of adequate profit," says the report.

Mr. Veres said the difficulties have not been made easier by abnormally poor herring catches on the coast. As a result, the company fishing vessel Pacific Venture has failed to produce any return although it now is on charter to the federal fisheries department and other charters are being sought.

Shares of McKay Cormack are held by McKay Cormack Holdings Ltd., of which E. C. Warner is president. D. J. Lawson of Victoria until recently acted as secretary, but he said Monday he had resigned from the company.

By Personal Letter

McKay-Cormack Holdings was taken over by Ernie Warner, the Victoria financier with the "Midas touch," when he turned it into a public company in 1963.

He made the offering of the first public shares to his friends by personal letter, explaining he had acquired the old-established shipyard by buying the interests of its British owners.

The shares were sold in a $10 package which consisted of one A preferred share and one B share. The A shares were entitled to 60 cents dividend a year, but only 30 cents was paid in 1964 and 15 cents in 1965, and since then none. No dividends have been paid on the B stock.

The company also owes $200,000 to Mr. Warner as a six-per-cent demand debenture due March 1, 1970. It is secured by a second floating charge on the company's assets. The first charge is a bank loan of $200,000.

No bids are being made for McKay-Cormack on the Vancouver Stock Exchange, which showed Monday the the B was offered at $1 and the A at $3.

Congratulations to Ossie MacDonald, president of Cowichan Copper, for quoting Shakespeare in his annual report to shareholders:

"Sweet are the uses of adversity
Which like the toad, ugly and venomous,
Wears yet a precious jewel
in its head."

The Cowichan president hopes his company's adversities now are in the past and the new arrangements reactivating the Sunro mine at Jordan River will prove successful.

E. C. Dobell, a shareholder and secretary-treasurer of the company, has advanced 90 per cent of the money required for rehabilitation. The Cowichan deficit at Dec. 31, 1966, was $2,258,169.

Mr. McDonald said operations are limited in scale and not likely to rise higher than 700 to 800 tons a day in the first half of the year, but the company now is paying its way and a profit is expected for April as tonnage and efficiency increase.

A. R. Williams—the materials handling people

We sell materials handling equipment – namely CLARK industrial trucks. We've been in the business a good many years, so we know what it's all about. To put it simply, we sell things that move things. Our team has been together for quite a while and we've made quite a name for ourselves. That's because we don't just sell machines – we sell the whole concept of modern materials handling. We sell the most efficient and most economical means of moving things from one place to another, and we back it all up with a Parts and Service organization that is second to none. If your business involves moving materials, we should get together. We both stand to gain from the association.

One Visiting Diplomat Really Red Spy Chief

WASHINGTON (LAT) — Why are two Soviet "diplomats," one known to be a top-ranked intelligence officer, visiting the U.S. until May 2 on temporary 35-day visas issued by the state department?

If the department knows the answer, its spokesman, Robert McCloskey, wasn't saying Monday when questioned about Soviet visitors using the names of Vasily Vladimirovich Kuznetsov and Nikolay Federovich Vinogradov.

Another government source said the man granted a visa as "Kuznetsov" is actually Gen. Vasiliy Mozshechkov, described as a division chief in the KGB, the Soviet intellignece agency, and of whom no details are available on the public record.

Reports circulating elsewhere in the government said the two have visited for three weeks in New York and Washington. They are said to have been kept under constant surveillance by federal agents.

No one conversant with the facts would shed any light on the nature of the mission. However, one source volunteered speculation that the two Russians were interested principally in activities within Soviet installations here.

McCloskey said the visit was set up when the Soviet foreign ministry applied in mid-March for visas for the two men, who were to be temporarily assigned to the Soviet embassy in Washington. They were to travel on diplomatic passports, he said.

COVER NAME

McCloskey said he did not know the titles which either visitor held in the Soviet Union. But he said both men were known to the U.S. embassy in Moscow by the names under which the visas were issued. The comment left the inference that Mozshechkov works under a cover name in Russia as well as in the U.S.

McCloskey declined comment when asked if members of the KGB are normally granted visas.

Sell Canadian Goods

Export Drive Opened

MONTREAL (CP) — Trade Minister Winters Monday opened a seven-week trade promotion drive by declaring expanded exports are needed now to take up the slack in domestic business.

* * *

Addressing a luncheon inaugurating Operation Export, Mr. Winters said greater emphasis must be put on selling Canadian goods on export markets in order to employ the expanding labor force of Canada and make full use of all the country's productive resources.

During the operation, more than 60 federal government trade commissioners normally stationed abroad will hold interviews across Canada with businessmen interested in getting into the export business.

"Never was the expansion of our exports more important than right now," Mr. Winters said.

"Following several years of exceptionally rapid growth in Canada, internal demand pressures now have moderated to a level more in line with our long-run capacity.

"But this does not permit us to relax our export efforts. On the contrary, reduced domestic demand not only makes way for greater attention to foreign sales, but it also means greater reliance must be placed on our export industries' ability to provide the growth impetus needed."

* * *

Canadian exports passed the $10,000,000,000 mark for the first time in 1966, and the government has set a target of $11,250,000,000 for this year.

Failure Threatens

Pessimism Marks Kennedy Round

GENEVA (LAT)—In a mood of deepening pessimism, the chief U.S. negotiators in the Kennedy Round made a quick visit to Brussels Monday to warn that the tariff talks face failure unless the Common Market negotiators markedly improve their offers.

Last week the six Common Market foreign ministers hammered out a new package of Kennedy Round offers at their Brussels headquarters, and departed believing they had enhanced the prospects for success in the General Agreement on Trade and Tariff talks in Geneva. But the reaction here has been almost completely the opposite and is by no means confined to the American delegation.

REVIEW STAND

In the face of the latest offers from the six, the Scandinavians, the British, Canadians and Japanese are all now reviewing their own offers, and are now ready to start withdrawing, reducing or otherwise cutting back the concessions which they have been prepared to make unless the Common Market comes up with something more positive when the "crunch sessions" resume here Wednesday. The American delegation is prepared to do the same.

In this atmosphere, U.S. representatives flew to Brussels Monday to warn sternly that the Common Market offers are not merely disappointing but are completely inadequate and in some cases represent a hardening or worsening of the bargaining positions.

At a minimum, the Kennedy Round is now in danger of being watered down drastically to a series of relatively small tariff cuts over a small area of trade.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Shipyard Men End Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Some 1,800 shipyard workers returned to their jobs Monday in Sorel, Que., but 1,200 others at Montreal's Canadian Vickers Ltd. have voted to reject an offer of mediation in their walkout which started two weeks ago.

The Sorel workers, employed at the Marine Industries Ltd. shipyards, had been on strike for four days. They voted to return and promised the company they would remain on their jobs, at least until the end of the conciliation period, May 29.

They have been demanding wage parity with workers on the West Coast, or better.

But something more than ordinary highway vehicles is needed to get this B.C. Telephone Company district repairman around his McBride service territory.

Ernie Martin was a young man in search of a new life when he left his native Switzerland. His father and his grandfather and many of his relatives were bakers, but he had no desire to follow in their footsteps.

He chose a new country in which to find a new career and came to Canada as an immigrant under contract to work on a farm. On arrival, he went straight to McBride.

That was in 1950. Ernie knew little of McBride then and McBride, a tiny village 147 miles east of Prince George, knew even less of him.

All-Around Telephone Man

Time brings change. Ernie Martin found his career in the telephone industry after trying his hand at several occupations in farming, lumbering and railroading during his first years in his new home. McBride's population has nearly doubled since then to its present 800. And the community and Ernie have come to know each other intimately.

Today, Ernie Martin is the B.C. Telephone Company's district repairman at McBride, one of 44 such all-around telephone men who serve in smaller communities throughout British Columbia.

In this capacity, he enters the homes and businesses of residents of McBride and vicinity to install their telephones. He also repairs these telephones when necessary and maintains both the lines and the automatic exchange switching equipment through which they are linked. He puts radio telephones into their camps and their vehicles and he maintains these phones along with the central antennas through which they work.

Like other telephone men in many parts of British Columbia, he's still found frequently on snowshoes during his winter-time line work. But his days of horseback and railroad speeder patrols are gone now.

Ernie became a telephone man in 1957 as a part-time employee hired to maintain the first telephone exchange in McBride. Within a year, his job was full-time and gradually, as the village and telephone service grew, he acquired more responsibilities and greater skills, learning as he worked, first through book studies and later through special company training programs.

They Know Him Well

Gradually, too, he became more and more a part of the life in the community, where today he greets by first name nearly every one of the more than 400 telephone customers he serves directly.

McBride knows Ernie Martin well today—perhaps as the village commissioner responsible for the water works, or as a hospital board member, or chamber of commerce vice-president, or Robson Valley Television Association secretary, or as volunteer fireman. He is all of these.

He also is McBride's telephone man, a short, jolly individual with freckled face and red hair who wears thick, horned-rimmed glasses and speaks with his customers in English, French, German or Italian as the occasion warrants.

He is one of more than 7,200 B.C. Telephone people, each one of them as important to his or her community as Ernie Martin is to McBride. All play essential roles in maintaining, operating and expanding the company's $480 million communications network to provide British Columbians with telephone service so vital today.

THE MARTINS HAVE EXPANDED

Ernie Martin was born 38 years ago in Liestal, Switzerland and grew up in Basel. He was 21 when he came to Canada and settled in McBride.

Three years later, he sent for his fiancee, Ines, who left her native Mulhouse, Alsace-Lorraine in France to come to McBride.

In January, 1953, when snow was piled high in the streets and the temperature was below zero, they were married.

Together they have met the challenge of establishing a new life in their adopted country, where they became citizens in 1958, and together they are raising five new citizens of McBride, four sons and one daughter.

Howard Battler For Objectives

By JOHN SHORT
Canadian Press

Controversy is no stranger to Frank Howard, New Democratic Party member of Parliament who said Sunday he once served 16 months in the British Columbia penitentiary for armed robbery.

Since his election to the House of Commons in 1967, he has fought verbally with several members of rival parties.

Suspended

He became only the third member of Parliament in Canada's history to be named and suspended. He missed four hours of the day's sitting after an overwhelming vote of 149 to 7.

Five years later, he told the Liberal citizenship and immigration minister, J. W. Pickersgill:

"You are not telling the truth, Jack"

Mr. Howard, a former union leader, apologized when asked to do so by Speaker Lucien Lamoureaux.

A former president of the 5,000-member Local 1-71 of the International Woodworkers of America, Mr. Howard made headlines several times while fighting for penal reform — something he now admits was based on his own experiences — and divorce reform.

Blockade Wins

He collaborated with another NDP member—Arnold Peters of Timiskaming, in a successful blockade of private bills for Quebec divorces. The pair argued for an end to the "degrading practice" of shoving divorce cases through the Commons.

The battle ended in victory after two hectic sessions. The Commons no longer handles individual divorce actions.

Mr. Howard, raised in Kimberley, B.C., a city of about 6,000 in the East Kootenay district near the B.C.-Alberta border, became president of the IWA local in 1950 and represented the NDP in the 'Skeena riding two years later in a provincial election. He lost in that election but was successful in 1953 and held the seat until a 1956 defeat. The following year, he resigned as head of Local 1-71 and was elected to the House of Commons.

Four Victories

He was successful in four later elections.

He has been the target of criticism for less important matters.

Mr. Howard was turned away from the parliamentary restaurant for his casual dress in 1961 and later appeared at a House committee meeting in an open-necked sports shirt and blue jeans while his associates wore business suits.

'No Bearing'

Last year Mr. Pickersgill received complaints that there were no federal regulations to ensure safe manning of Great Lakes vessels. The minister replied that progress would be speeded by dealing with facts rather than allegations.

After Mr. Howard charged that the transport minister was not telling the truth, Speaker Lamoureux said the westerner was abusing the rules.

"I'll comply with the rules but it has no bearing on the facts as I know them," Mr. Howard said.

The aggressive NDP member is likely to continue unsettling his opponents. His criminal record cannot be used to force him to resign his seat, experts say.

Indignant Griffith hits deck

Italy's Nifty Nino Rambles To Sparkling Title Victory

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Nino Benvenuti, the handsome darling of sunny Italy, won the world middleweight boxing championship Monday night from Emile Griffith on a unanimous decision in an action-packed 15-round match.

Spurred by the constant chants of "Neeno, Neeno" from the Italian partisans in packed Madison Square Garden, Benvenuti made a joke of the 13-5 odds favoring the defending champ.

Floored for the compulsory eight-count in the fourth, after he had dropped Griffith in the second, the stylish Italian showed a dazzling variety of punches on the way to his decisive upset.

While countrymen waved tiny Italian flags and shouted, Benvenuti hit Griffith with every punch in the book. He outsped the man who had won eight straight title bouts in the welter and middle classes.

The announcement of the decision touched off a wild scene in the ancient Garden ring. Nino was raised on the shoulders of his corner men and an Italian flag was waved in the air. The decision was greeted with a roar of approval by the big crowd.

GETS WIDE MARGIN

Both referee Mark Conn and judge Leo Birnbaum scored it 10-5 for Benvenuti. Judge Al Berl scored it 9-6. The Associated Press was 10-5 for the new champion.

It was a bruising, punishing brawl with the speedy Italian controlling the action most of the way with his quck left hook, uppercut and solid right hand punches to the head.

The ring was a swarming mass with the Garden police unable to control the action for a few wild minutes as countrymen tried to congratulate the new champ. They climbed on the ropes, until a crew of special police were able to whistle them out of their frenzy.

It was the 72nd victory to one defeat for Benvenuti, who won the Olympic welter crown in 1960. In the end, he, not Cassius Clay, was voted the outstanding boxer of the Games.

Griffith came out of the fight with lumps under both eyes. His left eye was almost closed at the finish. The winner was scratched on the bridge of the nose in the second and was gashed on the nose in the seventh.

Dr. Harry Kleiman of the New York State Athletic Commission came into the ring to examine the cut on Benvenuti's nose after the ninth.

Griffith was unable to get inside.

Wheh he seemed to zero in on target in the eighth, ninth and tenth, Benvenuti suddenly got a second wind. The new champ closed with a rush and controlled the action down the stretch.

Emile got up at four.

It was at the one-minute mark of the fourth that Griffith, 153½, threw a long right to the side of Benvenuti's head. The Italian sagged into the ropes, slid to the canvas and bounced up at five.

The bout, which is sure to have a rematch, drew 14,251 fans who paid $141,799. It also was seen on 80 television stations with the New York area blacked out.

Griffith now with a record of 52-8, got about $90,000 from the fight and the new champ about $30,000.

Mikita Doubtful Leafs Have Edge

TORONTO — Toronto Maple Leafs, 8-5 favorites to end their Stanley Cup semi-final in tonight's sixth game, have that lean and hungry look and Chicago Black Hawks are worried about the condition of all-star centre Stan Mikita.

Mikita pulled a leg muscle in Saturday's game in Chicago and was unable to take part in a skating session on Sunday.

Today's National Hockey League Stanley Cup semi-final game between Chicago and Toronto at Toronto can be seen on Channels 2 and 6 starting at 5 p.m.

"It looks as if he isn't going to make it," Chicago coach Billy Reay said yesterday.

Mikita is in Toronto with the Hawks, who trail the best-of seven series, 2-3, and Reay added that, "We'll hope for the best."

Reay was informed that goalkeeper Glenn Hall, who stopped a puck with his lower lip in the fourth game, would be ready to play tonight. But he didn't state whether Hall or Denis DeJordy would be in the nets.

It is expected that leftwinger Doug Mohns, who has missed one game of the playoffs and has a back condition which makes his status doubtful for each game, would be able to play.

Meanwhile, confidence was everywhere as the Leafs went through a rugged 90-minute workout yesterday. Coach Punch Imlach was ebullient, centre Dave Keon was flying, captain George Armstrong appeared ready to play again after missing the last three games and goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk even cracked the odd smile.

Armstrong was asked about his right knee, injured when he was decked by Bobby Hull in the second game.

"Don't ask me, ask the coach," he answered. "He knows more about it than I do but it feels okay."

"If he can skate he'll be on the bench," Imlach chimed in. "He's the captain and we need him out there."

Dodgers Minus Sandy Hardly Threat of Old

They still have 158 games left to play but it's the concensus after four games that the Los Angeles Dodgers don't look like much without Sandy Koufax.

The defending National League champions, rolled over in four games by Baltimore Orioles in the world series, have still to win. In fact, they haven't come close to winning with even Don Drysdale failing them on Sunday, when they lost their fourth, 4-1, to Atlanta Braves.

There hasn't been much change in the Dodger attack, which used to be built around a base on balls, a steal by Maury Wills, an infield out and an outfield fly.

PITCHING SAD

Dodgers have made 37 hits and scored 10 runs in their four games, which is about par. But their pitching staff has given up 47 hits and 31 runs and not until Drysdale did it Sunday did any starting pitcher survive the fifth inning. And Drysdale didn't get by the sixth.

It has left the Dodgers the only winless team in the major leagues, already four games behind the unbeaten St. Louis Cardinals.

Also having early troubles are Pittsburgh Pirates, consensus choice for the National League pennant.

Playing in the only game which wasn't weathered out yesterday, the Pirates took a 9-6 defeat from the New York Mets for their fourth setback in six games.

Making it sting a bit more, ex-Pirate Don Cardwell hit a two-run homer for the Mets and lasted until the eighth inning to get credit for the victory.

On Sunday, the fourth Dodger defeat shared the spotlight with a one-hit pitching performance by Baltimore's Steve Barber and two marathon American League games.

Barber had a no-hitter going until Jim Fregosi doubled with one out in the ninth inning and wound up with a 3-0 win over California Angels.

New York Yankees won the season's longest game, defeating Boston Red Sox, 7-6, when Joe Pepitone hit an 18th-inning single. Chicago White Sox completed a doubleheader sweep of Washington Senators when Jerry Adair drew a bases-loaded walk in the 16th inning.

University of Victoria Norsemen finished all alone in first place in the Victoria District Soccer League second division Sunday when London Boxing Club held Victoria West to a 1-1 draw.

Wests needed a victory to catch the Norsemen but the third place Boxers earned their point in the hard-fought match which brought regular season play to an end.

O'Keefes Await Tie-Breaker

VANCOUVER (CP)—Burnaby Villa and St. Andrews played to a 1-1 tie in Pacific Coast Soccer League action Monday night—the last regular league game of the season.

The result left Burnaby in a tie with New Westminster Royals for sixth place in the eight-team league. St. Andrews remained deep in the cellar 10 points behind the sixth-place pair.

Firefighters and North Shore who tied for third place in the final standings will meet Wednesday to decide which winds up in third and which in fourth. The game is necessary to determine playoff schedules.

Wednesday's winner will meet second-place Columbus in one playoff semi-final while the loser will tackle league champion Victoria in the other.

Pistol Men Qualify

Two Victoria area marksmen have qualified for the final trials in pistol shooting for the Canadian team to compete in the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg this summer.

The chairman of the International Shooting Committee has announced that Quinton Mar, 1966 National outdoor Pistol champion, and Bruce McDonald of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment at Colwood are still in the running.

Speaking Briefly

Scotty Won't Cancel Fine But Owners Should Clam Up

TORONTO (CP)—Scotty Morrison, referee-in-chief of the National Hockey League, lashed back Monday at suggestions that the league does not back its officials.

"I'm sick and tired of hearing stories that these guys don't get any support and suggestions that the league should do more for them.

"We have done more this year for our officials than ever before and we'll stand beside them through any criticism. Officials this year received higher playoff increases, better pension benefits and more guaranteed bonuses."

Morrison was speaking at a news conference he called after announcing Sunday that NHL referee Vern Buffey will be fined for publicly replying to criticism from Bill Jennings, president of New York Rangers.

Jennings was upset over the work of Ashley in an April 1 contest between the Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs — a game that could have decided second place in the NHL. Jennings was quoted as calling Ashley a "bush-leaguer" and "incompetent."

BUFFEY REPLIED

In his rebuttal, Buffey said: "It is ridiculous that Jennings can rap officials like he does. How dare he brand an official such as Ashley a bush-leaguer and incompetent? Ashley has forgotten more about hockey than Jennings will ever know."

Morrison said the fine will be handled internally within the league and denounced suggestions that this showed the NHL does not support its referees publicly.

"We do back our officials. Clarence Campbell, president of the league, backs them all the way. These accusations, particularly from the owner level, do nothing whatsoever for the league."

Morrison said he agreed with Buffey's views, but disagreed with the way he publicly presented them.

"I agree that public abuse at the owner level must stop. But Buffey is not the man to stop it and he was disciplined because what he said was a breach of working conditions."

Alberni Booters Tops In Minor Soccer Meet

Up-Island teams maintained their slight edge in the Centennial edition of the Vancouver Island Juvenile Soccer Championships as each area picked up two wins in Sunday's four games.

Top award in the tournament went to the Division VI Alberni Valley Elks, whose team captain, Mike Olsen, received the trophy for the club showing the best sportsmanship combined with ability, from Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

Elks had defeated Gorge FC, 2-1, as the up-Islanders won two games, lost one and drew a fourth.

A total of 31 trophies, including one to Gorge division I player, Jack Clarkson, who was judged as the most sportsmanlike player in the city league by the players, were given out in addition to approximately 300 centennial medallions.

Billed as the feature game of the tournament, the division III game between Gorge FC and Nanaimo Brechin SC was just that.

George Hyne scored with just two minutes left to play to give the Victoria team a thrilling, 2-1, victory. Rick Lamoureux gave Gorge the early lead in the first half but Randy Adamson tied it up in the early minutes of the second half.

ROYALS TOO STRONG

The other Victoria area win on Sunday came in the division I match where Cosmopolitan Royals proved too strong for Nanaimo Harewood Skillings.

Royals won, 3-0, behind Bob Hammer's three goal effort. Lorne Bunyan added two goals and Billy Smith, Rudi Kuebler and Gord Gillett each scored once.

Southend Rotary of Nanaimo proved the better opportunists in the Division II match, defeating Lake Hill, 2-1, when a gust of wind lifted the ball over Victoria goalkeeper Ted Reading for the winning goal.

Daryl Hooker gave Lake Hill an early lead but Laurie Grey and Dwight Morris scored for Nanaimo as goalkeeper John Marshall stood up well under pressure.

Alberni Valley picked up its second title in the Division VIII match where Rick Lloyd's second half goal gave the Jaycees a 1-0 victory over Cordova Bay.

Louise Brown To Captain Tennis Team

TORONTO (CP) — Louise Brown of Port Crdeit, Ont., was named captain of Canada's Federation Cup women's tennis team for the sixth time Saturday.

Players named earlier to the team are Susan Butt of Victoria, ranked first in Canada; Vicki Berner of Vancouver and Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont.

The Fedreation Cup matches, two singles and one doubles, will be played in Berlin starting June 5.

Close Contests In Rifle Shoot

Williams tasted victory along with teammates Ernie Foulser, Ray McDougall and Colin Wyatt in the "A" class as the Victoria Fish and Game Club edged Burnaby, 1,089-1,081.

Nanaimo's Bob Ibbotson, He Caillet, Nick Mieras and Bob Nesbitt edged Campbell River, 961-959, in the "B" class team event.

Individual winners were Bill Crosby of Burnaby, McDougall and Jim Goguen of Victoria, Rick Langham of Campbell River and Dev Yates of Chemainus.

Victories Come Hard In Island Open Golf

Competition rarely is closer than the results of Sunday's championship round play in the Vancouver Island open golf tournament at Gorge Vale Golf Club.

Of the eight matches, only two were decided before the 18th hole.

Bob Hunt of Uplands mastered the windy conditions to breeze past Cowichan's Tom Reynolds, 6 and 4, in the most one-sided match of the day.

Laurie Kerr of Royal Colwood had the toughest time in reaching the quarter finals. Kerr had to win the last three holes to square his match with Upland's Claude Heggie and then won the match on the 20th hole.

Gorge Vale's Vince Clarkson also needed an extra hole to get past youthful Colwood star Ricky Kent.

Biggest upset of the day, which really wasn't an upset, came when Al MacLeod defeated former titlist, pro Bill Wakeham in an all-Gorge Vale match.

MacLeod has never been beaten by Wakeham in match play and took the duel on the 18th when the loser was unable to recover after hitting a trap on his second shot.

TRAPP ONLY PRO

Only pro remaining in the event is Victoria's Vaughan Trapp who defeated Cowichan veteran Gordie Whan on the 18th. Trapp, who tied for medalist honors with Dr. George Bigelow and Wakeham, was behind in the match until Whan three-putted the final two holes.

Also winning on the 18th were Victoria's Doug Munro over Mel Carlow of Gorge Vale and Cowichan's Brian Stott over George Murphy of Gorge Vale.

Won't Take Lives Says Clay As Latest Injunction Denied

CHICAGO (AP) — The United States Supreme Court delivered a blow to Cassius Clay's fight to stay out of the Army Monday and the heavyweight boxing champion countered by saying he would take any punishment rather than become a fighting soldier.

Clay said he would appear for scheduled induction April 28 in Houston "but I will stand up for my religious beliefs even if it means I am put in jail for 50 years or am stood up in front of machine guns."

* * *

With draft officials rejecting his pleas on grounds that he is a Black Muslim minister, Clay had filed various motions with the court to freeze his draft situation until the court can act on several constitutional arguments raised by him in lower courts.

In New York, his attorney, Hayden Covington, said, "I am disappointed, naturally, over the Supreme Court action. However, this is only the 10th round of a 15-round decision and I can tell you definitely there will be 15 rounds."

* * *

The attorneys claim the Selective Service Act gives the president and governors unconstitutional discretion "to make appointments of members of draft boards throughout the country in a manner that discriminates against Negroes contrary to the 5th Amendment to the United States Constitution."

In Chicago, Clay said:

"I will not take the lives of other persons or take part in war.

"Whatever sufferings I have to face are all for Allah."

Clay was asked if he would refuse his induction by not taking the oath.

"I'm not saying that, but I've made my decision and I will give it at that time. You can make your own conclusion when I say I will stand on my religious beliefs and will be ready to face any punishment in following them."

Olympic Hopefuls Face Tougher New Standards

VENICE, Italy (AP) — The International Amateur Athletic Federation's council Saturday told the world high jumpers that if they cannot clear seven feet they are not welcome in Mexico City for the 1968 Olympic Games.

The council set up a stringent list of standards in hopes of cutting down the number of athletes competing in the coming Games. It pointed out that similar standards, although less demanding, held down the number of competitors in Tokyo in 1964. However, there were more than 5,000 athletes there.

The council also approved an all-weather track for the Mexican games and said the track and field program would be completed in eight days instead of 10 as at Tokyo. The Mexico dates would be Oct. 13-20.

The existing Olympic rule which permits a country to send at least one entry for each event, no matter whether he meets the new standards or not, still holds.

Where tryouts are held to determine a national team, only those who equal or better the following times or distances may be brought to Mexico City:

1,500 metres — 3:42; 5000 metres — 13:50; 10,000 metres — 29.0; 3,000-metre steeplechase — 8:45.

Fans Flock to View Pro Soccer's Start

Professional soccer made its United States start on Sunday and the response to the five National Soccer League matches held out considerable promise for the future.

Biggest crowds showed up at Philadelphia, where soccer outdrew both professional baseball and basketball. There were 14,163 fans out to see the Spartons open the NSL season with a 2-0 win over Toronto Falcons.

By comparison, there were only 9,000 out to watch the Phillies in the National Baseball League and a similar number for the National Basketball Association final between the 76ers and San Francisco Warriors.

In Los Angeles, 9,048 fans were out as the Toros defeated New York Generals, 3-2; in Baltimore there were 8,434 customers to see the Bays—blank Atlanta Chiefs, 1-0, the televised game and there were 8,840 fans at Oakland, where California Clippers played to a 3-3 tie with Pittsburgh Phantoms.

In the other match, played in Chicago, the Spurs beat St. Louis Stars, 2-1.

Results didn't leave any tie for the league lead. The NSL has adopted a complicated form of figuring points for league standings in which victories count six points, draws count three points and all clubs get a point for each of the first three goals it scores in each game.

Los Angeles leads the Western Division with nine points, Chicago is second with eight. Philadelphia leads the Eastern Division with eight points and Baltimore is second with seven.

Barker Nabs Top Loot In Tourney

Barker finished second to Barry Stowe in the eight game qualifying round from which the top five of the 40 entries advanced to round-robin play.

Stowe led the qualifiers with 1,553 followed by Barker, 1,524, Doug Aune, 1,523, Pete Svetich and Don Shaw 1,506.

Svetich, from Courtnay, finished third after beating Shaw, 247-154, and Aune, 213-156, as his two opponents came up with costly splits.

Unflappable Beard Wins It

LAS VEGAS — Arnold Palmer came through with one of his most amazing charges in the last round of the Tournament of Champions on Sunday but was a helpless spectator when Frank Beard made it fall one stroke short.

Beard, a 27-year-old Louisville golfer who almost died in 1964 from a form of sleeping sickness, beat Palmer by one stroke when he rolled in a seven-foot putt for a birdie four on the last hole.

Palmer started the last round eight strokes behind Beard, who had led from the first day, but was in contention by the time Beard had teed off for his final round.

Palmer started by getting an eagle three on the first hole, then birdied the third, fourth and fifth to pick up five strokes on par on the first five holes.

He got two more birdies before the turn for a seven-under-par 29. That left Palmer five under par for the first 63 holes and tied with Beard, who was playing about five holes behind.

Palmer lost a stroke when he four-putted on the 14th hole but he promptly followed that with an eagle three on the 536-yard 15 hole. A tremendous wood shot off the fairway made in Palmer's go-for-broke fashion, left him with only a six-footer for his three.

AGAIN LEADS PACK

Beard won $20,000 and Palmer pocketed another $12,000 to again take the lead as the biggest money-winner of the year.

George Archer, who sort of sneaked into contention, had a last-round 68 for a 282 which won him third money of $8,000. Bobby Nichols, Doug Sanders and Jack Nicklaus, who faded badly on the last few holes, all finished at 284 to win $4,700 each.

Palmer went on to card a 35 on the back nine for a last-round 64 and a five-under-par 279 for the tournament.

Beard, knowing he needed a birdie on the last hole to avoid a playoff, took out his driver instead of the No. 2 iron as he had been using on the 540-yard 18th.

He belted out a long tee shot, left his second about 20 feet in front of the green, then chipped within seven feet. His putt appeared for a moment to be wide to the right but it caught the edge of the cup and dropped in.

"The drive won it for me," said Beard, who qualified by winning the New Orleans Open last year.

Shamrocks Get Boost As Key Pair Signed

Pre-season rumors habitually get spread at the start of any sports season but Victoria Shamrocks are glad to get the signatures of two players reported to be leaving the Inter-City Box Lacrosse League Club this year.

Signed for another season are standouts Billy Gray and Nirmal Dillon.

Gray is working in Vancouver and was reportedly seeking a transfer to the defending champion Coquitlam Adanacs. Big and tough with the ability to get the team rolling with inspirational play, he finished second in the league penalty race for the past two seasons, often taking the role of policeman for the Rocks.

Dillon, who added 27 points to his rookie-year total of 14 in his second season, is a speedy penalty killing specialist and the lightest player in the league. It was thought that he may have retired from lacrosse this year.

Also back for another season are Nirmal's brother Ranjit, top scorer for Rocks in his rookie year, and Ron Jay who tied Ranjit for the club lead with 29 goals.

Returning to the club after a one season absence are Ed Kowalyk, Jack Showers and Nanaimo's Larry Clarkson.

And of course, there's the 1966 league all-star goaltender and most-valuable player, Barry Forbes.

Shamrocks open the season at home next Wednesday against New Westminster. Admission for a single game will be $1.25 with 15-game season's tickets going for $15.

Diamond Claimer Scores Easy Win

Wilt Paces 76'ers Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Eastern Division champion Philadelphia 76ers, with giant Wilt Chamberlain sweeping the boards, rolled over San Francisco Warriors 126-95 Sunday.

Philadelphia now has a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship playoff.

Wests Bumped From Soccer Cup Scramble

VANCOUVER—Victoria Wests tumbled, 0-6, Sunday in Province Cup soccer quarter-final play to North Shore Luckies as Luckies and Columbus both won to make the semi-finals an all Pacific Coast League affair.

Luckies, defending cup champions, dominated play throughout, and had a 2-0 lead at the half. John Bruce had three goals for the winners while Don Hunter, Rusty Bruce and Ed Collins each scored once.

Condemned, Censured, or Both

Senate Probers Undecided In Case of Ethics

Dodd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Senate investigators have tentatively decided to recommend Sen. Thomas Dodd (D — Conn.) be condemned or censured, or possibly both, for misconduct, it was learned Monday.

The Senate ethics committee has narrowed its decision on how to punish the 59-year-old Democrat to these three options.

The committee held hearings on charges that Dodd diverted campaign funds for his own personal use, and ran errands for Julius Klein, a Chicago public relations man who represented West German businessmen.

One of the disagreements still unresolved is whether "condemn" or "censure" is stronger. It was indicated the panel has not decided which carries the greater impact.

MUST BE VOTED

There is a possibility the committee will vote both to condemn Dodd's actions and censure him. The committee's recommendations must be voted on by the Senate.

It was indicated the committee has decided not to recommend the Senate strip Dodd of his seniority, or to propose he pay a fine. The House committee which judged Adam Clayton Powell proposed both forms of punishment for the New York congressman.

Provinces Demand More Cash

OTTAWA (CP)—Demands for more federal money for provincial medical care insurance plans and fewer strings to the federal payments were voiced as a two-day meeting of health ministers began Monday.

They met with little enthusiasm from federal authorities.

Senior federal officials said the demands would destroy the incentive to keep costs down.

At the end of the day, however, Health Minister MacEachen said, "I still believe there is a strong possibility all the provinces will participate."

Surveyor Speeds to Moon

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Securely locked to the sun and the star Canopus for guidance, Surveyor III soared through space Monday on its way to scratch the surface of the moon.

The spacecraft, equipped with an arm-like excavating device, is due to land softly Wednesday. Its lunar target is in the Ocean of Storms, a spot chosen for the future landing of U.S. astronauts.

The hookup with Canopus was announced Monday by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at the California Institute of Technology, about nine hours after Surveyor III was launched from Cape Kennedy, Fla., at 2:05 a.m. EST.

An Atlas-Centaur rocket lifted the spacecraft, 10 feet tall, into space for its 237,000-mile journey, expected to take 65 hours.

Scheduled for midnight Monday night was a mid-course manoeuvre, a trajectory correction programmed because uncertainties in the launch operation normally prevent absolute accuracy in placing the moon-craft on a path leading precisely to the landing point.

Surveyor III and its shoveling arm comprise the most complicated moon device developed by the United States. It weighs 2,283 pounds and its excavator will dig into the moon's surface to explore its nature after the scheduled landing when a braking rocket is fired about 7 p.m. Wednesday.

This brake is designed to set Surveyor down softly on its tripod legs for at least two weeks of picture-taking and digging. Surveyor I, which returned 11,150 photographs after landing last June 2, was almost the same craft except that Surveyor III has two more mirrors and the shovel device.

The digger is a hand-sized scoop attached to an expandable arm controlled by radio signals. The scoop can bite as well as scrape, due to a lid that closes with a force twice as strong as the human jaw. This makes Surveyor III the first lunar device that can dig and, with its jaw, perhaps break up particles of the lunar surface.

Astronauts Share Safety Blame

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Olin Teague, (D—Tex.) said Monday that "everyone from top to bottom, including the astronauts," must share the blame for the Jan. 27 spacecraft fire that killed three Apollo astronauts.

Teague, chairman of the House subcommittee investigating the Cape Kennedy tragedy, called five astronauts to testify at a night session.

The hearing closed with space committee leaders expressing the hope that the U.S. "Will get on with the space program."

Teague said in an interview that the success of earlier U.S. space ventures had created a "false sense of security" among everyone connected with the program, including the astronauts.

James Webb, National Aeronautics and Space Administration chief, before a similar Senate hearing Monday, twice refused to say whether he had ever considered replacing North American Aviation, Inc., as prime Apollo contractor.

*A Volkswagen Custom costs $1,798. (Maximum Suggested Retail Price). F.O.B. Port of Entry

Spring is skipping out of the house and shifting for yourself. And a Volkswagen is a great car to shift in. (The four-speed stick shift lets you drive the car. Not vice versa. And helps save money on gas, too.)

Spring is following the siren sound of the open road. But drive carefully or the sirens will be following you. (Cruising speed in a VW is 78 miles an hour.)

Spring is getting off the beaten track and making tracks of your own. (You can drive right up to your picnic spot in a Volkswagen. It has the traction to go in mud and sand. And a torsion bar suspension that'll get you over the roughest bumps. No springs to be sprung.)

Spring is when money doesn't grow on trees. (With new clothes to buy and last year's taxes to pay, it's good to know that new Volkswagens start as low as $1798*.)

Courtroom Parade

Two days next month have been set aside for the preliminary hearing in central magistrate's court of a charge of capital murder laid against Orlando Trozzo.

Prosecutor Peter Birkett asked the court Monday to set May 1 and 2 for the hearing. He told Magistrate J. A. Byers the Crown would call at least 10 witnesses and Trozzo might require an interpreter.

Trozzo was represented in court by city lawyers Lloyd McKenzie and Ken Murphy.

Misbehaving Children

Parents Praise Police For Appeal on Cycles

Youthful cyclists caught riding double, riding no-hands or slipping through stop signs will receive warnings. Their parents will get letters.

The letters will point out the offence and appeal to the parents to ensure their children obey the traffic laws.

The letter says in part: "Rather than have your son appear in juvenile court charged with a delinquency, with the attendant inconvenience to your to appearing with him, we feel a warning of this nature should be sufficient."

Already the new approach has drawn the gratitude of parents who have called and written to the city's traffic division.

'Crossroads' School Vote Millions at Stake May 13

Greater Victoria ratepayers will be faced with the $13,930,234 question on May 13—to build or not to build, schools.

This is the amount the ratepayers will be asked to approve in two referendums in a move labelled by Greater Victoria Board of School Trustees (District 61) chairman Peter Bunn as crucial.

"The district may be said to be standing at a crossroads," said Mr. Bunn, following the school trustees' approval to put the matters to public vote.

"This is one of the most important steps ever taken by the district," superintendent Joseph Chell said. "We have just been keeping up with costs to date.

"Now we are aiming at facing the actual needs of the district, to provide the libraries, classrooms and schools to make sure we are, in fact, a first class school district."

Earlier in the board meeting, Mr. Chell had pointed out the district could squeeze by next year on the secondary level, but "in the elementary division we are in trouble."

Mr. Chell said portable classrooms would be the only answer to solve next school term's congestion, but "if portables are not available, the board will have to come to some other decision.

"In my thinking, I have not gone beyond portables, however."

Mr. Bunn said the school district officials would have to hump to get the referendums through as an order-in-council with ministerial approval and the signature of the Lieutenant-Governor in time for the election.

Mr. Bunn also stressed the necessity of every organization in the district, which comprises Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay, Saanich and some rural areas, getting behind the bond information program.

As approved by the board, the voters will be asked to approve one referendum in the amount of $13,187,450 and one in the amount of $742,784.

Grant Covers Half

The larger amount would be eligible for a provincial government grant for half the amount, or $6,593,725. The smaller amount would not be eligible for provincial government money, and would be borne by the taxpayer.

The money, if approved by the ratepayers, would be borrowed by the school trustees over a period of four years, and paid back in 20. It would be used for school site acquisition and development, and for purchasing, constructing or reconstructing buildings on existing sites.

The amount, originally estimated to be around $10,000,000, was increased after the provincial government relented on the construction of school auditoriums and gymnasiums.

School district secretary Thomas Christie said the mill rate would increase by 4.8 mills, setting the new school tax rate at 29.39 mills, compared with 24.59 last year.

In other action, the school board:

- Received and filed a letter from Mrs. Nan M. Bingham of 2363 Bowker, protesting the use of public funds for student parking areas;
- Agreed to discuss with the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterway Association the possible development of a shallow, muddy bay adjoining the Christie Point school site into parkland;
- Met Phillip Paul, a new member of the adult education program staff, who will determine the needs of the Indian community in education, and help frame a program for the greatest benefit to Indians;
- Named the district's newest school the Richmond Elementary School;
- Heard a short address by B.C. School District Trustees' Association president Frank Beinder of Trail, on the need for closer co-operation between trustees and teachers, and better rapport with the public.

'Demand Politically Inspired'

Municipal Finance Probe Unnecessary—Campbell

By BILL STAVDAL
Legislative Reporter

A royal commission into provincial-municipal finance is unnecessary. Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said Monday.

He challenged municipal leaders to come up with evidence of real need for a royal commission, argued that B.C. municipalities get a good deal already, and suggested that the probe demand was politically inspired.

Rising education costs have renewed old demands for the royal commission. Last week, Victoria's Mayor Hugh Stephen made the plea, and Saanich's Reeve Hugh Curtis said a municipal-provincial finance conference should be held.

ALREADY THERE

"The information which a royal commission would produce is currently available," Mr. Campbell said.

He pointed to an increase this year of direct grants to school districts of $14,100,000, or 16 per cent.

B.C. is far ahead of most provinces in the deal it gives its municipalities, said the minister. Some provinces are still trying to equalize their assessment rates, he observed.

He said in 1952, municipalities got 36 per cent of provincial revenue, while today the figure is 54 per cent.

"I know of no other province that transfers a majority of its funds to municipal jurisdiction," he said.

The province pays 90 per cent of welfare expenses, best deal in Canada, he maintained.

Mr. Campbell paid special attention to rising education costs. He gave comparative tax figures for the capital region municipalities in 1965 and today.

In 1965, the average home in Victoria was assessed at $4,900, he said. The school tax was $108, and the homeowner grant $100.

This year, the same homeowner will pay $132 school taxes, while the homeowner grant has risen to $120. The homeowner is thus paying $4 more, said Mr. Campbell.

"None of these figures indicates crisis," said Mr. Campbell.

"Apart from that, an independent body has already looked at education finance." He referred to a 1965 study of the B.C. School Trustees' Association, which concluded that B.C. had a good finance system, and that property taxation was an equitable way to raise money for schools.

Mr. Campbell suggested the Union of B.C. Municipalities might make a similar study.

He mentioned the Liberal party in passing, as he suggested the cries for a royal commission were politically motivated.

He also said in Greater Victoria "there is a great reluctance to consider amalgamation."

"They (the municipalities) should be encourgaed to clean their house in the matter of duplication of services," he said.

Students Prove Program

Water Yes, Pollution No

Prospect Lakers Bombard Saanich Council

By JOHN MATTERS

A barrage of letters urging that Prospect Lake be saved from the pollution that would follow arrival of piped water was read to Saanich council Monday night.

Ten "anti" letters said extension of the water supply to the area would only increase the volume of water used and result in critical pollution of Prospect Lake.

The general theme was that sewers should go to Prospect Lake before, or at the same time as piped water.

Councillors heard the letters after the public works committee recommended that water service to Sparton Road not be included in any extension to Prospect Lake, Westholme or Fairholme Roads.

GREATLY INCREASE

Coun. William Noel suggested that if a referendum is held on the water question in the Prospect Lake area, all people living on the lake have a vote.

A referendum which has been under consideration would not have included those owning 10-acre sites.

Municipal engineer Neville Life pointed out that taking water to such properties would greatly increase the costs.

"If a vote is taken, I want to know what all residents of the lake have to say," said Coun. Digby Kier. "I want to know whether all people on the lake want water or not."

Coun. Leslie Passmore said it was one thing to demand pure water but if sewers didn't come at the same time there will be increased pollution of the lake.

"Detergents will get through those septic tanks and into the lake," added Coun. Passmore. "People who want piped water will have to realize there'll be pollution unless there are sewers."

LOW HUNDREDS

Reeve Hugh Curtis wondered if a solution would be installation of chlorinators in the lakeside homes. Mr. Life indicated the price of such equipment to purify lake water would be in the "low hundreds of dollars."

Council decided to ask Mr. Life for a report on the comparative costs of separate water systems: one for the Prospect Lake district, the other for Fairholme and Westholme Roads.

Victoria Keeps Its Cool

Victorians are coming into an unwanted legacy these days, in the form of chilly air from the snowfields of the Yukon and the Alaska Panhandle, causing lower-than-average temperatures, clouds and some precipitation.

Department of transport forecaster at Gonzales Heights, Alan McQuarrie, said Monday the air is moving in a trajectory that brings it to Vancouver Island without having a chance to experience any of the warming influence of the Japanese current.

For the past several days, no air has been moving in from the south Pacific Ocean, either, making it chillier and chillier for Victorians.

Lake Maligned Says Tisdalle

A Sunday morning column printed in the Colonist forecasting that Prospect Lake might become B.C.'s largest septic tank was termed a "conglomeration of adulterated fiction" by Saanich MLA John Tisdalle, Monday night.

"The column reflected on the B.C. Health Act and on sanitary regulations being administered and I checked with the health department Monday to determine if there was any dereliction of duty in enforcing the act and the regulations.

"I was assured by the provincial health authorities that Sunday column misrepresented the facts," the MLA said.

Mr. Tisdalle said Metropolitan Health Board's senior medical officer J. L. M. Whitbread told him piped water into Prospect Lake area was not predicated on the area having sewers, said Mr. Tisdalle.

* * *

He said Dr. Whitbread also told him that the lake septic tanks have all been checked and no material from them is entering the lake.

Mr. Tisdalle said the government is gaining ground in cleaning up the small lakes on southern Vancouver Island and it is a shame Prospect Lake people should have their community maligned and depreciated like this.

Assault Charge Laid

Tests Disclose No Death Cause

A post mortem Saturday and a re-examination Monday has failed to disclose the cause of the death of George Lennox, 38, of 1021 Government.

Mr. Lennox was found lying on the sidewalk outside the King's Hotel, 570 Yates, at 12:20 a.m. Sunday after being involved in what witnesses described as a fist fight.

REMANDED

John George Auxi, a 29-year-old miner who lives at 1354 Pandora, appeared in central magistrate's court Monday afternoon charged with assaulting Lennox, causing bodily harm.

He was remanded one week for plea. Bail was set at $500 and Auxi was represented by Lloyd McKenzie.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said he will decide today whether he will call an inquest.

Both the post mortem and the re-examination failed to show any marks on Mr. Lennox's body.

MORE TESTS

Mr. St. Jorre said toxological tests will also be conducted.

Mr. Lennox is survived by his brother, James, and his mother, both of Victoria.

THE DAILY BRITISH COLONIST,

April 18, 1867

Mr. Pemberton, acting coroner, yesterday held an inquest over the body of John Primer, late stoker of HMS Malacca, who was drowned in Esquimalt harbor seven weeks ago by the upsetting of a boat. The evidence went to show that the deceased and three others got into a boat at the Esquimalt landing late at night; that the boat contained some water which they neglected to bail out; that when some distance from the wharf the deceased refused to pull the oars; that as Riley, one of the survivors, was stepping from the stern to take the oars, the boat careened and the occupants were thrown out and Primer and another drowned. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

A. D. Richardson, correspondent of the New York Tribune who was here in 1865 with the Colfax party, was recently shot in that city by an enraged husband with whose wife he was walking. The wound is not serious.

From Nanaimo — The U.S. Mail steamer New World returned from Nanaimo yesterday morning. She has on board 150 tons of coal for her own use. The bark Glarmara, for San Francisco and the steamer Alexander III for Sitka are loading with coal.

The Californian will leave San Francisco for Victoria today.

Sidney Says 'No' To Merger Study

Sidney council has refused to go along with a suggestion for an independent study of the proposed amalgamation of the town with North Saanich municipality.

Another alderman has been appointed to make his own study of the situation following the recommendation for an independent study by Ald. W. W. Gardiner.

North Saanich has asked for amalgamation of the two areas, and Ald. Gardiner was appointed recently to form a joint committee to investigate the idea.

Following meeting between Coun. G. R. Aylard of North Saanich and representatives from the department of municipal affairs, Ald. Gardiner recommended both councils should finance a joint, independent survey.

Art Display At University

University of Victoria students are staging an art display, from now until the term ends, in the fine arts wing of the Education Arts Building at the Gordon Head campus.

About 150 works by fine arts and arts major students are on display, including drawings, sketches and paintings. All are for sale.

Fought Nazis During War

Polish-Born Teacher First Woman On Staff of Mount Carmel College

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The first woman teacher on the staff of Mount Carmel College is a Polish-born French teacher who has known the excitement and fear of fighting the Nazis as a member of the underground during the Second World War.

Mary Grotowska, who came to Canada in 1950 and worked in Hamilton before coming here to teach high school French and history at Loretto Academy, now teaches university French at Mount Carmel.

Talking to a reporter, she related how the outbreak of war interfered with her plans to teach in university after getting her MA in history from the University of Krakow in 1939.

With universities and high schools closed by the Nazis and professors being sent to concentration camps, she joined the underground in 1940 and remained in it until she fled from Poland in 1946 and sought asylum in the American-occupied zone of West Germany.

"Everyone in Poland worked with the underground," Miss Grotowska said. "Even the children would warn you when the Gestapo was near."

At first her work was in organization, then it involved obtaining information and carrying orders. She had many brushes with the Gestapo but was never apprehended.

She was walking to her home, a large farm outside Krakow, in 1943 when she saw the Gestapo and realized they were heading for her house. She continued on up the road and disappeared. She never went home again.

Another hair-raising experience occurred when she and a girl friend were transporting munitions to the guerrillas in suitcases. They had to take a train to reach their destination.

"The train was late and my friend went out of the waiting room on to the platform to see why the delay. She returned to say the station was surrounded by the Gestapo.

"We could not leave the suitcases, so we took them and walked out on to the platform and approached the officer in charge. I could speak German so I politely asked why the train was late.

"He said the tracks had been blown up not far from the town and the train would not be arriving that day. So I said, 'There is no use to wait?'

"He replied 'No.' I thanked him politely and we picked up our suitcases and walked through the Gestapo lines. The Gestapo men had seen us talking to the officer and they assumed we had been cleared."

She had a close call in a village where a German soldier had been shot and the place was surrounded by troops. She was stopped and searched but because she had nothing incriminating on her she was allowed to go. Because of the shooting, she said, every 10th person in the town was killed.

Miss Grotowska got to Paris after the war and wanted to study for her PhD at the Sorbonne but had no money and refugees were barred from working in Paris. She took a job on a farm and began preparing to come to Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Watson are pictured following their recent marriage. The bride is the former Gloria Jean Judith (Judy) Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Ryan, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Watson, 1318 Prillaman Avenue.—(Don Ryan Photo)

ANN LANDERS

Dear Readers: I'm shook. Recently I printed a letter from a Dallas golfer who wrote to say he wore his wife's girdle because it relieved his aching back and improved his posture. He added nonchalantly that he also wore his wife's nylon hose because he needed to hook the garters to something to keep his girdle down.

Shortly after that letter appeared I heard from another man whose luggage had been lost and he had no underwear. His wife gave him a pair of her bloomers, "just for the night."

He liked them so well he never did go back to wearing shorts. That was in 1945 and he has been wearing ladies' bloomers ever since.

This past week I have received an avalanche of letters. The mail attests to the men (most of them married and with families) thoroughly enjoy dressing up in women's clothes. I assure you these people are not putting me on. They are strictly for real. Here are some samples:

Dear Ann Landers: Why do you point an accusing finger at any man who happens to prefer some article of women's clothing?

Some men enjoy a soft, smooth fabric next to their skin. Somewhere along the line men got stuck with cotton underwear. I can assure you if men's silk shorts were not so expensive they would outsell cotton shorts by the carload.

Shortly after I married, my wife was making a dress for herself. We are both the same height. She asked me to put on her dress so she could pin the hem properly. I liked the feel of the silk dress and asked her if she would make one for me to lounge in. Now I have several lounging dresses and they are much more comfortable than slacks and a T-shirt. I'm not a fairy and I resent the inference that any man who wears women's clothes is a little funny. — DYERSVILLE, IOWA

Dear Dy: My haberdashery expert tells me cotton shorts are plenty soft enough for anybody and that most men prefer cotton shorts to the sleazier fabrics. I would not try to change the mind of a guy who sits around in his wife's dresses however, so enjoy yourself, Bub.

Dear Ann Landers: Many men enjoy dressing up in women's clothing. I, for one, can tell you it's a real kick in the head. Here's how I discovered how much fun it could be.

Several years ago my wife and I went to a "Switch Sex Ball" at our Country Club. My wife wore our oldest son's suit. I wore one of her made-over evening dresses, her wig and white fox stole. My wife did my makeup (false eyelashes and the works) and she even painted my fingernails. I won first prize as the "Fooler Female."

I enjoyed the outfit so much I decided to wear it again several nights later when the two of us took a weekend vacation. We posed as two women friends and no one batted an eye.

Now I have several "Fooler" outfits and whenever we are out of town we have a few evenings as "women."

This may seem strange, but I assure you I am perfectly normal. These little masquerade parties are simply our way of having fun. — ALL MAN

Dear Man: Yup. You're ALL normal — you guys who like to dress up in women's clothes. And if anyone says otherwise, just hit 'em with your purse, Dearie.

The wedding will take place at 8 p.m., Saturday, April 22, in St. Luke's Anglican Church with Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff officiating. —(Miss Bradshaw's photo by Craftsman, Prince George, and Mr. Turner's by Campbell's, Vancouver)

Toronto Honeymoon

St. Martin's-in-the-Field Church was the setting recently, when Rev. D. A. Hatfield heard marriage vows exchanged between Mrs. Elsa E. Johnstone and George F. Penson.

Given in marriage by D. B. Darley, the bride wore a two-piece suit of navy blue in double-breasted style. She chose a white Panama hat with navy trim, white accessories and a pink carnation bouquet to complete the ensemble.

Her only attendant was Mrs. Darley who wore a suit of red wool for the occasion. Her accessories and carnation corsage were white.

The newlyweds will be returning to Victoria to make their home, following a honeymoon trip travelling across Canada to Toronto.

Modified Out-Patient Surgery

WINNIPEG (CP) — Surgery on a modified out-patient basis is being tested by Children's Hospital here in conjunction with a two-year-old home-care program.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Grocholski, took him to hospital at 9:30 a.m., the operation was performed at 11 and Darell went home three hours later. Still later in the day a Victorian Order of Nurses member visited him.

"It was remarkably simple," says Mrs. Grocholski. "A few days before the operation the VON phoned and told me that Darell couldn't have any breakfast on the day of the operation. That was all. After returning home we just kept him quiet and I gave him a pill for the pain. Later the nurse came and checked his bandage."

Children's Hospital authorities say they hope doctors will acknowledge the benefits of the procedure but concede there has been some objection from both parents and physicians.

The home-care program, which ties in with the new plan, has been in operation since October, 1964. In that time 402 cases have been handled. Most involve children suffering from chronic chest ailments.

A major benefit of the program is that it makes beds available for cases that really need them.

The hospital provides such equipment as croup tents and orthopedic aids to use at home in treatment of illness.

Berthiaume - Welsh

Halifax New Home For April Bride

Following their recent wedding in St. Patrick's Church, Mr. and Mrs. Andre George Berthiaume left on a honeymoon trip travelling across Canada to Halifax, where they will be making their new home.

The bride, the former Barbara Joan Welsh, 2573 Foul Bay Road, is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Welsh of Victoria, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. J. L. Berthiaume of St. Foy, P.Q.

The church was decorated in a pink and white color theme with gladiolus and stocks for the double-ring service conducted by Fr. A. E. Leonard. Norman Laurie gave the bride in marriage.

Re-embroidered lace appliques, centred with seed pearls, accented the empire-line bodice of the bride's organza over taffeta gown. Similar highlights were repeated on the floor-length A-line skirt and on the watteau train. Her tiered veil of silk illusion net misted softly from an organza lily headpiece, sparkling with seed pearls. She carried pink roses and white carnations in her bouquet.

Matching gowns of sea-green organza, topped with sleeveless coats, were worn by the bride's sister, matron of honor Mrs. S. Entwistle and Miss Diane Welsh. Their headpieces were en tone and they carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Jewelry accents were the bride's gifts of heart-shaped pendants.

The knife with which the bride's grandparents cut their wedding cake was used by the newlyweds to cut the tiered wedding cake, decorated with pink rosebuds, which centred the head table at the reception in the War Amputees Hall. Leonard Parsons proposed the toast to the bride.

IODE Aids Natal

Dairy foods go with good living

Come springtime and good living, good fun and good food make every day a special event. In the good food department dairy foods go all out for busy homemakers.

Take milk. The refreshing drink for all Canadians does double duty in tasty soups, sauces and casseroles yet is capable of a quick about face in whimsical fun-to-make party drinks for the young crowd.

It takes but a shake or two to concoct a Tropical Cream Punch. For each serving combine a scoop of vanilla ice cream, ¼ cup milk, 2 tablespoons frozen pineapple juice concentrate, thawed, and a small scoop lemon sherbet. A fresh pineapple spear adds the finishing touch to each glass.

For a hot snack accompaniment try this deluxe sandwich loaf, made with crunchy French bread and decorated with strips of melting cheese. Like all grilled cheese specials it's perfect with milk.

CHECKERBOARD LONG BOYS

1 loaf French bread
1 (12-ounce) can corned beef
3 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 tablespoon horseradish
8 slices processed cheese

Split loaf lengthwise and butter each half. Spread cut surfaces with a mixture of the beef, mustard and horseradish. Cut cheese into strips and arrange, checkerboard-fashion, over meat. Bake in a 375°F. oven about 15 minutes. Serve on a wooden board and let guests cut a slice to match their appetites. By the way, this makes a popular week-end special for the family.

See what maple syrup can do to the ever popular milkshake. Combine 2 cups cold milk, ¼ cup maple syrup and 4 scoops vanilla ice cream. Blend well and pour into 2 tall glasses. A marvellous way to toast a warm spring day!

Centennial Revue

Scots from City Equal to Pros

By BILL THOMAS

Adeline Duncan proved one thing Monday night at the McPherson Theatre — it's possible to mount a better Scottish show locally than some so-called professionel companies offer on tour.

Mrs. Duncan blended the pipes and drums of the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's), guest artist John Dunbar and her own dance pupils into a delightful evening.

HAPPY FACULTY

Children have a happy faculty of making the most obvious blunders seem part of the act, and time and again they proved it's not necessary to be a perfectionist to provide good entertainment.

There is little point in telling local audiences that John Dunbar has a fine voice or that he can swirl a kilt with the best, but for the record he did sing well and got a resounding hand from a full house.

Mr. Dunbar also showed it is not necessary for a trained singer to have to resort to the use of a microphone in the McPherson.

CARRIES WELL

His full-bodied voice carries well and distinctly in this hall, and he was wise to forego the electronic crutch that so many touring singers adhere to.

The dancers ranged in ability from the first-year students to the accomplished Angus McKenzie, who holds a number of championships.

While the Centennial Scottish Dance Revue drew a large audience of parents, it's safe to say the evening offered a great deal to a casual entertainment-seeker. It was a balanced program and lots of fun.

Festival Busy

By BERT BINNY

Some of the big guns of the Greater Victoria music festival wheeled into position Monday night.

These include the oratorio and opera classes for the vocalists, concertos and the like for the pianists and ensembles for the accordionists.

Five people competed in the female-voice oratorio class in Fellowship hall before adjudicator Cecil Cope, who noted four "extremely good performances" so close together in quality it was hard to distinguish between them.

FIGURES GIVEN

Jill Paver won with 87 points while Frances Smith had 86, and Marilyn Fraser and Norma Selwood 85 each.

At St. John's hall the open piano concerto class was won by Linn Hendry, one point ahead of Allison Marshall. Mary Chard took the under-19 concerto class with 85.

At Sir James Douglas school, accordion competition ended on a high note when the Bernie Porter ensemble captured the final class with 90 and 92 points.

Another 90 was awarded by adjudicator Crawford Clarke to the duet of Lee York and Michael Ward.

As soon as the festival began its second week, it encountered large classes and lots of them.

Two awards by the Victoria Centre, Royal Canadian College of Organists, were allocated. In the junior organ solo division the winner was Bill Dyson with 175 points.

The Edith Ellis award of $25 in the brass and woodwind section went to Don Mayer. Mary Chard won the $25 Bernard Rain prize, in the under-16 violin and cello classes.

A Musical Art Society prize of $50 for the highest mark in solo strings was won by Darien Hunt with 90.

SCHOOL OF MUSIC

In the morning Jennifer Angus scored 87 to win the sacred solo class for girls 12 and 13 and an anonymous prize of $25. In the afternoon she received another 87 and another first place, this time in the class for girls 12 or 13.

Two School Bands Acquire More Fans

Two more school bands, those of Victoria high and Central junior, appeared Sunday afternoon before a considerable audience at the McPherson.

The Central band, appearing first, seemed at its best with Treat for Trumpet but also produced an accomplished flute player in Chris Salm. He plays with spirit, feeling and close understanding of his instrument.

The Victoria high band was a treat to hear. Its Vaughan Williams folk song suite put folk songs generally in a true and acceptable light — colorful and informative.

Ready Before Opening Day

Expo Site Work In Final Stages

MONTREAL (CP)—A top official in Expo's installations department said Monday work on preparing the site for opening day April 28 is "well ahead of schedule and everything will be ready on time."

In an interview, Gaston Lambert, assistant to Col. Ed Churchill, director of installations, said:

"We definitely will be ready before opening day. The pace of work as we near the wire has stepped up until we ourselves are surprised at the speed of our operation.

"There still is quite a bit of painting to be done around the site but we use an elastic schedule to take advantage of good weather days. On a beautiful day we will put 50 men on one building and it's done in no time."

Nearly finished was the task of landscaping the 1,000-acre site with 20,000 trees, 1,000,000 square yards of turf, 500,000 cubic yards of loam and 40,000 cubic yards of peat moss.

It was difficult to give specific figures on how near completion was this $50,00,000 aspect of preparing the site "because in these last few days before opening people are working so fast the figures are outdated before we get them in this department."

DOUGLAS FIRS

Expo's expected 11,000,000 visitors also will see 150,000 shrubs of all kinds, 15,000 rose bushes, 1,500,000 flowers and every well-known Canadian tree.

From British Columbia a dozen Douglas firs standing 60 feet high will be placed in strategic locations around the site to draw attention to areas of special interest.

Integrated with the landscaping is 750,000 square feet of assorted paving and 7,500 feet of steps and ramps.

INDOOR WORK

"The winter wasn't too bad this year," he added, "but anyway we had our operations scheduled so that pavilion exteriors were completed and we could work on interiors by the time the cold weather arrived. The winter did not delay us.

"We did a lot of painting last fall and covered it with plastic material to prevent winter weathering and it worked out well."

FINAL TOUCHES

Mr. Tremblay said all sewage and other services have been completed, even for late entrants, and the work force now is mainly engaged in final landscape planting, cleaning up the site, painting and repairing roads broken up by the spring thaw.

On the site, the secondary transit systems, Expo-Express and the Mini-rail, now are working on scheduled timetables and the Metro, or subway, is fully operational between the downtown Berri-de Montigny station and south-shore Longueuil, with an in-between stop on St. Helen's Island, which is part of the site.

Habitat Costs Soaring

MONTREAL (CP)— The cost of Habitat 67, the pioneering apartment project at Expo, has soared to perhaps $21,000,000, some $4,000,000 more than the last estimate of a few months ago, fair officials said Monday.

The costs were revealed at a news conference where G. Dale Rediker, Expo's director of financing, and Jean-Claude Delorme, head of the secretariat and legal department, answered questions pertaining to Expo's fourth annual report tabled Friday in the Commons.

PREFABRICATED

Mr. Rediker and Mr. Delorme said the reason for the increase arose from the "pressure of time" and the "new way of building and from problems that had not been anticipated in the original planning."

Habitat contains a number of pre-fabricated apartment units, each with its own garden, placed one upon the other in a manner similar to the stone blocks used to build the pyramids.

Honored

B.C. Supreme Court Justice J. O. Wilson will be given honorary doctor of laws degree at University of B.C. spring congregation June 1, it was announced Monday. He has been chief justice since 1963 and lectured at UBC law faculty from 1945 to 1955.

Huge Insurance Plan

Depositors Obtain Ottawa Safeguard

OTTAWA (CP) — The deposits of hundreds of thousands of Canadians in banks and trust and loan companies were placed under the protection of a federal insurance plan Monday.

The finance department announced that the Canada Deposit Insurance Corp. now covers individual accounts up to $20,000 in all chartered banks and all federally-incorporated trust and mortgage loan companies that accept deposits. More than $14,000,000,000 is involved.

* * *

In addition, provincially-incorporated trust companies in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba and Alberta will be insured within a few days.

Loan companies in these provinces and both trust and loan companies in Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and British Columbia are expected to be covered within a few weeks.

* * *

The Ontario government has said it will require the transfer of its trust and loan companies from the Ontario deposit insurance plan to the federal plan. The Quebec government will soon introduce a plan of its own in the legislature. No applications are expected from Newfoundland.

Monday's announcement disclosed the precise definition of deposits to be included in the federal program.

Marchand of Manpower Checking Bias Claims

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Marchand says he is "very concerned" about a report that some federal manpower offices have accepted instructions from employers that persons of certain races or religions are unacceptable.

He was questioned Monday in the Commons by four MPs, two of Jewish origin, about a story in the Toronto Globe and Mail on findings reported by the Jewish Labor Committee in a survey of 21 manpower offices.

The Globe and Mail said 17 of the offices were found to accept discriminatory orders from employers.

Instructions to manpower offices specifically prohibited discrimination of any kind based on racial or religious grounds.

Replying to David Lewis (NDP—York South) who raised the matter, Mr. Marchand said he is looking into the matter closely. Mr. Lewis is Jewish.

* * *

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North), also of Jewish origin, asked the minister to determine whether the problem was reported to his department a year ago by the Ontario human rights commission.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker asked when the manual was issued.

Mr. Marchand, who had a copy of it in his hand, said it was not dated. But he promised to find out.

Discrimination Claimed Against MPs' Guards

OTTAWA (CP) — Employees of the Commons who speak only English are victims of "increasing discrimination," Harold Winch (NDP — Vancouver East) charged Monday.

He said unilingual security guards are being denied positions at the main entrance of the Parliament Buildings despite seniority considerations that would otherwise guarantee them these jobs.

Mr. Winch asked Government House Leader McIlraith to do something about it, but the question was ruled out of order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

Mr. Lamoureux said the complaint should come in writing to himself. The Speaker has authority over all personnel attached to the Commons.

Sidney Passes Bylaw

Horse Race Fee Official

It's official — horse racing will cost $150 a day at Sandown Park following the passage of a business licence bylaw by Sidney town council Friday.

Fourth and final reading by the council made it official.

Final ratification of the bylaw will have to come from the department of municipal affairs, which registers the legislation.

Under the bylaw, which is Schedule A of the town's first business licence and fee bylaw, horse shows will pay $50 a day, and other types of exhibitions, including dancing, tumbling, rope walking, will pay $10 a day.

* * *

Faith healers, however, will get by easier, paying only $6 for each six months; livestock, domestic animal and bird shows, $5 a day; professional services $25 per person every six months.

Hotels, motels or trailer courts pay $15 for six months for the first five units and $1 for each additional unit.

Banks and loan companies pay a minimum of $50 for six months, $75 if there are more than 10 employees.

Doctor's Rites Saturday

Funeral services will be held here Saturday for the son of a well-known Victoria family who died in Los Angeles last Saturday.

Dr. Hugh Farquharson, who had been living in Redwood City, Calif., since 1951, died while attending a medical meeting.

A funeral procession will leave Hayward's at 1 p.m. Saturday enroute to Royal Oak.

A committal service will take place at the funeral chapel there at 1:30 p.m., Canon H. J. Jones officiating. Burial will be in Royal Oak burial park.

He is survived by his wife, Elsie, in Redwood City; two sons, Ralph, in Redwood, and Norman G. R. Fowler, of McGill University; three sisters, Mrs. David Michael, of Victoria; Mrs. Hargrave Mitchell, of Medicine Hat, and Mrs. Gordon Thompson, of Calgary; an aunt, Mrs. William Stevens, of Victoria, and an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Hughes, of Denver, Colo.

American from Vietnam Finds City Tax Haven

Victoria has proved a haven for a 25-year-old American faced with paying 510 days' back income taxes if he steps across the U.S. border too soon.

Ron Burnham of Tampa, Florida, a civilian electronic field technician working in Vietnam for the past 18 months, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Florence Hamilton, 406 Simcoe, before he returns to the Far East.

Mr. Burnham said Monday Americans who spend 510 consecutive days in a foreign country can get an income tax refund for the entire time. On return home they may spend 30 days only in U.S. or they are taxed back.

The young veteran spent most of his 30-day furlough at his home in Tampa, but not wanting to take any chance of bad weather holding up air traffic and forcing him to spend over the 30-day deadline he decided to either cross into Mexico or travel to Canada.

* * *

"I would have gone to Mexico but the scenery is too much like it is in Vietnam," he said.

He likes Victoria scenery, but claims it rains too much to his liking.

"We get plenty of that over there, too."

He is scheuled to leave again for Vietnam on April 28.

Boy Burned

Allen Epp, 15, 3303 Whittier, received an acid burn on his face when he accidentally touched a blow torch to a battery being charged and a hydrogen bubble exploded at his home, Monday. He was treated and released—from Royal Jubilee Hospital.

When Will Society Put Up Money?

Keep Mother, Child Together

By NANCY BROWN

One half of families headed by women live in poverty and a high proportion of the rest live in near-poverty, delegates to the Child Welfare League of America's Northwest region conference were told Monday.

Miss Ruth Chaskel, director of the New York National Council on Illegitimacy, discussed the changing patterns of service for unmarried parents at an institute during the four-day conference at the Empress Hotel, which has attracted 800 delegates from Canada and the United States.

HELP NEEDED

She said assistance was needed for any unsupported woman who needed to work for her children.

"It is unlikely," she said, "that a woman will make enough to pay for a full-time homemaker. Licensed family day care is a necessity."

A "half-way house" for unmarried mothers could fill a great gap, Miss Chaskel told the institute.

DANGERS

At the same time, Miss Gertrude L. Hoffman was telling other delegates of the dangers inherent in child-care systems.

"You sometimes reach a point where you have two women in conflict," she said.

DISPLACEMENT FEAR

"The natural mother fears she will be displaced in her child's affections by the day-care mother.

"Then you have the working woman who has a different boy friend with her each time she picks the child up.

"The centre 'mother' is sometimes jealous of the child's love for his natural mother, and if the child arrives at the centre one day uncared-for, then the pot boils over."

PLANS CHANGE

"If they have a choice, they will hire the woman without children every time," she said.

Often a woman would start work, and then her child care arrangements would break down.

"Then she's absent from work, or changes her job.

"Some employers are looking into the provision of child-care centres at work, but that is not always satisfactory," said Miss Hoffman.

THREATS USED

"The lack of child care can be held over a mother's head to keep her at work," she said. "Sometimes a child is ineligible if his mother is off work sick for a day."

"When do you suppose that as a society we are going to decide that some mothers and children simply should not be separated, and put up the money to keep them together?" she asked.

"I thought we had decided many years ago that a child should not be out off from his home life for financial reasons.

SMALL CHEQUES

"Now it seems that we can compromise those principles, and if a family is poor, get the woman out to work.

"We make relief cheques so small that if a woman wants anything for her children, she goes out to work, and risks other possible damage to her children."

The conference opened Sunday with an address by Henry S. Maas, associate director of the Institute of Human Development, University of California.

He suggested a reorganization of social services, which he said have become over-sophisticated and refined.

MAJOR FOCUS

The major focus of most child welfare services verges very close on suggestion of incurable social pessimism and even opportunism, Stewart Sutton, secretary-general of the Vanier Institute of the Family, told a plenary session of the conference Monday.

There has been a concentration on "rescuing" an individual child whose behavior was unacceptable.

Since this child was usually reacting to a situation, it would be better to focus on the underlying causes and nature of the situation.

It was probable that two or more generations of family life were being destroyed by the selective approach to welfare, he said.

The conference continues today, with a banquet tonight when Dr. John Ferguson McCreary, dean of the Faculty of Medicine at the University of British Columbia, will speak on Crisis Ahead for the Health Professions.

German Summit Proposed

BERLIN (AP)—Walter Ulbricht, East German Communist party chief, proposed Monday that West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger and East German Premier Willi Stoph meet in a summit conference.

The proposal at the opening of the seventh congress of Ulbricht's party appeared to have the effect of slamming the door to step-by-step negotiations on a variety of topics that the West Germans indicated they are interested in.

Such a meeting would clash with West Germany's long-standing policy of not recognizing East Germany.

Ottawa, Esquimalt Reach Firefighting Agreement

Esquimalt has a new written commitment from the federal government to provide a back-up firefighting service for the municipality.

It is a reciprocal agreement, with the dockyard, that will cost the Esquimalt fire department $100 an hour for the first and second callout in a year.

A third callout in any given year will cost $750 for the first three hours and $100 an hour for each additional hour.

FOR MONTHS

As reported in the Colonist last December, Esquimalt has been negotiating for the agreement for many months.

Although other areas are close to armed forces fire departments it is unlikely the agreement, the first in B.C., will set a precedent.

Spokesmen for Sidney, North Saanich and View Royal fire departments said Monday they would not be looking for more than the tacit agreement now in operation.

HIGHER RATES

Higher fire insurance rates in the municipality have caused concern to businessmen, but it appears unlikely the new agreement will lower rates.

Head of the Fire Insurance Underwriters of British Columbia Robert McLeod didn't think it would make any difference.

BIG MONEY

"If the municipality had to hire firemen instead of using the dockyard assistance, the cost would be $7,400 per year per man, plus the cost of equipment."

The navy department was not called out last year.

The reeve said in the past the navy has called for Esquimalt assistance several times, while there have been many years when the municipality did not need help.

48 Years at Victoria High

Margaret Hallam Severs Long Tie

An institution in the Victoria school system will fade into history on May 31, when Margaret R. Hallam, the high school's stenographer for 48 years, retires.

Miss Hallman was a student in Victoria High School from 1916 to 1919, making her association with the secondary school system 51 years in duration.

During her final year she went to work in the school office as stenographer, and became the first secretary of the school board.

Miss Hallam likes to recount the fact she worked for three months without pay, and "was never made permanent."

To thousands of Victoria students however, she was a permanent institution, and on May 26 they will have a chance to pay their tribute at a testimonial dinner at the Red Lion, with the public invited.

School trustees approved a motion by Mrs. A. B. Thompson that the board recognize Miss Hallam's service.

Object in Sky Likely Balloon

Mrs. Vi Martin, 4061 Holland Road, saw a flying object in the sky between Langford and Prospect Lake about 11:30 p.m. Monday, but she thought it could be identified as a balloon with candles under it.

The object gave off a brilliant red glow at first, then lights started dropping from it as it moved slowly towards Prospect Lake, she said. "I don't know what in the dickens it is but my husband said it was probably some kids playing with a balloon."

In Saanich

Garbage Still Problem

Saanich council spent one hour and four minutes Monday night on the garbage question before it decided to ask for yet another report from municipal officials.

It was the third time the thorny issue has come to councillors, either at committee or council levels.

They decided to ask the only bidder for garbage collection, Prairie Enterprises Ltd., to make an estimate for pickups only in the area where there now is garbage service.

Earlier tenders submitted by Prairie Enterprises were for the entire municipality, both the rural and the compact urban districts.

The present collection service, which costs homeowners $11 a year, operates only in the urban area.

Prairie's bids were $20 for weekly service the whole year and $18 for pickups every two weeks except during June, July, August and September, when it would be weekly.

If council doesn't accept Prairie's bids, Saanich probably will have to get into the garbage collection business itself.

In other business, council gave first three readings to a rezoning bylaw which would allow a shopping centre at Shelbourne and Ruby.

But Clergy Persevere

Centennial Boycott Grows In Northwestern Quebec

ROUYN, Que. (CP)—The St. Jean Baptiste Society of Rouyn-Noranda has called for the resignation of Maurice Lavigne, chairman of the centennial committee in Rouyn, on grounds that statements made by him and reported by The Canadian Press were gross inaccuracies.

The statements pertained to centennial religious services planned for the Rouyn-Noranda area during the week of May 17 to May 24.

After the services were announced, Roman Catholic and Protestant clergy in the northwestern Quebec area were deluged with warnings against their participation in the ceremonies, planned as a week of religious thanksgiving for the benefits enjoyed by their communities during the last 100 years.

STATEMENT DENIED

The clergy have decided to go ahead with the ceremonies despite the threats.

In a prepared statement, the St. Jean Baptiste Society said Mr. Lavigne had been quoted as saying that opposition to the services was confined to 27 young separatists. The society said this was not correct.

The society's 24-member executive, speaking on behalf of 2,800 members, was unanimous in adopting a resolution opposing participation in the centennial services.

MANY OPPOSED

An imposing number of students in Rouyn-Noranda had expressed opposition to the services. Antonio Flamand, Union Nationale member for Rouyn-Noranda; the separatist Rassemblement pour l'independance nationale, Laurent Legault, former leader of the separatist Ralliement national, and a prominent Liberal, not named in the statement, were all opposed to the services.

The statement said three themselves from plans for the services, and others had told the society they hold similar views.

In view of this, said the statement, "we no longer understand how The Canadian Press could again quote Rev. Gerard Kinlough, pastor of Ste. Bernadette parish, as saying . . . that all the priests in our two cities—about 50 all told—will take part in the centennial religious services."

Kidnapping Clues

FBI Issues Public Appeal

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (LAT) — The FBI asked public help Monday in its hunt for the kidnapper of Kenneth Young, 11, releasing minute details of the L-shaped room in which the boy was held captive.

The public appeal raised speculation the investigation was at a virtual dead end in the search for clues.

Kenneth was kidnapped April 3 from his Beverly Hills home and released three days later after his father, Herbert Young, delivered $250,000 to the kidnapper.

SPECIAL AGENT

"He recalls the room was reached by walking up steps, possibly to a second floor, and the steps were solid, such as concrete," Grapp reported.

Kenneth described the room as "rather large" and L-shaped. The boy was tied to a three-quarter or twin-size bed. The mattress was dirty and smelled bad. It had a gray floral pattern, without sheets.

ASPHALT TILE

The floor was covered with redish-brown asphalt tile. The walls were light green, with no pictures or other ornament.

Young has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the kidnapper or kidnappers.

Italian Court Will Hold Hearing in New York

ROME (UPI) — The Italian court trying 32 Americans, Frenchmen and Italians on charges of smuggling nearly $32,000,000 worth of heroin into the U.S. announced Monday it would open an unprecedented series of hearings in New York City May 29.

Washington gave permission last month for the court to hold hearings in the U.S. to question 14 defendants and witnesses currently in America.

A similar request to French authorities was rejected.

It will be the first time in history an Italian court holds hearings in another country.

The three-man court presided over by Judge Salvatore Gianlombardo, public prosecutor Carmine Cecere, state attorney Enzo Ciarduli and defence lawyers will meet in the Italian consulate in New York May 10 to draw up a detailed schedule for the hearings.

SECURITY REASONS

The dates of hearings in other U.S. cities were not released "for security reasons," court sources said.

Sources said U.S. authorities asked the Italian court to conduct its hearings in America with the maximum discretion to protect witnesses from underworld reprisals.

Two of the Americans to be interrogated by the court, Salvatore Rinaldo and Matteo Palmieri, were reported to be under FBI protection. Gianlombardo said Rinaldo's testimony was "indispensable."

Desegregation Delay Refused Dixie States

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Supreme Court Monday refused to delay a lower court order requiring six Deep South states to desegregate their public schools in all grades by next fall.

There was no opinion in the case. The justices turned down without comment an appeal by Louisiana school authorities asking that the edict be stayed for full consideration by the court.

The March 29 ruling by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals applies to Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and Texas. They must begin administrative operations immediately to allow 1,760,900 Negroes access to schools of their choice in their communities.

The order also would apply to school faculties, transportation and school-related activities.

Firm Halts LSD Output

CAPE TOWN (Reuters)—The South African company which markets the hallucination-producing drug LSD has announced the withdrawal of the drug from the market because "its misuse has become increasingly evident."

'Caucus Backed Me'

NDP Leader Surprised

NDP chieftain Robert Strachan said Monday he was "surprised" to see a challenger for leadership of the party, after a March caucus gave him unanimous support.

Mr. Strachan's opposition comes from Tom Berger, 34, a Vancouver lawyer and MLA for Vancouver Burrard. Mr. Berger announced last week he would run for the leadership at the party's annual convention in Burnaby June 2 to 4.

FROM HOME

His statement made reference to the caucus which party MLAs hold each year at the end of the legislative session. At this meeting the MLAs make a recommendation on their choice of party leader, which goes before the subsequent party convention.

"There was no other name placed before the caucus for consideration, and this should have been the normal first step of any MLA who aspires to the leadership position," said Mr. Strachan.

"I was endorsed by the MLAs, and it is my responsibility and duty to do what they have asked me to do. However, ours is a democratic party and any member has the right to let his name stand for provincial leader at any provincial convention."

B.C. Looks At War On Poverty

Welfare Minister Campbell said Monday he would study the U.S. war on poverty later this month to see how B.C.'s welfare money can be spent more efficiently.

The minister will journey to Washington April 23 on his way to a holiday in Jamaica. He will confer with Sargent Shriver, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

He said he is sure there is overlapping of welfare programs in B.C. and wants to see how the U.S. combats a similar problem.

Convicts' Escapades Start Georgia Probe

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Among the throngs of well-dressed Georgians at Governor Lester Maddox's first open house Sunday were four shabbily-dressed Negroes — escaped prisoners with a story to tell the governor.

The four said they sawed through bars at a Wilkinson County public works camp at midnight Saturday night and walked all night to complain personally to the governor about prison treatment.

They told Maddox of threats on their lives, of being put in solitary confinement for complaining and of going six to eight days with only one meal.

After talking about 20 minutes with the men, Maddox said at a press conference later he was ordering the "most thorough investigation ever conducted by the department of corrections."

"They had planned two weeks ago to escape. They wanted to surrender to me. They sawed through bars and walked to Jackson from Wilkinson County. I'm convinced there's considerable truth to this," he said.

Puerto Rico Status Hit By Reds

UNITED NATIONS (LAT) — Russia led a move Monday to declare Puerto Rico is non-self-governing and make it subject to review by the 24-nation UN colonialism committee. The U.S. hinted it would walk out of the special committee if the Soviet proposal is taken up.

Behind the Soviet move is a campaign, sponsored by Cuba, to encourage the independence movement in Puerto Rico before a July 23 referendum on Puerto Rico's future.

The Mercedes-Benz 250S: why it's more likely to end up in a museum than a junkyard.

Their efforts have earned over 5,400 patents—plus loyal owners in 160 countries.

It appeals to the intellect

The 250S is unorthodox because it refuses to pander to snobs and status-seekers.

For example, it carries as many people and as much luggage as its status-conscious rivals but measures a full two feet shorter.

The 250S darts into tight parking slots. It tucks into garages, weaves through traffic, and handles with almost laughable ease.

"The standard for comparison"

The 250S repays your investment with technical brilliance, not gewgaws. Instead of being satisfied with conventional suspension, Mercedes-Benz engineers devised a fully independent suspension that offers "a combination of riding comfort and stability that is the standard for comparison," says Road & Track. The source was a world-championship Mercedes-Benz racing car.

NOTE: The engineers added a hydraulic spring to the rear axle of the 250S. If you stow a heavy load in the trunk, this spring silently pumps itself up. The car keeps riding level.

Enormous stopping power

Disc brakes are bolted to all four wheels of the 250S, a system identical to 180-mph Grand Prix machines. These fade-free brakes not only stop you, they keep stopping you.

It is almost impossible to lock up the rear wheels in a brutal panic stop. The reason: a valve in the brake system that balances front and rear-wheel braking forces.

Mercedes-Benz motor cars from $27,000 to $4,510

Suggested retail prices* for 7 of the 15 Mercedes-Benz models:

600 Grand Mercedes 7-Passenger Limousine	$27,000
250SL Roadster	8,165
250S Sedan	6,515
230S Sedan	5,685
230 Sedan	4,925
200 Diesel Sedan	4,725

*F.O.B. Toronto. Provincial taxes extra.

Body welded 10,000 times

Your 250S won't be a sleazy hulk in a few years. Sixteen different gauges of sheet metal go into its "unit" body—welded at 10,000 points to form a rigid, rattle-free shell.

After hand filing has smoothed away all burrs, the body is thoroughly submerged—not dipped—in a primer bath. It emerges with 24 pounds of primer etched on.

Another 24 pounds of undercoat protect the underside. Even the insides of the hub caps are sprayed with an anti-corrosion coating.

Zeal for perfection

In place of the lavish V-8 layout of its rivals, the 250S engineers chose a more compact, more subtle six cylinder engine. Design—single overhead camshaft. Highly-efficient; exceptionally sturdy.

Cunning design cannot, of itself, produce high performance from modest size. Production precision must match engineering skill. The 250S engine is machined to tolerances of four 10,000ths of an inch.

RESULT: The 250S possesses the get-up-and-go to satisfy any man, however venturesome—with gasoline economy of 20 mpg or more in normal use.

Performance conclusions

How does it all add up? The 250S engine, suspension and brakes are all designed for demanding driving.

On European autobahns, for example, a Mercedes-Benz owner expects to be able to loaf along all day at speeds over 100 mph—in safety, silence and serenity.

He expects to be able to fling his seemingly sedate five-passenger sedan into Alpine hairpins without the rear end weaving crazily.

He expects to be able to drive over buckboard backroads at highway speeds—without his machine pitching and wallowing like a fat old tug in an Atlantic storm.

He expects to control his car with complete authority in any conditions.

How about Canada?

As Rainer Lange-Mechlen, General Manager of Mercedes-Benz of Canada, recently pointed out:

"Our 250S is not designed for speed alone. But we believe it is comforting to enjoy an extra margin of engineering excellence. It feels good to drive a well-made car—just as you feel good in a well-made suit, or when using a good camera, or wearing an expensive watch."

Interested? Then drop the coupon in the postbox. Or drop in and drive a 250S. It's a rewarding experience.

8 CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to the Saanich Police and Fire department, our many friends and neighbours, also Dr. Rowell, Dr. Tyson and McCall Bros. during our recent bereavement.—Mrs. Frederick Harris, Mrs. Jean Porter and family.

I wish to thank my friends for flowers and cards expressing their sympathy in the loss of my dear brother, Joe. Also Drs. N. B. Reilly and W. E. Newton, internes and nurses of the Jubilee Hospital for their devoted assistance. — Marion Primrose.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DAY—In treasured memory of our dear Dad, E. F. (Ted) Day, April 18, 1963 and our dear Mother, Ellen Day, Oct. 2, 1963.
—Lovingly remembered by their daughters, Dorothy and Vera and their families.

DUNSMORE—In loving memory of our wonderful Mother and Grandmother, Marion M. Dunsmore, who passed away Easter Sunday, April 18, 1954.
God took you from all your pain,
To sleep on the side of a hill.
Remembered by those who love you,
Not just for today—we always will.
—Greatly missed by Beth, George and Maribeth.

HOLLIDAY—In loving memory of Elsie, a dear wife and mother, who passed away April 18, 1965.
"Not gone from memory, not gone from love,
But gone to her Father's home above."

TV TALK

By ROBIN JEFFREY

Heck, they weren't even sportswriters.

But Browning came up with a relevant sporting line when Wordsworth ratted on the radicals and moved himself into the Establishment: "Just for a handful of silver he left us . . ."

"Let's look in on Joey Bishop and see how many commercials HE has."

And that's my reaction to having to watch a hockey game at 10:30 on a Saturday morning—just for a handful of silver. Well, maybe it was a couple of handfuls.

Remember when Saturday was Hockey NIGHT in Canada? So do I. But that was before U.S. television appeared on the scene — with money.

American TV wanted afternoon games to keep prime evening time uncluttered. The NHL obliged, and a small chunk of Canadian cohesiveness floated away.

Of course, there were good reasons. Money is always a pretty good reason. Then there was the question of spreading hockey throughout the U.S. And, after all, TV fans across Canada aren't ticket-buyers.

But daytime hockey isn't the same—not for anyone whose first hockey memories are like mine: lying on the floor after a big Saturday dinner, listening to Foster Hewitt.

It's like asking an Englishman to have afternoon tea in the morning or a Frenchman to make love at lunch-time.

WE MAKE USED CARS DISAPPEAR

But it's a simple trick when you know how! We don't use mirrors, and we don't hypnotize you . . . we DO manage to make a good many used cars disappear from our lot because of the simple fantastic, unbelievable low manner in which they're priced! Now you see them . . . NOW YOU DON'T, if you don't hurry to make a deal at prices like these!

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

Holding an unavoidable trump loser, declarer would have no chance to make the slam if a diamond had been led, but with nothing to guide him, West opened a heart. Declarer cashed the trump ace and king and, when East showed out, realized that he had to get rid of two diamonds on dummy's hearts and clubs.

Thinking it would be safer to try the shorter suit first, declarer played three rounds of hearts. No good. West ruffed and returned a diamond, and the slam was sunk.

Opening lead: Heart ten

The heart ruff was unfortunate, but declarer's play was incorrect. Since he will have to lead clubs eventually, he should play two rounds of clubs before touching hearts. (If, on a different layout, both defenders followed to two rounds of clubs, declarer would, of course, play hearts next, since that suit would appear to offer a better chance of standing up.) As the cards lay, East shows out on the second round and declarer knows it is perfectly safe to continue clubs, since East cannot ruff.

Budget Hike: This Is the Year

This city will not make the increase in school budget appear to vanish, by chopping general purpose items.

The mill rate may go up by 4.58, all accounted for by the increase in school costs which must be carried by Courtenay.

The city learned its share of the budget is more than $321,000.

On advice from former school board secretary-treasurer C. M. Peterson, the city had allowed for $310,000 in its budget.

Last year Courtenay had to pay $256,000.

Peterson

He told council it is time the city budget ceases to be pared to suit the school bill, without raising the mill rate.

Finance committee chairman Ald. Ken Willis agreed.

"This is the year to accept the budget," he commented, indicating if the mill rate goes up because of school costs, taxpayers will see where the costs are.

Ald. Willis said this would lend support to the case for a new cost-sharing agreement with the provincial government.

Administrator Bill Moore said of the 84 school districts in the province, the Courtenay district is 62nd poorest.

"This is on pupils per capita per assessment ... in other words, we have a poor assessment basis and a large number of pupils."

The city's share of the school budget prepresents 24.9 per cent of the total of the portion which cannot be shared with the provincial government.

Pretty Student Heads for Sky

DUNCAN—The wings of the Duncan Flying Club grow prettier and stronger as a frustrated spring tries to reach the Cowichan Valley.

Club president Roy Teasdale said eight members are on the waiting list for flying instruction.

Students now are being picked up by the instructor at the Duncan air-strip, taken to Victoria International Airport, where they practice the rudiments of take-off and landing and then return to the Duncan strip.

Crofton Local Blasts Labor Board:

Union Issue — 'Let Majority Rule'

Labor Committee Will Fight For Vital Security Clause

PORT ALBERNI—A blast at the Canadian pulp union was fired by the reactivated Alberni Valley Labor Emergency Committee here.

★ ★ ★

It has been dormant since that time, and has suddenly been sparked by the crisis in the pulp mill industry, over union jurisdiction.

Head of the committee is Erick Pemberton, president of Local 592, International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

The co-ordinating committee includes representatives from leading labor organizations in the Alberni Valley, but it is distinct from the Alberni and District Labor Council.

The committee expressed its concern over the fact that MacMillan Bloedel initally declared its intention to arbitrate union security.

★ ★ ★

"This is the provision in union agreements that requires that union membership be maintained in good standing.

"The IWA struck for six weeks in 1952 over this issue.

"The committee was also amazed to hear that Local 8 of the Canadian pulp workers instructed legal counsel to challenge the legality of union security provided in labor agreements," the committee said.

★ ★ ★

"The committee questions the honesty and integrity of . . . union leaders, who are responsible for actions driving at the very heart of organized labor."

The B.C. Federation of Labor has been contacted and it has been requested that the matter be brought to the attention of all its affiliates, committee spokesmen said.

CROFTON—The Labor Relations Board has been attacked for provoking the tangled Harmac union situation.

"The board is responsible for the ridiculous situation at Harmac," charged Frank Jameson, president of Local 2 (Crofton) Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

"If a democratic vote had been granted a year ago at Harmac, we would not be faced today with a small minority group trying to have the vast majority of workers terminated."

Majority Must Go

The International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers indicated the strength of the Canadian union's ranks, by asking the courts for an order forcing MacMillan Bloedel to suspend 832 of the 950 men at Harmac.

The application will be heard Thursday in Supreme Court. Also to be heard Thursday is an argument by lawyer Mary Southin that the security clause cannot apply.

In other developments:

● A Canadian Press report quoted Syd Thompson, president of Vancouver IWA as saying "to request the suspension of workers at Harmac can only be interpreted as the work of a madman, or someone deliberately trying to damage the labor movement."

● The troubled pact between locals of the IWA and Pulp-Sulphite to apply for certification at Gold River drew praise from Pulp-Sulphite local at Port Mellon.

● The pact was attacked by the Victoria local of the IWA.

● Seven workers at Harmac may be suspended by MacMillan Bloedel today, as requested by Pulp-Sulphite. This could be a prelude to firing of more than 800.

Union Needs Faith

Mr. Jameson said "Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada believes the only union that should have the bargaining power for a local is the union which has the large majority of workers solidly behind that union."

The Crofton officials commented "We proved this last year, when we were informed that one of the locals we were trying to represent was a borderline case.

"We immediately dropped our application for certification, because we feel we cannot truly represent the workers unless they have faith we can do a good job.

"In the past week we have seen certain officials of the IWA, the CLC, Pulp-Sulphite and Ken Warde (Nanaimo Pulp-Sulphite head) have made many and varied statements.

"The net result has been that they utterly confused themselves, and have caused dissension in their own ranks, which all goes to prove that it is more than time that we had a good Canadian union run by the rank and file, and not dictated to from the top."

Firm Disagrees

In spite of the report that seven men would be suspended today at Harmac, the company made it clear it will not fire the men before there is a court hearing on the issue.

A. Boyd Harris, lawyer for the company, told Supreme Court in Vancouver MacMillan Bloedel does not agree with Pulp-Sulphite's interpretation of the closed shop clause in the union contract.

The Harmac local of the International is suing the Canadian union and the Nanaimo Hourly Paid Workers Benevolent Society for the return of $40,000 in cash and securities.

Pulp-Sulphite told the court the society was a sham, and its members later became known as Local 8.

The International claims that the money, office furniture and records which were taken into the fold of the society, rightly belong to the Harmac Local.

Syd Thompson has sent telegrams urging that the status quo at Harmac be maintained for the time being.

He sent telegrams Monday to Pulp-Sulphite, the B.C. Federation of Labor and Jack Moore, regional IWA council president.

Is Unity Coming?

The telegram says the Vancouver IWA local is fearful the Harmac situation may adversely affect the entire labor movement.

The Port Mellon local of Pulp-Sulphite had more friendly feelings toward the IWA.

Referring to the Gold River alliance, George Hostland, acting president of the local, said:

"We believe it is fundamental that anything which tends to establish unity in the labor movement is good for the trade union movement and for the workers.

"We hope this first step will lead to greater understanding and eventually to unity among all unions in the forest, lumber and pulp industry in British Columbia."

Victoria IWA members, local president Murray Drew said, expressed disenchantment with the situation existing in the Gold River certification struggle.

With a hearing scheduled by the Labor Relations Board in Vancouver for today, two applications have been filed for rights to serve as bargaining agent at Gold River — the Port Alberni IWA local and Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Only God Can Make a Tree

Blackpowder Trail Caper

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — There was dirty work on the old Blackpowder Trail!

And a reward has been posted — $100.

INFORMATION

The reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the thief.

MAD ACT

Frank Ney, of the realty firm, said that some of the shrubs are irreplaceable.

"It makes me so mad."

COMMUNITY

He said the theft was not from the firm as the shrubs had been donated to the community as part of the development of one of the Island's largest subdivisions.

The progress toward beauty started at the entrance, with shrubs and flowers bursting into color in 12 terraces.

CLEAR VIEW

"The sooner they're stopped, the better for the whole community," said Mr. Ney, referring to several other areas which have also been hit by the tree rustlers.

The Dairy Queen on Nicol Street has been a two-time loser, last fall, and again two weeks ago.

Harewood Shopping area too, has been victim so often that removal of the planter boxes there has been considered.

But the Claire theft has been the biggest.

According to Mr. Ney, the $7,000 planter boxes there have been classified as possibly the largest in Canada, by an authority connected with a gardening association.

"If the trees were to be returned undamaged, charges would not be pressed," offered Mr. Ney.

He said that he would be willing to consider the thefts a possible lapse of thought.

Top Chef

David Keim, a student of Vocational Training School at Nanaimo, won the trophy for individual food creation at the Canadian Centennial Competition in Toronto. He built a spare rib hut, to take the prize. More than 10,000 people will see the display. He and classmates will be back April 21, packing the cup.

Duncan Pensioners Hit Fountain Plan

DUNCAN — Old Age Pensioners are angry because of a suggestion that civic centennial funds might be spent on a fountain.

The group will send a "strong letter" to city council protesting a fountain as a centennial project.

OAP members here said the money should be used for the benefit of all residents.

The letter to council will recommend the city co-operate with North Cowichan in the building of a community hall.

OAP members said this would be a practical centennial project.

Other business:

Summer meetings will be held 7:30 p.m. Monday evenings.

Arrangements are being made for the annual Grandparents Afternoon Tea Party.

A summer picnic with other Island centres will be held at Sooke in July.

Around the Island

DUNCAN — A total of 100 paintings by members of the Crofton Art Group will be displayed at the 7th annual exhibition on May 3 and 4 at the Legion Hall here. All pictures are new works and will receive their first showing. Proceeds will go towards furnishing a four-bed ward in King Daughters' Hospital.

★ ★ ★

PARKSVILLE — Rare pictures of wild animals and scenery of Arctic glaciers will be shown in a film to be screened at Parksville junior high school auditorium at 7:30 p.m. today. The film, sponsored by Parksville and Qualicum Beach fish and game associations, will show closeups of polar, grizzly and giant Kodiak bears in their native habitat.

Lovely View... for Hunters Too!

This is Maple Mountain, where an argument between hunters and horsemen has provided North Cowichan council with a very thorny problem. Hunters want to hunt on the mountain, horsemen and other nature ramblers want it safe from guns. Here, North Cowichan officials look over the majestic view from Maple Mountain. From left, Coun. Let's Build Now Says Dorning

DUNCAN — Cowichan school board members approved in principle additional expenditure of $30,000 in a referendum Monday night which involved additions to Quamichan and George Bonner High Schools.

Trustee George Routley said, "It is the relocation and re-establishment of the other rooms which caused the increase."

ADEQUATE?

Trustee Jack Efford said, "Surely children will get an adequate education.

"We're in a period of tight money and we might have another change in the future," he said.

Board chairman Dr. Neil Dorning said, "We are into a new curriculum ... if we are going to change and we are building something new, let us build it now. We have to revamp it anyway."

Original estimated costs for the enlargements were $95,000 for Quamichan high school and $85,000 for George Bonner high school.

Veterans Invite Veterans

The Pacific Coast branch of the historic Black Watch Association is planning to accept associate members from Scottish or Canadian highland regiments, a spokesman for the branch said Monday.

Secretary Roy Henley said the senior highland regiment in Canada will welcome as associate members veterans from these regiments.

He said the Black Watch Association in Victoria will honor the 50th anniversary of the Battle of Vimy Ridge with its annual church parade Sunday at 10 a.m., to the Warriors' Chapel in the Veterans' Hospital.

The Rev. Douglas Kendell, a Black Watch veteran and padre of the Pacific branch of the association, will conduct the service.

Californian Given Stay of Execution

SACRAMENTO (L.A.T.) — Gov. Ronald Reagan used his executive clemency power for the first time Monday by granting a 20-day stay in the execution of Daniel Roberts, San Francisco laborer.

Roberts, 41, had been scheduled to die in the San Quentin gas chamber Tuesday for the 1962 strangulation slaying of his landlady during a robbery attempt.

At a clemency hearing last Tuesday, Mrs. Nancy Rossi, Roberts', court-appointed lawyer, urged the governor to order a truth serum test and to hold a pardon hearing to consider "major discrepancies in the evidence" presented at Roberts' trial.

TEMPORARY STAY

Reagan did not attend that hearing. His clemency secretary, Edwin Meese, presided.

In view of Mrs. Rossi's request and the fact that "further information" has been submitted, Reagan said he is granting a temporary stay so there will be no question that all facts have been reviewed thoroughly.

His action stays the execution for the period ending May 8 and Roberts is due to be executed May 9 unless there is further judicial or clemency action.

REFUSE TEST

Prison officials have refused to administer a truth drug to him.

Mrs. Rossi, contending his conviction was based entirely on circumstantial evidence, seeks a pardon hearing to permit further questioning of Roberts' girl friend, Mae Coleman, who also had been accused in the killing.

Charges against Miss Coleman were dropped when she became a prosecution witness against Roberts.

VIGILS PLANNED

Before Reagan announced the stay in execution, two San Francisco groups had announced plans for vigils at San Quentin to protest the second execution of a Negro within a week.

The other Negro, Aaron Mitchell, went to the gas chamber last Wednesday in the first execution in the United States this year and the first in California since Jan. 23, 1963.

Three Satellite Offices

Family Service Branching Out

The Family and Children's Service announced Monday that it plans to open three satellite offices — a move that will take its programs closer to the people.

Gordon Wright, executive director of the service, said he hopes the neighborhood centres will be in operation before the end of this year.

CLOSE TO PEOPLE

Mr. Wright said the social work teams will be located in offices or rented homes, as close as possible to the people they're meant to serve.

Each neighborhood team will be made up of a skilled leader who is a social worker, a counseller, a second social worker and a social work aide.

"They'll be in the community, in neighborhoods where people can easily search out the workers," said Mr. Wright.

DAYCARE CENTRE

"It also will have the advantage of the team getting to know the people much better than they do now from a central office."

Mr. Wright said the first neighborhood centre probably will be near Centennial United Church, where the Family and Children's Service expects to have a large daycare centre for children.

The other locations are undecided, he said.

The neighborhood teams will come into existence as part of a reorganization at the Family and Children's Service's administrative level.

Hugh Saville, now a supervisor with the Ontario Children's Aid Society, has been appointed director of resource services for the Family and Children's Service.

EXPANSION

He will be one of three who will be at the assistant director level of the service. The others will be James Mair, director of treatment at Sevenoaks centre for emotionally-disturbed children, and a third person, yet to be appointed, who will be director of the service's other treatment programs.

The appointments of Mr. Saville and the other treatment director will be an expansion of the functions of Derek Baker, assistant director who has left to teach social work at the University of Calgary.

Mr. Saville will look after personnel and recruitment and will be responsible for daycare, adoption and foster home services.

Unlocked Home Damaged

About $1,000 damage was done by children Saturday to the Saanich home of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Frumento, 4159 Oakridge, while the owners were in California.

Saanich police said three children, one aged six and two aged four, entered through an unlocked back door and started a fire on a hall runner. The lower cupboards in the kitchen were also burned, and articles in two bedrooms were thrown about.

195 Cigarette Packs Recovered

Teenagers Caught in Store

Three teen-agers were caught inside the Fountain Confectionery, 2655 Douglas, by police early Monday after a nearby resident had reported prowlers in the area.

As city police surrounded the building, two of the youths were seen with white sacks over their shoulders. When police called to them, they ran to the front of the store, dropped the sacks and then gave themselves up.

The teen-agers will appear in juvenile court charged with breaking and entering.

The Blair Street storage building of Vickery and Sons, 3217 Aldridge, was broken into over the weekend and $1,000 worth of windows in aluminum frames were smashed.

Gordon Vickery told Saanich police the culprits also smashed plywood with an axe and broke up about 200 feet of asbestos.

Magnolia Good Buy

By M. V. CHESNUT

The mere mention of the magnolia seems to conjure up a mental picture of pre-Civil War days in the Deep South — a picture of cotton fields, tall-pillared colonial mansions and negro field hands strumming banjoes while Ol' Massa sits on the front porch and gets himself pleasantly swacked on mint juleps. While this is its traditional setting, though, the magnolia seems to find itself just as much at home in British Columbia as in Alabama or South Carolina.

This is a tree of distinction, and a specimen planted this spring would be an investment yielding over the years a return all out of proportion to its trifling cost. While it is a little late now for the planting of bare-root shrubs and trees, modern nurserymen sell their magnolias either "canned" — potted up in large tin cans — or "balled and burlapped" — a good ball of soil around the roots and carefully wrapped in burlap sacking. Specimens prepared in this way may be planted as late as you please, for the planting involves no root disturbance at all.

Some of this family are very shy bloomers — the fabulous Magnolia campbelli, for instance, has been known to dawdle along for 40 years before the first of its lovely rose-pink flowers appeared. There are others, though, which should bloom the year after planting and a few which may possibly pop out a few goblet-shaped blossoms just a week or two after they are planted and set out.

The magnolia of the Old South is M. grandiflora, which retains its leaves through the winter and is probably the finest evergreen plant we can grow here. The blossoms are rather sparse and a bit slow in coming, but they are well worth waiting for — enormous cup-shaped blooms up to 10 inches across, with creamy-white waxy petals and a lovely fruity fragrance. A good specimen will set you back $5 to $15 and, for best results, it should be planted under the protection of a sunny, south-facing wall.

M. soulangeana is the magnolia most commonly grown hereabouts, with goblet-shaped blossoms white within and purple-flushed on the outside. These plants run ordinarily from $5 to $20 depending on the size and age of the tree.

The Star magnolia, M. stellata, is the one for the impatient gardener, for it blooms at an earlier age than any of the family. The blossoms are white and star-shaped, quite unlike the goblet form of its cousins, and its fragrance is light and singularly refreshing. Prices run about the same as for Soulangeana.

Magnolias like a well drained soil enriched with peat moss and leaf mould, and ideally, a position shaded from the early morning sun, so blossomed buds nipped by frost will have a chance to thaw out slowly before the sun hits them. They appreciate a heavy surface mulch of half-rotted leaves over the rooting area.

If you buy a canned specimen, your nurseryman will slit the metal with his special snippers before you take it home. With a B and B plant, it is a good idea to put a flat stone in the bottom of the planting hole so the heavy ball of roots won't sink too deeply in the soft earth. Slit the burlap after the plant is in position and cut away as much of the sacking as will come away readily before filling in with peaty soil.

Guns Breed Crime

SYDNEY HARRIS

People see and hear only what they want to see and hear. They believe only what they want to believe. And all of us, to one degree or another, tend to make a paranoid distortion of reality when it suits us.

My mail the last few weeks has been heavy with letters from the gun-bearers, who resent some of my recent remarks on ineffectual U.S. gun laws. They accuse me of lying in my black and ugly teeth.

In speaking of crime statistics last month, I wrote that six out of every nine persons slain in the U.S. last year died from a bullet. This is an irrefutable fact. Yet the gun-bearers simply will not accept this fact. They pretend to themselves that I said something else.

In their letters, they pretend I said that six out of every nine persons who died last year died from a bullet. They ask me about automobile fatalities, home accidents, infant deaths, and the casualty rate from cancer and heart disease.

To anyone not blinded by prejudice, it was obvious that my figures were drawn from crime statistics. I said that if guns were not so accessible to every felon and moron in the country, six out of nine persons slain last year might still be walking around.

Of course, more persons die from auto accidents than from gun wounds. More persons die from diseases and accidents in the home of factory. More persons die natural deaths. What has any of this got to do with the possession and use of firearms in criminal activities?

Every police force in the country knows that our shocking crime rate would be more than cut in half if we had tight control of firearms. It is the easy access to automobiles and guns that gives the U.S. one of the highest crime rates in the world. And now that British criminals have begun to use firearms more extensively, their crime rate is mounting to an appalling degree.

The mere possession of a gun is, in itself, an urge to kill. Guns are for killing, and for nothing else. They kill not only by design, but by accident, by madness, by fright, by bravado. No other weapon is so easy to commit murder with, so impulsively and so irrevocably — for the physical distance at which a gun can kill gives emotional distance to the act.

The gun-toters refuse to admit all this, for some unconscious reason that neither we nor they can fully understand. And there is no way to persuade them otherwise; for, as Dean Swift sadly said, "It is impossible to reason a man out of something he has not been reasoned into."

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—"It's all may fault," said Mary Tyler Moore. She was referring to her next picture, What's So Bad About Feeling Good? being made in New York, a metropolis she would rather never see again. "It will be Boston all over again," she continued, and the word Boston caused a slight shudder. 'Twas there that Holly Golightly's Breakfast at Tiffany's gave everyone connected with the musical version of the Truman Capote story some agonizing indigestion. "I stipulated that the movie must be made in New York," said Mary, her dark hair cut Twiggy style, with a helpless shrug aimed in the direction of her husband, television executive Grant Tinker. "As you know, I thought we had left Hollywood, perhaps forever. Grant gave up his job here with NBC for a better job at NBC in New York. We sold our house, our cars; we found a new school for our son in New York. The the play closed without opening and we joyfully agreed — all three of us — that we loved California. My husband gave up his job and we returned. He took another job at Universal, we bought another house, we bought two cars, we entered our son at Beverly Hills school. So now I must return to New York for ten or twelve weeks to make the movie which I had insisted must be made there. It will mean my husband commuting for weekends again, like he did to Boston."

David Merrick, the peripatetic Broadway producer, told me that every time he comes to Hollywood at least three stars will say to him, "Get me a play." Then David asks, "How long are you prepared to stay if the play is a hit?" "They invariably answer," he said, " 'Oh, three months.' I won't take anyone for less than a year."

Director Josh Logan has discovered a good use for King Arthur's heavy crown. It effectively hides the scar resulting from the 12 stitches on Richard Harris's forehead after he fell in his bathtub Easter Sunday. He fell face downward and would have drowned but for a servant hearing the plop plop of the overflowing water. What a tragedy that would have been for Richard — and the $12,000,000 movie Camelot.

Far from disliking the previous wives of husband Roger Vadim, she is currently in St. Tropez where Vadim lived when he was married to Brigitte Bardot, and for added company there is Camilla Streyberg, younger sister of Jane's predecessor, Annette Streyberg. Vadim's son by Catherine Deneuve is now living in London with Catherine and her husband, famed "In" photographer, David Bailey.

ART BUCHWALD Interprets Doomsday

Le Jour d'Income Tax

WASHINGTON — One of the things I find myself doing all the time is explaining our American holidays to friends from abroad. The other day a French friend visiting Washington asked me, "Why does every one in the United States keep talking about April 15?"

"That," I replied, "is known as Income Tax Day, although this year because it fell on a weekend we celebrated it on the 17th."

★ ★ ★

"Is it a religious holiday?" the Frenchman asked.

"Not exactly, though people pray a lot, and there is a good deal of wailing, breastbeating and shredding of clothes."

"How did it start?" the Frenchman wanted to know.

"No one is exactly sure. It's been with us as long as people can remember, and while there are many Americans who would like to give it up, it's become so much a part of our lives that no one dares break with tradition."

"But what do you do on Income Tax Day?"

★ ★ ★

"You celebrate it by taking all the money you earned during the last year, and you give it as a gift to the United States government."

"Then it's a happy day for the government?"

"Yes, it's a happy day for them, but there are no fireworks displays or anything like that. So many people have lost so much that the government feels it would be in bad taste to set off rockets."

"Do you have any special foods that you eat on that day such as you do on Thanksgiving?"

"What are some of the other traditions associated with the day?"

★ ★ ★

"Well, in many houses it's a time when the family gets together and the father gathers his wife and children around him and tells them they are spending too damn much money. The father says the wife is responsible for trying to live beyond their means, and the wife tells the father that he ought to try running the house on what he gives her, and then the kids start crying and everyone becomes pretty emotional about the whole thing. It's a moving sight to see."

"Do the department stores have sales, as they do on Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays?"

"No, because no one has any money left for gas, much less to go to a sale."

"Suppose you don't believe in Income Tax Day and refuse to celebrate it. What happens then?"

"Nothing much. You can ignore it completely if you want to, and go to jail instead."

"Are there many political speeches made on the holiday?"

"Not many. Politicians have always felt April 15 was a family holiday and the less they were seen that day, the happier the families would be."

★ ★ ★

"Do you have anything like a Santa Claus?"

"Not really. There is a legend that at the stroke of midnight an internal revenue service man comes down your chimney and plants a bug in your library. But only the children believe it."

"Does the internal revenue man ever leave any presents for the family?" the Frenchman asked.

"No, but sometimes he attaches your furniture."

"It sounds like a truly wonderful holiday and I'm only sorry we don't have anything like it in France."

Curtsy Bows Out

* * *

Roland Michener, less than an hour before he was installed as Governor-General Monday, said he hoped during his term of office "no one will feel it necessary or ever desirable to curtsy to me or my wife."

Mr. Michener said in a statement the curtsy, often accorded by ladies to the Queen's representative in Canada, and to his wife, "was not something to be ordered or forbidden.

"Personally, I shall be happier as a Canadian among Canadians with such customary Canadian salutations as the handshake or the bow.

* * *

"I hope that this viewpoint will find general acceptance although some may regret it," he said.

Noble Order of Canada

For Best and Bravest

By RON COLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The government Monday night established the Noble Order of Canada, to honor the best and the bravest among Canadians.

It will rank behind only the Victoria Cross and the George Cross, which are awarded by the Queen on the recommendation of her Canadian government.

* * *

In the case of the new order, the awards will not be referred to London, but will be made by the governor-general on the advice of a non-political advisory council.

The new order does not effect the present procedure for awarding other medals.

It gives Canada its first system of Canadian honors and awards.

In 1943, the Canada Medal was instituted to fill the gap, but it was never awarded and is now being replaced by the Order of Canada.

The Canada Medal has been an embarrassment to successive prime ministers. Between five and ten of the medals, bearing the head of the late King George VI, have been gathering dust in the office of the deputy registrar general.

* * *

New Democrat Harold Winch suggested that one, and only one, should be awarded, posthumously to George Vanier, the late governor-general.

Prime Minister Pearson said he would consider the suggestion.

Diefenbaker Presses House

'ABOLISH RECORDS—NOW'

By FRASER KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Conservative leader John Diefenbaker pressed the government Monday to abolish criminal records following disclosures that an MP had been blackmailed about an armed robbery conviction 24 years ago.

He told the Commons that as a Centennial project the government should pass legislation abolishing a man's criminal record after five or 10 years of good behavior.

Sunday night, Frank Howard (NDP, Skeena) admitted on television in Prince Rupert he had served 16 months in jail for three charges of armed robberty in Vancouver in 1943.

BLACKMAIL THREAT

The 42-year-old MP said he decided to admit to his record after he had received a blackmail threat through the mail about two weeks ago.

Mr. Diefenbaker did not refer to Mr. Howard by name, but he prefaced his question by stating the words "in view of events in the last 24 hours . . ."

Solicitor General Pennell replied that officials in his departments are now preparing a memo for submission to the cabinet on the abolition of criminal records.

STUDYING BILL

He also pointed out that the Commons justice and legal committee is studying a bill from Donald Tolmie (L, Welland) which would abolish records after 12 years and would also abolish records incurred while a person was a juvenile

"May I suggest to the minister that time is of the essence in this connection and procrastination is no excuse. Everybody knows, or almost everybody realizes, the injustice of the present position.

"In view of the events of the last two days this Parliament should act now," Mr. Diefenbaker replied.

ACTIVELY CONSIDERING

Mr. Pennell retorted there has been no procrastination and that he has supported the principle in public.

In a speech to the John Howard society some weeks ago Mr. Pennell said he would oppose erasing of criminal records but would support a greatly increased use of the pardon system.

He proposed that the federal government grant pardons which would in effect state that the former inmate had behaved well enough that the authorities considered him not to have a record.

The person's record would not be given out to prospective employers or anyone else and would only be used in the case of subsequent conviction.

MP Won't Resign

This Could End It All — Howard

* * *

"I don't know about my future," the 42-year-old member of Parliament said as he prepared to leave Terrace. "There's a possibility this could end it all." (See also Page 2.)

Mr. Howard said he was prompted to make his criminal record public because of a letter he received in Ottawa two weeks ago demanding $5,000 and threatening disclosure of his record.

CASE IN COURT

A charge was laid here a week ago in connection with the letter and the case now is before the courts.

Mr. Howard said he did not intend to resign and had no plans to make a statement in the Commons when he returns today.

OFFICIALS TOLD

He said that before he had ever run for public office—in the 1952 B.C. election in Skeena provincial riding which he lost by 500 votes—he had informed party officials of his record and a party lawyer had said there was no legal reason he could not hold office.

"I had also disclosed my record to friends and certain party officials a long time ago—and I was resolved to make a public statement at some convenient

Disclosure Leaves MPs Undisturbed

OTTAWA (CP) — Frank Howard's disclosure that he once served time for armed robbery has produced little alarm among his fellow members of Parliament, a snap poll indicates.

Four Conservatives and two Liberals were sampled on their attitude towards the NDP member for Skeena. The prevailing view was that his criminal record was a private matter.

* * *

Gordon Fairweather, Conservative MP for Royal, said the matter should be forgotten. "It's his own business and it happened 25 years ago," the former New Brunswick attorney-general said.

Of the six MPs polled, only Conservative Alfred Hales (Wellington South) suggested Mr. Howard should not be permitted to retain his seat. However, he said it is up to the NDP to decide that question, not Parliament.

* * *

"It's strange that one would be allowed to be an MP with such a record," Mr. Hales said.

Conservative Walter Dinsdale (Brandon-Souris), a former Salvation Army police court social worker, said no stigma should be attached to reformed criminals.

"A man must be judged on what he is, not what he was," said Mr. Dinsdale, a former cabinet minister.

British Belts Stay Cinched

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — The Labor government announced plans Monday to maintain control over pay and prices for at least another 18 months despite protests by the voters and outcries in Parliament.

In the wake of setbacks in local council elections last week, Economics Minister Michael Stewart gave notice that the government intends to take power to impose prolonged delays in pay awards and prices increases in key industries.

The government says such power is necessary to restore Britain's economic health after chronic crisis.

IRKS SUPPORTERS

The new pay-control program would be slightly less sweeping than current powers to block pay and price increases by government order. After the current pay-freeze powers expire this summer, the new 12-month program would permit the government to delay proposed increases for up to seven months.

Spanish Air Ban Official

MONTREAL (CP) — The Spanish delegate to the International Civil Aviation Organization has filed an official notice stating his country has prohibited foreign aircraft from an area adjacent to Gibraltar, an ICAO spokesman said Monday.

"ICAO's function now is to notify all member countries that such a ban is in effect," the spokesman said. "There will be no debate."

The British government said last week it intends "to uphold to the full our rights to use the airfield at Gibraltar."

City Hideaway Hunted

$400,000 Grabbed In Montreal Raid

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said Monday they are searching for a hideaway in downtown Montreal where four armed men were believed to have fled after holding up two Brinks guards at Simpson's department store and escaping with $400,000 in cash and non-negotiable cheques.

A spokesman for Simpson's Montreal Ltd. said about one-third of the loot was cash. It represented Saturday's receipts.

Detectives said they believe the four bandits, who had machine-guns, "rushed to a hideaway in the central district to avoid being seen."

They abandoned their getaway car a few blocks north of the department store, near McGill University.

The stolen money and cheques were contained in three canvas bags.

The bags were being carried by the two Brink's guards from the store's basement. Store employees said the bandits apparently mingled with the employees and, at a given moment, hurriedly donned masks and produced their guns.

Police said the two Brinks guards chased the bandits out onto the street where the four men were seen getting into a green car. The rear license plate was covered by white paint or plastered with white paper to prevent identification.

Roy Etches, general manager of Simpson's in Montreal, said the loss was covered by insurance and by a contract with Brink's Express Co.

A few hours after the robbery, three men held up a credit union in suburban Jacques Cartier and escaped with an estimated $5,000.

One man stayed in a car while the others entered the building and told a teller to empty the contents of the cash drawers.

At least $350,000, not including Monday's holdup, has been taken in various robberies of Brink's employees in the Montreal area in recent months.

Five-Day Layoff Hits Thousands

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Chrysler Canada Ltd. closed its Windsor passenger car assembly plant Monday, laying off 5,000 workers for five days.

One Dead in Zig-Zag Wake

Twister Hits Ontario

Joseph Donnelly, 80, of Dublin was working in a barn on his family farm when the building collapsed after being hit by the tornado.

Hensall is 35 miles north of London and Dublin is 15 miles east of here.

* * *

Volunteer firemen pulled both Mr. Donnelly and his son, Lou, 50, from the wreckage, but the elder Donnelly died several hours later in hospital.

Village residents saw the twister zig-zagging through the field towards them about 4 p.m.

Many thought it was going to slice through the village school where 200 children were about to leave for the day, but at the last moment it veered south of the town.

* * *

In less than a minute it destroyed a gas station; took the roof off a barn, smashed it to pieces and then spread it over fields up to half a mile away; snapped trees at the base; lifted hydro poles out of the ground; lifted a barn off the ground and then drove it against trees 50 yards away; and picked a small car and sent it cartwheeling into the side of a house.

"It was zig-zagging . . . It lifted for a moment and then it came down again.

"I started to run for the house from where I had been working in a barn.

* * *

"I just had time to get down in the basement with my wife. Then it was on us.

"Through the basement window I saw my Volkswagen lifted off the ground. Then it started to roll over and over. It came to rest against the house."

A dozen trees on the property were lifted out of the ground, Mr. Branderhorst said.

* * *

"I was standing here in my husband's service station when I saw it coming.

"I only had time to telephone my husband who was on a call to Exeter. Then it struck.

Race Within NDP Hard to Handicap

BILL THOMAS' NOTEBOOK Tuesday

WHO NEXT?: The NDP leadership race set for Burnaby in June has all the earmarks of a handicapper's nightmare.

Bob Strachan, the incumbent, already knows about Vancouver lawyer Tom Berger, but what about labor leader E. P. O'Neill?

Also rumored as ready to enter the fight is kilted Alex MacDonald, who sits for Vancouver East in the provincial house.

It promises political pundits a season of "pick-the-leader" fun, what with the federal Tories having their big fight in the fall.

BETTER IDEA: The Community Arts Council was going to have its annual meeting April 25 but has decided to have a wine-and-cheese party instead, at the School of Music on Pandora.

To add a little culture to the occasion, Professor Reg Terry has agreed to give a reading from Dylan Thomas' Return Journey, which was a sellout when it was offered at the University of Victoria.

★ ★ ★

ROOM TAX: Chamber of Commerce president Courtney Haddock is putting on a big push to get all rooms and motel accommodation in the Greater Victoria area tagged with a four-per-cent tax.

The idea is to raise funds so that the city can build its convention centre and also provide cash for promotional ventures boosting the area.

Mr. Haddock says he has Mayor Hugh Stephen sold on the idea, and hopes it will get past the intermunicipal committee.

All concerned are aware that the matter would need the approval of the legislature and are fearful that if Premier Bennett sees the possibility of another tax, the whole fund may slide down the drain into consolidated revenue.

★ ★ ★

BIG BITE: Photographer Irving Strickland had a great time when the Yates Street awning was officially opened. He shot his pictures and even lined up for a free toffee sample. Now he wishes he hadn't. One chewy bite and he slipped a gold filling. That toffee was truly worth its weight in gold.

★ ★ ★

TOUGH JOB: Does the provincial department of public works have a pornography consultant? At regular intervals a little man sallies forth to tour the fence paintings around the museum and archives building now under construction.

The man carries a pot of paint and odd bits of board. His job, it appears, is to paint out or cover, as discreetly and as artistically as possible, vulgar additions to the fence art.

One or two of the bits of vandalism struck me as definite improvements over the originals.

If the public works censor feels the crude additions are unworthy of painting over, he tacks a bit of board over the offending areas.

★ ★ ★

POOR TASTES: Renovations to the Duncan Building in Bastion Square have not all been for the better. There is the matter of the doorknob for example.

The door to this building has been refinished in good taste and the antique plate behind the doorknob left intact, but the handsome original knob itself has been replaced with a cheap-looking brass specimen.

Pregnancy Won't Be Affected By Infectious Mononucleosis

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: My daughter got over an attack of infectious mononucleosis in October and is now pregnant. Will the past illness affect her pregnancy in any way?

She was told in the hospital that her liver was enlarged but not "infectious." The doctor says she is all better now and she has gone back to work. Do you think too much walking or going up and down stairs will cause a recurrence? Does hepatitis have anything to do with enlarged liver?—Mrs. E. J.

I do not think the mononucleosis will affect the pregnancy at all.

is a disease primarily of older teen-agers and young adults. I recently saw a survey showing that mono alone represented almost 10 per cent of the admissions to a college infirmary and 20 per cent of the outpatient cases.

The disease, presumably virus borne, makes the patient abnormally listless, lymph glands swell and may be painful, and a variety of other symptoms develop, among them changes in the blood. This provides a useful test for the ailment.

Enlargement of the liver is another aspect, and is a sign that patients must be put to bed. A return to normal size indicates when the patient is on his way to full recovery. If care is taken to avoid complications, there are no after-effects.

There can be relapses if a patient does not get enough rest while the disease is active, but there is no reason to worry about recurrence once the attack is at an end.

The question about hepatitis and the liver in this sort of situation is nothing to worry about, and I suspect that Mrs. E. J. may be confusing infectious hepatitis with infectious mononucleosis.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the purpose of dilation and curettage, and can be cancer be found? — MRS. J.W.

The process means dilation to permit curettage or gentle scraping of the uterus, which is done for various reasons. It may be to remove any remnants after a spontaneous abortion, to stop bleeding, to examine for infection or other disease conditions. Examination by microscope can show whether cancer cells are present, but that is only one of the purposes of this procedure.

MP's Political Future Unknown

time," Mr. Howard said in a telephone interview from Terrace.

"I had decided long ago that there had to be some sort of reason for making the statement and this (the letter) was it. It was as simple as that."

Mr. Howard purchased—"out of my own pocket, not party funds"—time on the Terrace television station late Sunday night and disclosed his record. It was one of his hardest decisions, said the father of one son, "and I'm still not quite sure how to reveal it."

THREE CHARGES

Mr. Howard told the television audience he was convicted on three charges of armed robbery in Vancouver in 1943 under his foster name and was sentenced to concurrent two-year terms in the British Columbia penitentiary in New Westminster on each count.

He said he served "about 19 or 20 months" because of time off for good behavior and came out of prison with $10 in the pockets of his prison-bought suit and got a job in the busy wartime shipyards here.

Court records show that Howard was convicted as Frank Thomas Wood, his foster name. Mr. Howard said in an interview he did not wish to reveal the foster name.

REFORM ADVOCATE

The court records show convictions for two jewelry store robberies and a hotel holdup.

Mr. Howard has represented Skeena since 1957 and has been a noted advocate of penal reforms, which he now admits resulted from his own jail experiences.

He was first elected to public office in 1953 as member of the provincial legislature.

T. C. Douglas, national NDP leader, said in an interview at his suburban Burnaby home that he had known about Mr. Howard's criminal record and the party has no plans to call for Mr. Howard's resignation.

Prior to making his statement Sunday night, Mr. Howard met with B.C. party executive members and told them he planned to make a public statement about his past. He met Saturday with members of his constituency association in Terrace and also advised them of the statement.

Mr. Howard said he did not feel he was forced into revealing his record—"I was going to do it at some convenient time anyway."

Members Calm

The other three MPs asked for their views did not wish to be quoted. But there was no suggestion from any of them that Mr. Howard's old crime was their direct concern, calling for action.

In any case, there is nothing to prevent a person with a record from sitting in Parliament. For his part, Mr. Howard says he does not intend to resign his seat. NDP Leader Douglas says the party does intend to request his resignation.

Mr. Howard has few peers in the Commons for persistence and pugnacity in debate.

A veteran of 10 years in the Commons, he has focussed national attention on the need for prison reform with unremitting attacks on government policy. He frequently visits prisons to make first-hand checks on conditions. Prisoners write him letters about life inside.

A champion of the underdog, he has made many enemies with his blunt attacks. But although rumors of his past circulated from time to time, nobody in the Commons ever used it against him.

Unification Bill Stalled, Too

Debate Limit Hung Up

The government is expected to get its chance today to take the second step in the process of forcing the debate to a close, possibly on April 25.

In the Commons, the legislation to transform the armed forces into a single service was making no progress in its 11th day.

"It is time to hear from a greater authority, from the prime minister," said Roger Regimbal (PC — Argenteuil-Deux-Montagnes).

NOW IN EFFECT

Under the so-called "guillotine rule" now in effect, representatives of all parties have until today to agree voluntarily to some restriction on further debate.

One Conservative, Gerald Baldwin (PC — Peace River), gave up hope of agreement by today's deadline.

Mr. Baldwin had hoped to offer a compromise solution but said in a statement that he could not get on the Conservative list of speakers before today. Instead, he issued a text of his speech proposing that the House pass the unification bill with an amendment that would permit some further debate later.

THREE SERVICES

When the government was ready to proclaim the bill and make the regulations under which the three services would be merged, debate would be allowed on the regulations.

But Mr. Baldwin said the Conservatives and Liberals "are on a collision course like two trains on a single track" and he had little hope of having his compromise accepted.

If, as expected, party representatives report today that they cannot agree, the government can move for a further limit of as little as three days on the debate.

THIS MOTION

This motion would be debated Thursday and, if passed, would force a windup next Tuesday, April 25.

Mr. Regimbal told the Commons Prime Minister Pearson should speak because most Canadians have lost confidence in Defence Minister Hellyer.

Mr. Pearson should approve the bill and give his reasons or admit reservations and postpone unification, he said.

A similar request by Conservatives last week did not produce an appearance by the prime minister.

George Chatterton (PC — Esquimalt-Saanich) said the Liberals have spread bunk and false propaganda that the debate is adversely affecting armed forces morale.

The exodus from the armed forces started long before the unification debate, he said.

Hellyer Ignores Taunt

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Terry Nugent said in the Commons Monday night that he had repeated outside the House "without any kind of privilege" the charges he made against Defence Minister Hellyer last Tuesday.

Mr. Hellyer had warned at the time that if he repeated the statement outside the House "I will have him prove it in a court of law. . . ."

Mr. Nugent had charged Mr. Hellyer with using the "tried true system developed by Adolf Hitler of the big lie."

NO PRIVILEGE

Monday night, he said he had repeated the statement in a speech near Winnipeg last Wednesday without parliamentary privilege, which protects against libel and slander actions.

"I made it plain I wasn't reading from Hansard," he said.

"The minister chickened out," an unidentified Conservative called out as Mr. Nugent made his statement.

CONTINUING DEBATE

Mr. Hellyer remained silent while Mr. Nugent spoke but rose at 10 p.m. to suggest the House sit overtime to give MPs an extra chance to speak. Mr. Nugent rose immediately to block any move on this line, which requires unanimous consent of the Commons.

Howard Battler For Objectives

By JOHN SHORT
Canadian Press

Controversy is no stranger to Frank Howard, New Democratic Party member of Parliament who said Sunday he once served 16 months in the British Columbia penitentiary for armed robbery.

Since his election to the House of Commons in 1967, he has fought verbally with several members of rival parties.

Suspended

He became only the third member of Parliament in Canada's history to be named and suspended. He missed four hours of the day's sitting after an overwhelming vote of 149 to 7.

Five years later, he told the Liberal citizenship and immigration minister, J. W. Pickersgill:

"You are not telling the truth, Jack"

Mr. Howard, a former union leader, apologized when asked to do so by Speaker Lucien Lamoureaux.

A former president of the 5,000-member Local 1-71 of the International Woodworkers of America, Mr. Howard made headlines several times while fighting for penal reform — something he now admits was based on his own experiences — and divorce reform.

Blockade Wins

He collaborated with another NDP member—Arnold Peters of Timiskaming, in a successful blockade of private bills for Quebec divorces. The pair argued for an end to the "degrading practice" of shoving divorce cases through the Commons.

The battle ended in victory after two hectic sessions. The Commons no longer handles individual divorce actions.

Mr. Howard, raised in Kimberley, B.C., a city of about 6,000 in the East Kootenay district near the B.C.-Alberta border, became president of the IWA local in 1950 and represented the NDP in the Skeena riding two years later in a provincial election. He lost in that election but was successful in 1953 and held the seat until a 1958 defeat. The following year, he resigned as head of Local 1-71 and was elected to the House of Commons.

Four Victories

He was successful in four later elections.

He has been the target of criticism for less important matters.

Mr. Howard was turned away from the parliamentary restaurant for his casual dress in 1961 and later appeared at a House committee meeting in an open-necked sports shirt and blue jeans while his associates wore business suits.

'No Bearing'

Last year Mr. Pickersgill received complaints that there were no federal regulations to ensure safe manning of Great Lakes vessels. The minister replied that progress would be speeded by dealing with facts rather than allegations.

After Mr. Howard charged that the transport minister was not telling the truth, Speaker Lamoureux said the westerner was abusing the rules.

"I'll comply with the rules but it has no bearing on the facts as I know them," Mr. Howard said.

The aggressive NDP member is likely to continue unsettling his opponents. His criminal record cannot be used to force him to resign his seat, experts say.

Indignant Griffith hits deck

Italy's Nifty Nino Rambles To Sparkling Title Victory

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Nino Benvenuti, the handsome darling of sunny Italy, won the world middleweight boxing championship Monday night from Emile Griffith on a unanimous decision in an action-packed 15-round match.

Spurred by the constant chants of "Neeno, Neeno" from the Italian partisans in packed Madison Square Garden, Benvenuti made a joke of the 13-5 odds favoring the defending champ.

Floored for the compulsory eight-count in the fourth, after he had dropped Griffith in the second, the stylish Italian showed a dazzling variety of punches on the way to his decisive upset.

While countrymen waved tiny Italian flags and shouted, Benvenuti hit Griffith with every punch in the book. He outsped the man who had won eight straight title bouts in the welter and middle classes.

The announcement of the decision touched off a wild scene in the ancient Garden ring. Nino was raised on the shoulders of his corner men and an Italian flag was waved in the air. The decision was greeted with a roar of approval by the big crowd.

GETS WIDE MARGIN

Both referee Mark Conn and judge Leo Birnbaum scored it 10-5 for Benvenuti. Judge Al Berl scored it 9-6. The Associated Press was 10-5 for the new champion.

It was a bruising, punishing brawl with the speedy Italian controlling the action most of the way with his quick left hook, uppercut and solid right hand punches to the head.

The ring was a swarming mass with the Garden police unable to control the action for a few wild minutes as countrymen tried to congratulate the new champ. They climbed on the ropes, until a crew of special police were able to whistle them out of their frenzy.

It was the 72nd victory to one defeat for Benvenuti, who won the Olympic welter crown in 1960. In the end, he, not Cassius Clay, was voted the outstanding boxer of the Games.

Griffith came out of the fight with lumps under both eyes. His left eye was almost closed at the finish. The winner was scratched on the bridge of the nose in the second and was gashed on the nose in the seventh.

Dr. Harry Kleiman of the New York State Athletic Commission came into the ring to examine the cut on Benvenuti's nose after the ninth.

Griffith was unable to get inside.

When he seemed to zoom in on target in the eighth, ninth and tenth, Benvenuti suddenly got a second wind. The new champ closed with a rush and controlled the action down the stretch.

Emile got up at four.

It was at the one-minute mark of the fourth that Griffith, 153½, threw a long right to the side of Benvenuti's head. The Italian sagged into the ropes, slid to the canvas and bounced up at five.

The bout, which is sure to have a rematch, drew 14,251 fans who paid $141,799. It also was seen on 80 television stations with the New York area blacked out.

Griffith now with a record of 52-8, got about $90,000 from the fight and the new champ about $30,000.

Mikita Doubtful Leafs Have Edge

TORONTO — Toronto Maple Leafs, 8-5 favorites to end their Stanley Cup semi-final in tonight's sixth game, have that lean and hungry look and Chicago Black Hawks are worried about the condition of all-star centre Stan Mikita.

Mikita pulled a leg muscle in Saturday's game in Chicago and was unable to take part in a skating session on Sunday.

Today's National Hockey League Stanley Cup semi-final game between Chicago and Toronto at Toronto can be seen on Channels 2 and 6 starting at 5 p.m.

"It looks as if he isn't going to make it," Chicago coach Billy Reay said yesterday.

Mikita is in Toronto with the Hawks, who trail the best-of seven series, 2-3, and Reay added that, "We'll hope for the best."

Reay was informed that goalkeeper Glenn Hall, who stopped a puck with his lower lip in the fourth game, would be ready to play tonight. But he didn't state whether Hall or Denis DeJordy would be in the nets.

It is expected that leftwinger Doug MoMhns, who has missed one game of the playoffs and has a back condition which makes his status doubtful for each game, would be able to play.

Meanwhile, confidence was everywhere as the Leafs went through a rugged 90-minute workout yesterday. Coach Punch Imlach was ebullient, centre Dave Keon was flying, captain George Armstrong appeared ready to play again after missing the last three games and goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk even cracked the odd smile.

Armstrong was asked about his right knee, injured when he was decked by Bobby Hull in the second game.

"Don't ask me, ask the coach," he answered. "He knows more about it than I do but it feels okay."

"If he can skate he'll be on the bench," Imlach chimed in. "He's the captain and we need him out there."

Dodgers Minus Sandy Hardly Threat of Old

They still have 158 games left to play but it's the concensus after four games that the Los Angeles Dodgers don't look like much without Sandy Koufax.

The defending National League champions, rolled over in four games by Baltimore Orioles in the world series, have still to win. In fact, they haven't come close to winning with even Don Drysdale failing them on Sunday, when they lost their fourth, 4-1, to Atlanta Braves.

There hasn't been much change in the Dodger attack, which used to be built around a base on balls, a steal by Maury Wills, an infield out and an outfield fly.

PITCHING BAD

Dodgers have made 37 hits and scored 10 runs in their four games, which is about par. But their pitching staff has given up 47 hits and 31 runs and not until Drysdale did it Sunday did any starting pitcher survive the fifth inning. And Drysdale didn't get by the sixth.

Also having early troubles are Pittsburgh Pirates, concensus choice for the National League pennant.

Playing in the only game which wasn't weathered out yesterday, the Pirates took a 9-6 defeat from the New York Mets for their fourth setback in six games.

Making it sting a bit more, ex-Pirate Don Cardwell hit a two-run homer for the Mets and lasted until the eighth inning to get credit for the victory.

On Sunday, the fourth Dodger defeat shared the spotlight with a one-hit pitching performance by Baltimore's Steve Barber and two marathon American League games.

Barber had a no-hitter going until Jim Fregosi doubled with one out in the ninth inning and wound up with a 3-0 win over California Angels.

New York Yankees won the season's longest game, defeating Boston Red Sox, 7-6, when Joe Pepitone hit an 18th-inning single. Chicago White Sox completed a doubleheader sweep of Washington Senators when Jerry Adair drew a bases-

University of Victoria Norsemen finished all alone in first place in the Victoria District Soccer League second division Sunday when London Boxing Club held Victoria West to a 1-1 draw.

Wests needed a victory to catch the Norsemen but the third place Boxers earned their point in the hard-fought match which brought regular season play to an end.

O'Keefes Await Tie-Breaker

VANCOUVER (CP)—Burnaby Villa and St. Andrews played to a 1-1 tie in Pacific Coast Soccer League action Monday night —the last regular league game of the season.

The result left Burnaby in a tie with New Westminster Royals for sixth place in the eight-team league. St. Andrews remained deep in the cellar 18 points behind the sixth-place pair.

Firefighters and the North Shore who tied for third place in the final standings will meet Wednesday to decide which winds up in third and which in fourth. The game is necessary to determine playoff schedules.

Wednesday's winner will meet second-place Columbus in one playoff semi-final while the loser will tackle league champion Victoria in the other.

Pistol Men Qualify

Two Victoria area marksmen have qualified for the final trials in pistol shooting for the Canadian team to compete in the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg this summer.

The chairman of the International Shooting Committee has announced that Quinton Mar, 1966 National outdoor Pistol champion, and Bruce McDonald of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment at Colwood are still in the running.

Speaking Briefly

Scotty Won't Cancel Fine But Owners Should Clam Up

TORONTO (CP)—Scotty Morrison, referee-in-chief of the National Hockey League, lashed back Monday at suggestions that the league does not back its officials.

"I'm sick and tired of hearing stories that these guys don't get any support and suggestions that the league should do more for them.

"We have done more this year for our officials than ever before and we'll stand beside them through any criticism. Officials this year received higher playoff increases, better pension benefits and more guaranteed bonuses."

Morrison was speaking at a news conference he called after announcing Sunday that NHL referee Vern Buffey will be fined for publicly replying to criticism from Bill Jennings, president of New York Rangers.

Jennings was upset over the work of Ashley in an April 1 contest between the Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs — a game that could have decided second place in the NHL. Jennings was quoted as calling Ashley a "bush-leaguer" and "incompetent."

BUFFEY REPLIED

In his rebuttal, Buffey said: "It is ridiculous that Jennings can rap officials like he does. How dare he brand an official such as Ashley a bush-leaguer and incompetent? Ashley has forgotten more about hockey than Jennings will ever know."

Morrison said the fine will be handled internally within the league and denounced suggestions that this showed the NHL does not support its referees publicly.

"We do back our officials. Clarence Campbell, president of the league, backs them all the way. These accusations, particularly from the owner level, do nothing whatsoever for the league."

Morrison said he agreed with Buffey's views, but disagreed with the way he publicly presented them.

"I agree that public abuse at the owner level must stop. But Buffey is not the man to stop it and he was disciplined because what he said was a breach of working conditions."

Alberni Booters Tops In Minor Soccer Meet

Up-Island teams maintained their slight edge in the Centennial edition of the Vancouver Island Juvenile Soccer Championships as each area picked up two wins in Sunday's four games.

Top award in the tournament went to the Division VI Alberni Valley Elks, whose team captain, Mike Olsen, received the trophy for the club showing the best sportsmanship combined with ability, from Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

Elks had defeated Gorge FC, 2-1, as the up-Islanders won two games, lost one and drew a fourth.

A total of 31 trophies, including one to Gorge division I player, Jack Clarkson, who was judged as the most sportsmanlike player in the city league by the players, were given out in addition to approximately 300 centennial medallions.

Billed as the feature game of the tournament, the division III game between Gorge FC and Nanaimo Brechin SC was just that.

George Hyne scored with just two minutes left to play to give the Victoria team a thrilling, 2-1, victory. Rick Lamoureux gave Gorge the early lead in the first half but Randy Adamson tied it up in the early minutes of the second half.

ROYALS TOO STRONG

The other Victoria area win on Sunday came in the division I match where Cosmopolitan Royals proved too strong for Nanaimo Harewood Skillings.

Royals won, 8-0, behind Bob Hammer's three goal effort. Lorne Bunyan added two goals and Billy Smith, Rudi Kuebler and Gord Gillett each scored once.

Southend Rotary of Nanaimo proved the better opportunists in the Division II match, defeating Lake Hill, 2-1, when a gust of wind lifted the ball over Victoria goalkeeper Ted Reading for the winning goal.

Daryl Hooker gave Lake Hill an early lead but Laurie Grey and Dwight Morris scored for Nanaimo as goalkeeper John Marshall stood up well under pressure.

Alberni Valley picked up its second title in the Division VIII match where Rick Lloyd's second half goal gave the Jaycees a 1-0 victory over Cordova Bay.

Next year's championships are scheduled for Alberni.

Close Contests In Rifle Shoot

Williams tasted victory along with teammates Ernie Foulser, Ray McDougall and Colin Wyatt in the "A" class as the Victoria Fish and Game Club edged Burnaby, 1,089-1,081.

Individual winners were Bill Crosby of Burnaby, McDougall and Jim Goguen of Victoria, Rick Langham of Campbell River and Dev Yates of Chemainus.

Louise Brown To Captain Tennis Team

TORONTO (CP) — Louise Brown of Port Credit, Ont., was named captain of Canada's Federation Cup women's tennis team for the sixth time Saturday.

Players named earlier to the team are Susan Butt of Victoria, ranked first in Canada; Vicki Berner of Vancouver and Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont.

The Fedreation Cup matches, two singles and one doubles, will be played in Berlin starting June 5.

Victories Come Hard In Island Open Golf

Competition rarely is closer than the results of Sunday's championship round play in the Vancouver Island open golf tournament at Gorge Vale Golf Club.

Of the eight matches, only two were decided before the 18th hole.

Bob Hunt of Uplands mastered the windy conditions to breeze past Cowichan's Tom Reynolds, 6 and 4, in the most one-sided match of the day.

Laurie Kerr of Royal Colwood had the toughest time in reaching the quarter finals. Kerr had to win the last three holes to square his match with Upland's Claude Heggie and then won the match on the 20th hole.

Gorge Vale's Vince Clarkson also needed an extra hole to get past youthful Colwood star Ricky Kent.

Biggest upset of the day, which really wasn't an upset, came when Al MacLeod defeated former titlist, pro Bill Wakeham in an all-Gorge Vale match.

MacLeod has never been beaten by Wakeham in match play and took the duel on the 18th when the loser was unable to recover after hitting a trap on his second shot.

TRAPP ONLY PRO

Only pro remaining in the event is Victoria's Vaughan Trapp who defeated Cowichan veteran Gordie Whan on the 18th. Trapp, who tied for medalist honors with Dr. George Bigelow and Wakeham, was behind in the match until Whan three-putted the final two holes.

Also winning on the 18th were Victoria's Doug Munro over Mel Carlow of Gorge Vale and Cowichan's Brian Stott over George Murphy of Gorge Vale.

Won't Take Lives Says Clay As Latest Injunction Denied

CHICAGO (AP) — The United States Supreme Court delivered a blow to Cassius Clay's fight to stay out of the Army Monday and the heavyweight boxing champion countered by saying he would take any punishment rather than become a fighting soldier.

Clay said he would appear for scheduled induction April 28 in Houston "but I will stand up for my religious beliefs even if it means I am put in jail for 50 years or am stood up in front of machine guns."

With draft officials rejecting his pleas on grounds that he is a Black Muslim minister, Clay had filed various motions with the court to freeze his draft situation until the court can act on several constitutional arguments raised by him in lower courts.

FIGHT TO GO ON

In New York, his attorney, Hayden Covington, said, "I am disappointed, naturally, over the Supreme Court action. However, this is only the 10th round of a 15-round decision and I can tell you definitely there will be 15 rounds."

three fights if the induction were not delayed.

The attorneys claim the Selective Service Act gives the president and governors unconstitutional discretion "to make appointments of members of draft boards throughout the country in a manner that discriminates against Negroes contrary to the 5th Amendment to the United States Constitution."

In Chicago, Clay said:

"I will not take the lives of other persons or take part in war.

"Whatever sufferings I have to face are all for Allah."

Clay was asked if he would refuse his induction by not taking the oath.

"I'm not saying that, but I've made my decision and I will give it at that time. You can make your own conclusion when I say I will stand on my religious beliefs and will be ready to face any punishment in following them."

Fans Flock to View Pro Soccer's Start

Professional soccer made its United States start on Sunday and the response to the five National Soccer League matches held out considerable promise for the future.

Biggest crowds showed up at Philadelphia, where soccer outdrew both professional baseball and basketball. There were 14,163 fans out to see the Spartans open the NSL season with a 2-0 win over Toronto Falcons.

By comparison, there were only 9,000 out to watch the Phillies in the National Baseball League and a similar number for the National Basketball Association final between the 76ers and San Francisco Warriors.

In Los Angeles, 9,048 fans were out as the Toros defeated New York Generals, 3-2; In Baltimore there were 8,434 customers to see the Bays blank Atlanta Chiefs, 1-0, the televised game and there were 8,840 fans at Oakland, where California Clippers played to a 3-3 tie with Pittsburgh Phantoms.

In the other match, played in Chicago, the Spurs beat St. Louis Stars, 2-1.

Results didn't leave any tie for the league lead. The NSL has adopted a complicated form of figuring points for league standings in which victories count six points, draws count three points and all clubs get a point for each of the first three goals it scores in each game.

Los Angeles leads the Western Division with nine points, Chicago is second with eight. Philadelphia leads the Eastern Division with eight points and Baltimore is second with seven.

Olympic Hopefuls Face Tougher New Standards

VENICE, Italy (AP) — The International Amateur Athletic Federation's council Saturday told the world high jumpers that if they cannot clear seven feet they are not welcome in Mexico City for the 1968 Olympic Games.

The council set up a stringent list of standards in hopes of cutting down the number of athletes competing in the coming Games. It pointed out that similar standards, although less demanding, held down the number of competitors in Tokyo in 1964. However, there were more than 5,000 athletes there.

The council also approved an all-weather track for the Mexican games and said the track and field program would be completed in eight days instead of 10 as at Tokyo. The Mexico dates would be Oct. 13-20.

The existing Olympic rule which permits a country to send at least one entry for each event, no matter whether he meets the new standards or not, still holds.

Where tryouts are held to determine a national team, only those who equal or better the following times or distances may be brought to Mexico City:

1,500 metres — 3:42; 5000 metres — 13:50; 10,000 metres — 29.0; 3,000-metre steeplechase — 8:45.

Barker Nabs Top Loot In Tourney

Barker finished second to Barry Stowe in the eight game qualifying round from which the top five of the 40 entries advanced to round-robin play.

Stowe led the qualifiers with 1,553 followed by Barker, 1,524, Doug Aune, 1,523, Pete Svetich and Don Shaw 1,506.

Stowe won $80, Svetich $50, Aune $30 and Shaw $20.

Budget Hike: This Is the Year

This city will not make the increase in school budget appear to vanish, by chopping general purpose items.

The mill rate may go up by 4.58, all accounted for by the increase in school costs which must be carried by Courtenay.

The city learned its share of the budget is more than $321,000.

★ ★ ★

On advice from former school board secretary-treasurer C. M. Peterson, the city had allowed for $310,000 in its budget.

Last year Courtenay had to pay $256,000.

Peterson

He told council it is time the city budget ceases to be pared to suit the school bill, without raising the mill rate.

Finance committee chairman Ald. Ken Willis agreed.

★ ★ ★

"This is the year to accept the budget," he commented, indicating if the mill rate goes up because of school costs, taxpayers will see where the costs are.

Ald. Willis said this would lend support to the case for a new cost-sharing agreement with the provincial government.

Administrator Bill Moore said of the 84 school districts in the province, the Courtenay district is 62nd poorest.

"This is on pupils per capita per assessment ... in other words, we have a poor assessment basis and a large number of pupils."

The city's share of the school budget prepresents 24.9 per cent of the total of the portion which cannot be shared with the provincial government.

Pretty Student Heads for Sky

DUNCAN—The wings of the Duncan Flying Club grow prettier and stronger as a frustrated spring tries to reach the Cowichan Valley.

Club president Roy Teasdale said eight members are on the waiting list for flying instruction.

Students now are being picked up by the instructor at the Duncan air-strip, taken to Victoria International Airport, where they practice the rudiments of take-off and landing and then return to the Duncan strip.

Crofton Local Blasts Labor Board:

Union Issue — 'Let Majority Rule'

★ ★ ★

Labor Committee Will Fight For Vital Security Clause

★ ★ ★

PORT ALBERNI—A blast at the Canadian pulp union was fired by the reactivated Alberni Valley Labor Emergency Committee here.

★ ★ ★

It has been dormant since that time, and has suddenly been sparked by the crisis in the pulp mill industry, over union jurisdiction.

Head of the committee is Erick Pemberton, president of Local 592, International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

The co-ordinating committee includes representatives from leading labor organizations in the Alberni Valley, but it is distinct from the Alberni and District Labor Council.

The committee expressed its concern over the fact that MacMillan Bloedel initally declared its intention to arbitrate union security.

★ ★ ★

"This is the provision in union agreements that requires that union membership be maintained in good standing.

"The IWA struck for six weeks in 1952 over this issue.

"The committee was also amazed to hear that Local 8 of the Canadian pulp workers instructed legal counsel to challenge the legality of union security provided in labor agreements," the committee said.

"The committee questions the honesty and integrity of . . . union leaders, who are responsible for actions driving at the very heart of organized labor."

The B.C. Federation of Labor has been contacted and it has been requested that the matter be brought to the attention of all its affiliates, committee spokesmen said.

CROFTON—The Labor Relations Board has been attacked for provoking the tangled Harmac union situation.

"The board is responsible for the ridiculous situation at Harmac," charged Frank Jameson, president of Local 2 (Crofton) Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

"If a democratic vote had been granted a year ago at Harmac, we would not be faced today with a small minority group trying to have the vast majority of workers terminated."

Majority Must Go

The International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers indicated the strength of the Canadian union's ranks, by asking the courts for an order forcing MacMillan Bloedel to suspend 832 of the 950 men at Harmac.

The application will be heard Thursday in Supreme Court. Also to be heard Thursday is an argument by lawyer Mary Southin that the security clause cannot apply.

In other developments:

● A Canadian Press report quoted Syd Thompson, president of Vancouver IWA as saying "to request the suspension of workers at Harmac can only be interpreted as the work of a madman, or someone deliberately trying to damage the labor movement."

● The troubled pact between locals of the IWA and Pulp-Sulphite to apply for certification at Gold River drew praise from Pulp-Sulphite local at Port Mellon.

● The pact was attacked by the Victoria local of the IWA.

● Seven workers at Harmac may be suspended by MacMillan Bloedel today, as requested by Pulp-Sulphite. This could be a prelude to firing of more than 800.

Union Needs Faith

Mr. Jameson said "Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada believes the only union that should have the bargaining power for a local is the union which has the large majority of workers solidly behind that union."

The Crofton officials commented "We proved this last year, when we were informed that one of the locals we were trying to represent was a borderline case.

"We immediately dropped our application for certification, because we feel we cannot truly represent the workers unless they have faith we can do a good job.

"In the past week we have seen certain officials of the IWA, the CLC, Pulp-Sulphite and Ken Warde (Nanaimo Pulp-Sulphite head) have made many and varied statements.

"The net result has been that they utterly confused themselves, and have caused dissension in their own ranks, which all goes to prove that it is more than time that we had a good Canadian union run by the rank and file, and not dictated to from the top."

Firm Disagrees

In spite of the report that seven men would be suspended today at Harmac, the company made it clear it will not fire the men before there is a court hearing on the issue.

A Boyd Harris, lawyer for the company, told Supreme Court in Vancouver MacMillan Bloedel does not agree with Pulp-Sulphite's interpretation of the closed shop clause in the union contract.

The Harmac local of the International is suing the Canadian union and the Nanaimo Hourly Paid Workers Benevolent Society for the return of $40,000 in cash and securities.

Pulp-Sulphite told the court the society was a sham, and its members later became known as Local 8.

The International claims that the money, office furniture and records which were taken into the fold of the society, rightly belong to the Harmac Local.

Is Unity Coming?

The Port Mellon local of Pulp-Sulphite had more friendly feelings toward the IWA.

Referring to the Gold River alliance, George Hostland, acting president of the local, said:

"We believe it is fundamental that anything which tends to establish unity in the labor movement is good for the trade union movement and for the workers.

"We hope this first step will lead to greater understanding and eventually to unity among all unions in the forest, lumber and pulp industry in British Columbia."

Victoria IWA members, local president Murray Drew said, expressed disenchantment with the situation existing in the Gold River certification struggle.

With a hearing scheduled by the Labor Relations Board in Vancouver for today, two applications have been filed for rights to serve as bargaining agent at Gold River — the Port Alberni IWA local and Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada.

Let's Build Now Says Dorning

DUNCAN — Cowichan school board members approved in principle additional expenditure of $30,000 in a referendum Monday night which involved additions to Quamichan and George Bonner High Schools.

Trustee George Routley said, "It is the relocation and re-establishment of the other rooms which caused the increase."

ADEQUATE?

Trustee Jack Efford said, "Surely children will get an adequate education.

"We're in a period of tight money and we might have another change in the future," he said.

SOMETHING NEW NOW

Board chairman Dr. Neil Dorning said, "We are into a new curriculum ... if we are going to change and we are building something new, let us build it now. We have to revamp it anyway."

Original estimated costs for the enlargements were $95,000 for Quamichan high school and $85,000 for George Bonner high school.

Trustees accepted the bid from Willock Truck Equipment Co. Ltd. of $16,112 for the purchase of a 1967 Bluebird All-Canadian 73-passenger school bus.

Only God Can Make a Tree

Blackpowder Trail Caper

Top Chef

David Keim, a student of Vocational Training School at Nanaimo, won the trophy for individual food creation at the Canadian Centennial Competition in Toronto. He built a spare rib hut, to take the prize. More than 10,000 people will see the display. He and classmates will be back April 21, packing the cup.

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO — There was dirty work on the old Blackpowder Trail!

And a reward has been posted — $100.

INFORMATION

The reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the thief.

MAD ACT

Frank Ney, of the realty firm, said that some of the shrubs are irreplaceable.

"It makes me as mad."

COMMUNITY

He said the theft was not from the firm as the shrubs had been donated to the community as part of the development of one of the Island's largest subdivisions.

The progress toward beauty started at the entrance, with shrubs and flowers bursting into color in 12 terraces.

POWDER WORKS

CLEAR VIEW

"The sooner they're stopped, the better for the whole community," said Mr. Ney, referring to several other areas which have also been hit by the tree rustlers.

TWO STRIKES

The Dairy Queen on Nicol Street has been a two-time loser, last fall, and again two weeks ago.

Harewood Shopping area too, has been victim so often that removal of the planter boxes there has been considered.

But the Claire theft has been the biggest.

COME BACK

According to Mr. Ney, the $7,000 planter boxes there have been classified as possibly the largest in Canada, by an authority connected with a gardening association.

"If the trees were to be returned undamaged, charges would not be pressed," offered Mr. Ney.

He said that he would be willing to consider the thefts a possible lapse of thought.

Duncan Pensioners Hit Fountain Plan

DUNCAN — Old Age Pensioners are angry because of a suggestion that civic centennial funds might be spent on a fountain.

The group will send a "strong letter" to city council protesting a fountain as a centennial project.

OAP members here said the money should be used for the benefit of all residents.

The letter to council will recommend the city co-operate with North Cowichan in the building of a community hall.

OAP members said this would be a practical centennial project.

Other business:

Summer meetings will be held 7:30 p.m. Monday evenings.

Arrangements are being made for the annual Grandparents Afternoon Tea Party.

A summer picnic with other Island centres will be held at Sooke in July.

Barkerville Hits Chemainus

CHEMAINUS—B.C.'s best selling contribution to the Canadian centenary, The Best of Barkerville, will have a one-night stand 8 p.m. tonight at Chemainus High School.

The vaudeville show recalls the boom days of the gold mining town of Barkerville.

Several weeks ago the Best of Barkerville was a sellout at Duncan and other Vancouver Island centres.

The same group for some years has been providing old-time entertainment at the Theatre Royal at Barkerville when thousands of visitors tour the reconstructed golden city of the Cariboo.

Lovely View... for Hunters Too!

PARKSVILLE — It was a running start of Parksville's 100-mile dash for the honor of confederation.

★ ★ ★

Boys and girls between 12 and 18 may enter.

Entries in either class will be accepted to the end of the year. The only requirement to "winning" a medal is the runner's word that he completed 100 miles of running during the centennial year.

Adding incentive is the promise from a local businessman that he will provide a junior and a senior trophy for those who first complete the 100 miles.

In the adult registrations, almost equal interest was shown by women as by men. There were eight women out of the 17 seniors.

Barber Cut Fields

By MARY TAYLOR

PORT ALBERNI — Back when John the barber first got his barbering certificate in 1916, slick straight razors did the job, and shaving mugs were a stylish gift for men.

Today, John Mintianski still runs his own barber shop upstairs in the Port Alberni Legion building, and his customers find it hard to believe that he is 82.

HEADS WEST

John the barber, having received his barbering certificate while working at the Sacred Heart College in Sudbury in 1916 decided to head West, and the most westerly place they sold tickets to was Port Alberni.

Unfortunately, the price was high, $200, so for $12 he went to Winnipeg to work as a harvest-hand. He went and helped with the crop until he thought he had enough to get to Edmonton.

Again regular tickets were too high, but he had a friend from home living near Edmonton, who asked him to come and help on his farm.

ON LAST STAGE

After working for his friend for several months, he set off on the last stage of his journey, via—train and boat to Port Alberni, at a cost of $30.

Mr. Mintianski was a leading horseman in a field artillery unit in Austro-Hungary as a young man.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Mintianski have plenty of interest in life. While Mr. Mintianski tends to his barbering, Mrs. Mintianski runs a popular pet supply business, and raises tropical fish.

During the 1940's he was an air-raid warden in Port Alberni, and only a few weeks ago, the couple was honored at a special ceremony at the Elks Hall, marking Mr. Mintianski's 43rd year as a member.

DUNCAN — A total of 100 paintings by members of the Crofton Art Group will be displayed at the 5th annual exhibition on May 3 and 4 at the Legion Hall here. All pictures are new works and will receive their first showing. Proceeds will go towards furnishing a four-bed ward in King Daughters' Hospital.

★ ★ ★

PARKSVILLE — Rare pictures of wild animals and scenery of Arctic glaciers will be shown in a film to be screened at Parksville junior high school auditorium at 7:30 p.m. today. The film, sponsored by Parksville and Qualicum Beach fish and game associations, will show closeups of polar, grizzly and giant Kodiak bears in their native habitat.

★ ★ ★

CROFTON — A meeting of the newly formed Cowichan Valley Amateur Minor Hockey Association will be held at 8 p.m. today in the Crofton Community Hall. Main item to be discussed will be the use of the centennial arena at Fuller's Lake Park and election of a manager, directors and coaches.

★ ★ ★

CAMPBELL RIVER — Fred Henry Scott of Campbell River has been charged in Dawson Creek with driving without due care and attention in connection with a weekend traffic death of 12-year-old Malcolm Bruce Selhauer of Arras, 11 miles west of Dawson Creek.

★ ★ ★

NANAIMO — The second annual tourist services seminar will be held in the Nanaimo Tally-Ho Hotel at noon on April 26 to discuss the topic, the Value of the Visitor to Vancouver Island. Guest speaker will be Ken Woodward, of the B.C. government Travel Association. Tickets can be obtained from the Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce.

★ ★ ★

PARKSVILLE — Parksville's centennial project fund recently received a boost with a $500 cheque from MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. The presentation was made on behalf of the company by the superintendent of Northwest Bay division, Robert Miller, to Ray Young, chairman of the Parksville centennial committee. Latest plans include tennis courts to be installed in the community park and a stage in the community hall.

★ ★ ★

TOFINO — The Catholic Women's auxiliary here is organizing its second annual hobby show to be held on May 4. Last year's show drew large crowds and the exhibits, especially Indian handicrafts, were highly praised. A centennial table will be included in this year's show, and anyone wishing to enter can contact Mrs. S. Bird or Mrs. G. Gibson.

NITINAT LAKE — A second work party comprised of Older Boys Parliamentarians from throughout B.C. will descend on Nitinat Lake on the May 24th weekend to put the finishing touches on the Indian band's new hall and landscaping which they constructed during the Easter weekend. The boys, mainly teachers and students, raised $2,000 towards the work by the sale of bonds. The band raised the remaining $10,000.

Twin Cities

Waterfront Goes Boom

PORT ALBERNI — Directors of the Pacific Coast Association of Port Authorities, at a board of directors meeting here expressed surprise and delight at the tremendous growth of this area.

Port Alberni's gain in export tonnage annually largely results from the huge MacMillan Bloedel industrial complex in the valley, the group was told.

Members had a tour of the company's pulp and paper mill, Canada's largest.

U.S. DELEGATES

More than 50 out-of-town delegates and wives were on hand, 34 of them from the United States, from as far south as San Diego and Los Angeles.

The group arrived by chartered bus, with an unexpected snowfall over the mountains providing beauty bonus that thrilled some of the California delegates in particular.

Carl Anshelm, now of Vancouver, who was a harbor commissioner here until his recent move to the mainland, escorted the women on their sightseeing expedition.

The two-hour tour of the Alpulp operation in the later afternoon was one of the highlights of the visit, several delegates said, expressing astonishment at the vast size of the industrial plants operating in a small community.

100 GUESTS

One hundred guests attended the final dinner meeting, which was presented on behalf of the Port Alberni Harbor Commission by MacMillan Bloedel Limited.

Mayors Fred Bishop and Les Hammer welcomed the guests, and Mayor Hammer explained the significance of some of the local place names. They stem from the very earliest shipping industry, the early trips of the Spaniards in their search for riches in the new world.

UNABLE TO ATTEND

Chairman Dennis O'Brien expressed the regret of the association that Captain and Mrs. Barney Johnson of Vancouver were unable to attend because of the visit of Ottawa officials to the port at that time.

NORTH OF 49TH

Lorenz Reuhle of San Diego, first vice-president of the Pacific Coast Association of Port Authorities, expressed the delight of the group in their opportunity to meet north of the border.

In tribute to Mr. O'Brien, Mr. Reuhle said, "It is fellows like Dennis O'Brien, and places like Port Alberni that make this association what it is today."

Tom Boag, speaking on behalf of MacMillan Bloedel, pointed out the importance of shipping in this area, where 80 per cent of the products are moved out by water.

Port Will Turn On for Sailors

By RAY WORMALD

PORT ALBERNI — Officers and men of HMCS Beacon Hill are going to have a hectic schedule when they visit this bustling West Coast community later this month.

The seasoned ocean-escort will spend two days here in connection with the Pacific Maritime Command's contribution to centennial celebrations.

The Beacon Hill will arrive here at 3 p.m. April 21 and leave at 8 a.m. April 24.

★ ★ ★

From the time the warship arrives until she leaves, members of the ship's company will be busy with one project or another.

Detailed plans for the visit have been mapped out by Cpt. R. D. Barrett, head of a special subcommittee of Port Alberni Centennial Committee.

★ ★ ★

On hand to welcome the visiting warship will be the Port Alberni's sea cadet band and an official party comprising civic and business dignitaries and members of the Port Alberni Centennial Committee headed by William Russell.

Minutes after docking the ship will be open to the public.

★ ★ ★

That evening Lieutenant-Commander S. C. Gould, commanding officer, and his officers will be entertained at a Tri-Services Club mess dinner. Theatres of the city will admit sailors in uniform free of charge.

On Saturday, April 22, between 10 and 11:30 a.m., the ship will host a children's party. Plans for this event have been made by Captain Alan H. Neelon of the Salvation Army.

That afternoon a ship's team will meet the Port Alberni Senior B's in a basketball game at the Alberni Athletic Hall.

Between 1 and 4 that afternoon (Apr. 22.) the ship will hold open house for all residents of the area. That evening, starting at 8, the ship's company will attend a special concert to be held at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall. Arrangements have been made by Mrs. Margaret Hepner.

April 23 members of the ship's company will lead a church parade to Port Alberni's First United Church, led by the Sea Cadet band. And again that day, between 1 and 4 p.m., the Beacon Hill will be open to the public.

Many residents of the area plan inviting Beacon Hill sailors for afternoon drives and supper at their homes on April 23.

★ ★ ★

That evening, starting at 9, sailors from the ocean-escort will present a lively fireworks display at Port Alberni's Recreation Park.

The ship will leave here at 8 a.m. on April 24.

LADYSMITH — Liquor and other goods were stolen early Monday by burglars who forced their way into the Royal Canadian Legion premises through a side door. The Legion appears to be a regular target for thieves who have entered the building several times.

Nation-wide Appeal

Retarded Seek Cash

DUNCAN — Dr. Joseph Pawlowski of Duncan has accepted the honorary chairmanship of the Retarded Childrens's Flowers of Hope program in conjunction with Mother's Day.

This program, part of a nation-wide appeal, will take place during Canadian Retarded Children's Week, May 14-20.

The appointment of Dr. Pawlowski was announced by Miss I. R. Woodward of the Duncan and District Association for Retarded Children.

Dr. Pawlowski said "our goal this year is $3,595.

"We believe all citizens of Duncan and district will want to help us raise this amount.

"Of the retarded children who live in our midst, most are mildly retarded, many are only moderately retarded and very few are seriously retarded.

"It is up to all of us that these children are given every opportunity to grow into useful, happy grown-ups and to take their place in and contribute to our community."

Pill Won't Kill Boom

Immigrants Offset Birth Drop

By BILL STAVDAL
Legislative Reporter

Despite The Pill, immigration makes B.C. the fastest-growing province in Canada, according to government planners, statisticians and officials.

A healthy labor market and B.C.'s attractions as a retirement haven will continue to draw immigrants in the foreseeable future, they predicted in a series of interviews last week.

Birth and marriage statistics indicate otherwise at first glance. All over the United States and Canada, the birth rate has been falling dramatically in the past few years, at a time when the number of marriages is increasing.

The Canadian birth rate has been falling for 10 years. In 1957 it was 28.2 per thousand. In 1961 it was 26.1. It fell to 21.4 per thousand in 1965, last year for which figures are available.

In the same period B.C.'s birth rate had consistently been lower than the Canadian average. It has dropped from 25.7 in 1958 to 17.8 last year, according to figures from the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health.

Not Only Cause

The birth control pill undoubtedly is the major cause of the drop. But it's not the only one; the birth rate started dropping before The Pill became available in Canada in 1961, and although it's still on the prescription list, nobody yet knows how many Canadian women are using it.

Estimates vary wildly. In March of this year, one major manufacturer said between 500,000 and 600,000 Canadian women were on it. The same month Maclean's Magazine said "nearly a million," and before the month was out the Planned Parenthood - World Population Organization estimated 450,000.

So what does it mean to British Columbia?

Practically nothing, according to J. R. Meredith, assistant director of the B.C. bureau of economics and statistics.

Last year, B.C.'s population grew by about four per cent, while Canada as a whole gained about two per cent, he said. The increase was because of immigration.

"In terms of population, it's the most rapidly growing province," he said. B.C. now has more than 1,900,000 people, and will soon reach 2,000,000.

"There is no reason to believe that B.C. won't continue to grow by at least three per cent per year, 50 per cent above the national average."

Family allowance statistics indicate that many incoming families are young, bringing a lot of children, he said.

Hospitals Affected

Hospital planning is one area obviously affected by a declining birth rate. But a senior official of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service said this week that he is sure immigration will keep maternity ward bassinets occupied.

Population figures are probably watched most closely by the people who plan today's expensive schools.

"We're going to have a tremendous increase in enrolment at all levels before we have a decrease," said Dr. Clifford Conway, director of tests and standards for the department of education.

He predicts enrolment — now about 446,000 in public schools — will reach 505,000 before it starts downward.

Elementary schools, then high schools, then universities will bear the burden in turn. University enrolment will double by 1976, according to Dr. Conway.

Greater Victoria School District officials are concerned over any suggestion that a declining birth rate means fewer classrooms will be needed.

Sooke Band Plans Tour

District superintendent E. E. Hyndeman says the Belmont-Elizabeth Fisher band from Langford will play in Chilliwack, Penticton and Westbank during the tour.

Social Worker Charges:

Public Despises Retarded Adult

OTTAWA (CP) — Society tends to despise the retarded adult because he is "stupid," says an American social worker.

"Probably no other handicap has so much stigma as lack of intelligence," says Jerome Nitzberg, assistant director of the New York City Association for the Help of Retarded Children.

Retarded adults may deny or minimize their handicap, but they are troubled by it just the same, he writes in the magazine Canada's Mental Health.

★ ★ ★

He quotes an 18-year-old with an IQ of 53 as saying: "Retardation is not good to have. A lot of people don't understand what it means. You go around feeling that people don't want you because you are retarded."

Their opinions differ on association with "normals."

One woman of 30 with an IQ of 64 said: "If a girl wants to go out with a normal boy they could. If you dress clean and neat and talk sensibly they don't know unless you act silly or talk nonsense."

Mr. Nitzberg says many retarded adults use "helplessness and dependence to attract attention and protect themselves from independence and responsibility despite their angry claims to adulthood."

They find it difficult to shed their immaturity because of a history of overprotection, failure, limited social experience and being treated as children all their lives."

But he says they can grow and change, although usually slowly and with many regressions.

"They are likely to require the kind of environment that makes allowances for their special needs. They need not and can not be separated from intellectual normals, but most will need special havens where they can retreat to be with their peers, in clubs, workshops and residences."

Centennial Projects Will Grow

Four hundred and fifty Centennial projects were started Saturday on Mount Douglas.

They were young Douglas fir trees, planted in a portion of the area which was blackened in last year's devastating fire.

Fifteen boys from the 5th Garry Oak Scout Troop worked four hours on the project, sponsored by Ss. Beaver Kiwanis Club.

★ ★ ★

Jim Augenstein, the Kiwanians' conservation chairman, will go back to Mount Douglas in the fall to see how the seedlings have survived.

From what he sees, he'll decide what areas should be covered in future plantings which the club also plans to sponsor.

Most of the trees were planted Saturday on the south side of Mount Douglas, near a road which may be developed as another access to the summit.

Tisdalle Answers Stephen:

Fewer Probes, Better Deals

Social Credit MLA John Tisdalle said he did not jump for joy at the proposal for a royal commission to look into municipal-provincial financial arrangements, suggested Friday by Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen.

"The $8,000,000 Bi and Bi Royal Commission has about sickened most people with royal commissions and their inadequacy," the member for Saanich and the Islands said Saturday night.

"We certainly do not need a royal commission to tell us that the provincial government should share in the cost of building roads in Saanich.

SURVEY BETTER

"In fact, we don't need a royal commission at all. What we do need is a continuing survey. Royal commissions tend to delay matters of urgent importance to the community."

Mr. Tisdalle said he did not approve of the provincial government sharing 50 per cent in the cost of developing and improving McKenzie Avenue.

"The provincial government has to share more of the workload," he said.

"West Saanich Road should be punched through from Interurban to the Patricia Bay Highway, where the provincial government is going to put in a hospital and vocational school, and lift this burden from the municipality.

"It doesn't take a royal commission to know the provincial government should take responsibility and loosen up on road programs to win the respect and goodwill of the municipal leaders.

PRESSING NEED

"MLAs know this, reeves and councils know this, and the provincial government knows there is a pressing need for extensive highway programming in municipalities. The vehicular traffic explosion has swallowed up and surpassed the roads' capacity.

"Only provincial governments monetary injection can solve the problem of adequately transporting goods and services through better highway systems.

Sportsman Show Opens Thursday

Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes will open the Kiwanis Centennial Sportsman Show at the Esquimalt Sports Centre at 8:45 p.m. Thursday.

Civic officials from Victoria, Saanich and Esquimalt will be on hand to take part in the ceremony, and a Sports Illustrated fashion show will be presented, featuring everything from scuba gear to mermaids.

The three-day exhibition, running to 11 p.m. nightly, will be open to the public from 7 p.m. Thursday, 1 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. Saturday.

Motorcycle Rider Hurt

Leslie R. Surgeon, 17, of 4504 Duart was involved in an accident at Majestic and Ash with a car driven by Evelyn Carr of 1006 Pentrelew Place.

Noble Order of Canada

For Best and Bravest

By RON COLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The government Monday night established the Noble Order of Canada, to honor the best and the bravest among Canadians.

It will rank behind only the Victoria Cross and the George Cross, which are awarded by the Queen on the recommendation of her Canadian government.

★ ★ ★

In the case of the new order, the awards will not be referred to London, but will be made by the governor-general on the advice of a non-political advisory council.

The new order does not effect the present procedure for awarding other medals.

It gives Canada its first system of Canadian honors and awards.

In 1943, the Canada Medal was instituted to fill the gap, but it was never awarded and is now being replaced by the Order of Canada.

The Canada Medal has been an embarrassment to successive prime ministers. Between five and ten of the medals, bearing the head of the late King George VI, have been gathering dust in the office of the deputy registrar general.

★ ★ ★

New Democrat Harold Winch suggested that one, and only one, should be awarded posthumously to George Vanier, the late governor-general.

Prime Minister Pearson said he would consider the suggestion.

Curtsy Bows Out

★ ★ ★

Roland Michener, less than an hour before he was installed as Governor-General Monday, said he hoped during his term of office "no one will feel it necessary or ever desirable to curtsy to me or my wife."

Mr. Michener said in a statement the curtsy, often accorded by ladies to the Queen's representative in Canada, and to his wife, was not something to be ordered or forbidden.

"Personally, I shall be happier as a Canadian among Canadians with such customary Canadian salutations as the handshake or the bow.

"I hope that this viewpoint will find general acceptance although some may regret it," he said.

'DROP RECORDS —AND ACT NOW'

By FRASER KELLY
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Conservative leader John Diefenbaker pressed the government Monday to abolish criminal records following disclosures that an MP had been blackmailed about an armed robbery conviction 24 years ago.

He told the Commons that as a Centennial project the government should pass legislation abolishing a man's criminal record after five or 10 years of good behavior.

Sunday night, Frank Howard (NDP, Skeena) admitted on television in Prince Rupert he had served 16 months in jail for three charges of armed robberty in Vancouver in 1943.

BLACKMAIL THREAT

The 42-year-old MP said he decided to admit to his record after he had received a blackmail threat through the mail about two weeks ago.

Mr. Diefenbaker did not refer to Mr. Howard by name, but he prefaced his question by stating the words "in view of events in the last 24 hours . . ."

Solicitor General Pennell replied that officials in his departments are now preparing a memo for submission to the cabinet on the abolition of criminal records.

STUDYING BILL

He also pointed out that the Commons justice and legal committee is studying a bill from Donald Tolmie (L, Welland) which would abolish records after 12 years and would also abolish records incurred while a person was a juvenile.

"May I suggest to the minister that time is of the essence in this connection and procrastination is no excuse. Everybody knows, or almost everybody realizes, the injustice of the present position.

"In view of the events of the last two days this Parliament should act now."

ACTIVELY CONSIDERING

Mr. Pennell retorted there has been no procrastination and that he has supported the principle in public.

In a speech to the John Howard society some weeks ago Mr. Pennell said he would oppose erasing of criminal records but would support a greatly increased use of the pardon system.

He proposed that the federal government grant pardons which would in effect state that the former inmate had behaved well enough that the authorities considered him not to have a record.

The person's record would not be given out to prospective employers or anyone else and would only be used in the case of subsequent conviction.

Howard

MP Won't Resign

This Could End It All — Howard

"I don't know about my future," the 42-year-old member of Parliament said as he prepared to leave Terrace. "There's a possibility this could end it all." (See also Page 11.)

Mr. Howard said he was prompted to make his criminal record public because of a letter he received in Ottawa two weeks ago demanding $5,000 and threatening disclosure of his record.

CASE IN COURT

A charge was laid here a week ago in connection with the letter and the case now is before the courts.

Mr. Howard said he did not intend to resign and had no plans to make a statement in the Commons when he returns today.

OFFICIALS TOLD

He said that before he had ever run for public office—in the 1952 B.C. election in Skeena provincial riding which he lost by 500 votes—he had informed party officials of his record and a party lawyer had said there was no legal reason he could not hold office.

"I had also disclosed my record to friends and certain party officials a long time ago—and I was resolved to make a public statement at some convenient

Disclosure Leaves MPs Undisturbed

OTTAWA (CP) — Frank Howard's disclosure that he once served time for armed robbery has produced little alarm among his fellow members of Parliament, a snap poll indicates.

Four Conservatives and two Liberals were sampled on their attitude towards the NDP member for Skeena. The prevailing view was that his criminal record was a private matter.

Gordon Fairweather, Conservative MP for Royal, said the matter should be forgotten. "It's his own business and it happened 25 years ago," the former New Brunswick attorney-general said.

Of the six MPs polled, only Conservative Alfred Hales (Wellington South) suggested Mr. Howard should not be permitted to retain his seat. However, he said it is up to the NDP to decide that question, not Parliament.

"It's strange that one would be allowed to be an MP with such a record," Mr. Hales said.

★ ★ ★

Conservative Walter Dinsdale (Brandon-Souris), a former Salvation Army police court social worker, said no stigma should be attached to reformed criminals.

"A man must be judged on what he is, not what he was," said Mr. Dinsdale, a former cabinet minister.

British Belts Stay Cinched

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP) — The Labor government announced plans Monday to maintain control over pay and prices for at least another 18 months despite protests by the voters and outcries in Parliament.

In the wake of setbacks in local council elections last week, Economics Minister Michael Stewart gave notice that the government intends to take power to impose prolonged delays in pay awards and price increases in key industries.

The government says such power is necessary to restore Britain's economic health after chronic crisis.

IRKS SUPPORTERS

The new pay-control program would be slightly less sweeping than current powers to block pay and price increases by government order. After the current pay-freeze powers expire this summer, the new 12-month program would permit the government to delay proposed increases for up to seven months.

Spanish Air Ban Official

MONTREAL (CP) — The Spanish delegate to the International Civil Aviation Organization has filed an official notice stating his country has prohibited foreign aircraft from an area adjacent to Gibraltar, an ICAO spokesman said Monday.

"ICAO's function now is to notify all member countries that such a ban is in effect," the spokesman said. "There will be no debate."

The British government said last week it intends "to uphold to the full our rights to use the airfield at Gibraltar."

City Hideaway Hunted

Store Loses $400,000 In Montreal Grab-Raid

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said Monday they are searching for a hideaway in downtown Montreal where four armed men were believed to have fled after holding up two Brinks guards at Simpson's department store and escaping with $400,000 in cash and non-negotiable cheques.

A spokesman for Simpson's Montreal Ltd. said about one-third of the loot was cash. It represented Saturday's receipts.

Detectives said they believe the four bandits, who had machine-guns, "rushed to a hideaway in the central district to avoid being seen."

They abandoned their getaway car a few blocks north of the department store, near McGill University.

The stolen money and cheques were contained in three canvas bags.

The bags were being carried by the two Brink's guards from the store's basement. Store employees said the bandits apparently mingled with the employees and, at a given moment, hurriedly donned masks and produced their guns.

Police said the two Brinks guards chased the bandits out onto the street where the four men were seen getting into a green car. The rear license plate was covered by white paint or plastered with white paper to prevent identification.

Roy Etches, general manager of Simpson's in Montreal, said the loss was covered by insurance and by a contract with Brink's Express Co.

A few hours after the robbery, three men held up a credit union in suburban Jacques Cartier and escaped with an estimated $5,000.

One man stayed in a car while the others entered the building and told a teller to empty the contents of the cash drawers.

At least $350,000, not including Monday's holdup, has been taken in various robberies of Brink's employees in the Montreal area in recent months.

One Dead in Zig-Zag Wake

Twister Hits Ontario

Joseph Donnelly, 80, of Dublin was working in a barn on his family farm when the building collapsed after being hit by the tornado.

Hensall is 35 miles north of London and Dublin is 15 miles east of here.

Volunteer firemen pulled both Mr. Donnelly and his son, Lou, 50, from the wreckage, but the elder Donnelly died several hours later in hospital.

Village residents saw the twister zig-zagging through the field towards them about 4 p.m.

Many thought it was going to slice through the village school where 200 children were about to leave for the day, but at the last moment it veered south of the town.

★ ★ ★

In less than a minute it destroyed a gas station; took the roof off a barn, smashed it to pieces and then spread it over fields up to half a mile away; snapped trees at the base; lifted hydro poles out of the ground; lifted a barn off the ground and then drove it against trees 50 yards away; and picked a small car and sent it cartwheeling into the side of a house.

"It was zig-zagging . . . It lifted for a moment and then it came down again.

"I started to run for the house from where I had been working in a barn.

"I just had time to get down in the basement with my wife. Then it was on us.

"Through the basement window I saw my Volkswagen lifted off the ground. Then it started to roll over and over. It came to rest against the house."

A dozen trees on the property were lifted out of the ground, Mr. Branderhorst said.

"I was standing here in my husband's service station when I saw it coming.

"I only had time to telephone my husband who was on a call to Exeter. Then it struck.

"I heard the wall crack at the back. Then the whole building fell down. It was just terrible."
